PRESENTATION OF GOVERNOR C. C. YOUNG.

Hon. H. L. Carnahan, President of the Senate, then presented Governor C. C. Young to the Joint Convention. The Governor then delivered his first biennial message as follows:

FIRST BIENNIAL MESSAGE OF GOVERNOR C. C. YOUNG.

EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT.
January 7, 1929.

To the Senate and Assembly of the State of California.

In article V of the State constitution, relating to the Executive Department, sixteen of the twenty sections were copied verbatim from the old constitution of 1849. Among these is section 10, requiring of the Governor that he shall communicate, by message to the Legislature at every session, the condition of the State, and recommend such matters as he shall deem expedient.

Thus we see that the Governor's biennial message, which I am here transmitting, is as old as is the history of California. In this message I shall try to put into words that which has proven to be the spirit of the present day in California government. In this there is no thought of glorifying the policies of any individual or group, but rather the thought is to interpret the progressive spirit of our people in terms of the activities of government.

CONSTRUCTIVE LONG TIME PLANNING.

Briefly, the present period of our governmental history is marked by long-time planning of public policies. We can no longer be content to legislate and govern for the current business alone. Efforts to estimate the developments which will take place in our State during the next generation, and prepare for them accordingly in advance, means that the government will soon be out of step with the progress of industry and labor and commerce. The progress which has taken place in the past twenty years will not be sufficient for the changing needs of the twenty years ahead.

It is happily our privilege, years and miles to be the agents of the people during this period, when they are surveying the needs for constructive progress in the years to come, and preparing to enter upon the approaching new world of progressive development. It is ours to make to the business of the past to take care of the present, and to plan for a future bettering the most difficult and pressing of our State.

To provide the opportunity for the securing of future needs, careful forecasts have been laid during the past two years. The supply in the general fund has been built up nearly $10,000,000 and according to the State Controller will amount to almost $20,000,000 at the end of the present business year. This makes possible the unhurried accomplishment of fundamental changes in our tax system, as we require. In harmony with this fact our State Tax Commission report will undoubtedly be framed, not in terms of revenue needs of today, but in terms of equitable taxation for years to come.

Our constitutional budget requirement lays the foundation of long-time planning. Not satisfied with the old idea of studying haphazard cases of single institutions, or groups of them, for a single institution, we have made a scientific study of the increasing requirements of State hospitals, homes, correctional schools, prisons, normal schools and teachers colleges, so that we can report with reasonable accuracy the budget needs for these purposes for the next ten years. Study has been given to the changing functions of these institutions as well as to their growth.

Our highway program has been intelligently planned for years to come. Its institution in an orderly way is already solving great difficulties. The Department of Finance advises me that the long-time program, based on the "pay-as-you-go" method, produces a saving of $24,000,000 in the expenditures of the next business year alone, compared with the old bond issue method.

Nor have we been satisfied with looking forward to distant things alone. The demands of society, that we turn our attention to the great questions which affect us from the humanitarian as well as from an economic standpoint, have been met by the long time planning of the Commission on Prison Treatment, the Crime Commission and the Commission on Institution for Women Offenders.

STUDY OF CONSTITUTION AND CHARTERS.

Our State constitution is described by students of government as one of the most in form in the Union, because of its total lack of comprehensive planning, and the necessity of constant changes based on immediate experiences. If we are to meet fairly the California of tomorrow we must cease tampering with one section after another, and seriously study our constitution as a whole in the light of the new conditions that exist and are facing us. In line with this policy I shall ask your consideration for a measure providing for a far-sighted study of our need for constitutional revision.

In this connection I would direct your attention to the need for a plan of county government more responsive to the people than is provided by the general provisions of the State constitution. It is not conducive to the best in government that the Legislature should determine salaries of county officers and their deputies and even the number of deputies a county officer shall have. In practice this results in the legislative delegation from each county deciding these matters. While it is now possible for each county to frame and adopt a county charter, covering these and other matters, it is seldom done. Local home rule in county affairs should be more easily obtainable. It is therefore my intention to recommend to you a plan for careful study of the modernizing of our general system of county government, to the end that the people of each county may enjoy a large measure of local control over local government, and be able more readily to bring their respective counties into line with the changing needs of each.

Communicating to you "The condition of the State" as required of me by the constitution, I shall set forth some of the accomplishments, policies, and ideals of the past two years, particularly those which bear upon this task of long-time planning for the future in legislation, finance, construction, education, and the general welfare of our people.

SMALLEST PERCENTAGE INCREASE IN BUDGET HISTORY.

Among the tasks which have engaged us since your last regular session have been the making of another budget, the study of California's tax problems, and the departmentalizing of our various governmental activities. The budget, like that of two years ago, will show every dollar of State expenditures, whether paid out directly by the State itself, or indirectly through the agency of the counties. For the sake of convenience our two major expenses, education and highways, have been segregated, thus permitting special study of these two items. All this will be presented to you in a separate budget message. Incidentally, aside from the fixed charges and unescapable expenditures of education and highways, the percentage of increase in this biennium over the last is considerably less than the percentage of population increase during the same period, and is probably the smallest in the history of the State.

The study of our tax problem has occupied us for the past year. A special report of the commission on the subject of bank taxation was transmitted to you at your special session on the fourth of last September, and the constitutional amendment you proposed at that session was two months later overwhelmingly ratified by the voters of the State. A more extended general report on the whole tax problem may be expected shortly, and will be promptly submitted for your consideration.

The departmentalizing of the State's activities has greatly aided in the economical and efficient conduct of the State's business. It has made possible splendid progress in our highway program, in the growth of our institutions, in the creation of a system of State parks, in helping to solve our industrial problems, in bringing about desirable economies and avoiding useless duplication of effort. All these will be treated under their appropriate departments in subsequent pages of this report. However, before taking up these matters connected with the administrative branch of the government, I should like to say something relative to those governmental functions known as legislative and judicial.

THE LEGISLATIVE BRANCH OF GOVERNMENT

Whatever progress may have been made in State government during the past two years is of course due largely to the splendid cooperation given at our last legislative session. My long experience as a legislator and as a presiding officer of one or the other of the two houses, has, I think, afforded me an especial opportunity to learn the problems connected with this branch of our government, and has created an especial desire to help, if I can, in the solution of these problems.

In my inaugural talk two years ago, I expressed the hope that the session of that year might be distinguished by as few bills as possible, thus giving more time for the careful consideration of each. Although the number of bills introduced and passed was distinctly smaller than at some preceding sessions, it was, in my opinion, still too large—2191 introduced, 1107 passed by both houses, and 898 signed and thus enacted into law.

Since the adjournment of last session I have communicated with officials in all the other states to learn how they compare with California in this respect. I find that in each of 26 states less than 1000 bills were introduced, in 16 states between 1000 and 2000, and in only 6 states over 2000, including California's 2191. I find also that in 35 states less than 500 bills passed both houses, in 9 states between 500 and 1000, and in only 4 states, including California, over 1000. Of these, only Florida and North Carolina passed more bills than California.

ADVANCE PREPARATION OF BILLS.

Contrary to prevailing belief, this does not mean an extremely large number of new laws, since most of these bills represent only the amendment of existing laws. On studying further to learn why so large a number of amendments was required, I think we shall find it usually because the original law was too carelessly and hastily drawn. To obviate this, during the past year I have been urging that bills be prepared in advance of the actual session, and, by resolution of the recent special session, it was arranged that they may actually be put into print during the two months before the session begins.

Many of the members of the present Legislature have responded heartily to this suggestion, and I think it safe to say that over 650 bills are being thus prepared, with a large number of them pre-printed. This is a far better beginning of this innovation than I had dared to hope for, and I trust that its advantages may so commend themselves to legislatures that we may look forward to the time when during the long period between sessions, our Legislative Counsel Bureau may be constantly employed and most of your legislation actually prepared.

This does not mean that we shall have more legislation, but far less, since it will be so much better conceived and so much more carefully drawn that it will not be filled with errors to be amended by future bills. In fact, from many letters I have received from members of the present Legislature during the past few months, I am confident that from this time on we may expect fewer measures, an absence of so-called skeleton bills, and far more orderly and less hurried sessions than we have hitherto experienced.

LEGISLATIVE COUNSEL BUREAU.

In connection with the fine and constructive accomplishments of the Legislative Council at its last session, it is appropriate to discuss the Legislative Counsel Bureau which was of such assistance to the members and committees in preparing their private bills, compiling a digest of proposed legislation, and assisting as to the constitutionality of pending measures or their conflict with existing laws. The bureau was also of extreme value to the Governor's office during the three last periods following adjournment in helping to analyze bills awaiting signature.

Since that time the bureau has performed at least as well as in any of those last important pieces of work. Among these was the compilation of the revised and compiled statutes of all the states for the purpose of being able to refer to the Legislature with respect to the possible need in California for revision of our statutes. There was also the preparation, in collaboration with the School Code Commission, of a proposed school code which will be submitted in June in the form of a bill. Besides this, there was and given to the Secretary of State concerning the publication of ballot propositions for the November election, and also to various legislative and statutory commissions in putting their recommendations into the form of proposed laws.

During the last few months, the Legislative Counsel Bureau has been very busy in helping members of each house draw up their bills for this session. As I have said elsewhere, this may easily become the most important function of the bureau, and may keep its staff busy all the long period between sessions. If this could be realized to any considerable extent it would prove the greatest possible aid toward making California laws better considered and more carefully drafted than those of any other state in the Union.

In the bills already printed you will note that for the first time in many years Joint Rule No. 9 is being observed. This rule provides that in bills inserting a code section or general law, new matter shall be enclosed in brackets, where enclosed empty brackets shall denote omissions. If each member will carefully observe this rule in preparing bills, it is believed that great aid will be afforded to committee work and to individual study of proposed legislation.

SHORT JANUARY SESSION POSSIBLE.

One of the advantages of the preparation of bills in advance of the winter session will be the great reduction in the amount of each month given to the legislative recess, and the consequent possibility of making the January session of the coming year a very short one. The so-called "defunctured session" of the California Legislature has the advantage of placing before the public during the constitutional recess the mass of proposed legislation which can be examined by those interested before any considerable portion of it is enacted into law or even dispatched to committee. Where the bills are promptly printed as I trust will be the case this year, it also enables your Legislative Counsel Bureau to make an early digest of those sent to get this, together with the bills themselves, into your hands at all times prior to the recess.

The double session has, however, a disadvantage in that it frequently causes great inconvenience to members of the Legislature. It means necessarily loss of time from your regular business or profession. It means the necessity of twice establishing yourselves in a temporary home or Sacramento. It frequently means wasted time, owing to the fact that it is practically impossible to get committees to functioning during the first part of the session.

I think that legislators are substantially agreed, measured as the double session plan will probably continue in California, that it would be very desirable to limit the first portion of the session to as short a period as possible, just long enough to organize, to get committees appointed and to investigate the bills. Now that most of the bills are being prepared in advance, I see no reason why such normal conditions the opening session need consume more than two weeks of your time, giving the week thus saved, if necessary, to the over-burdened second portion. Please understand that I entirely appreciate that this is your business and not mine. I am merely venturing the suggestion as one who became interested in these things when privileged to work with you as a fellow legislator.

By this time you will have noted that since your last session we have tried to make you a little more comfortable through renovating the Senate and Assembly chambers. You will note also that something has been done toward providing a better ventilating system. These are improvements which have been neglected for many years, but which we have succeeded in accomplishing this year, in connection with our general work of reconstruction in the Capitol Building. We have also endeavored to do everything possible on the fourth floor, such as providing two large hearing rooms for your committees, and trust that in a measure we shall have relieved the former congestion and overcrowding. Those of you who arrived last evening in time to see the lighted Capitol dome may possibly have sensed that the old building itself was offering you a welcome.

Before passing on to the balance of this message I wish to extend a very hearty greeting, both to former members of the Senate and Assembly, who so generously supported our endeavors at last session, and to those new members who are coming among us for the first time. Please bear in mind that the door of the Governor's office is always open to every one of you, and that it is understood that you are to have the right of way. If there is anything I can do which may be of service, I trust that you will let it be known, for I earnestly desire to cooperate in making this a most pleasant and profitable session.

THE JUDICIAL BRANCH OF GOVERNMENT.

Our constitution provides that "the judicial power of the State shall be vested in the Senate, sitting as a court of impeachment, in a Supreme Court, district courts of appeal, superior courts, such municipal courts as may be established in any city or city and county, and in such inferior courts as the Legislature may establish, etc."

SUPREME COURT AND DISTRICT COURTS OF APPEAL.

The appellate business of the courts of the State, other than appeals from inferior courts to the superior court, is handled by a Supreme Court, consisting of a chief justice and six associate justices, and three district courts of appeal of five divisions, each division consisting of a presiding justice and two associate justices. Three divisions of the latter court were created by constitutional amendment adopted in 1904, and two were added in 1918. The purpose on each occasion was to relieve the congestion of appellate business. In the early days relief was accorded by increasing the number of Supreme Court justices from three to five, and finally, by the constitution of 1879, to seven. The creation of the district courts of appeal, and the latter addition of more divisions, solved the problem for a time only.

Two years ago the situation became such that cases appealed more than two years before had not reached the calendar in the Supreme Court, and an even greater delay was being experienced in some of the district courts of appeal. A much better condition exists today. I am informed by the chief justice that, with the calling of the January term calendar of the Supreme Court, every case in which a transcript on appeal was filed before January first, one year ago, will be submitted for consideration and decision. The calendars of the district courts of appeal are also in much better condition.

Much of the satisfactory showing now made by these courts is due to the fact that, under the power conferred by the amendment to the constitution adding the Judicial Council to the judicial system of the State, many able judges of the superior court have been assigned to the district courts of appeal to assist in clearing up the calendars. I am informed that the work of these justices pro tempore has, on the whole, proved very satisfactory.

The people have just adopted a Senate constitutional amendment relating to the courts. The purpose of this amendment is to enable the Legislature to deal directly with a number of matters relating to the courts which heretofore could be reached only by constitutional amendments. Some of the powers thus granted the Legislature are to prescribe and increase the jurisdiction of inferior courts, appeals from which lie only to the superior courts. This will result in a considerable lessening of the number of appeals which can be taken to the Supreme Court and district courts of appeal. By other enactments which the Judicial Council will suggest to you, greater opportunity will be accorded the trial courts to correct errors, without the necessity of appeals being taken.

SUPERIOR COURTS.

By virtue of the mandate of the constitution, there is, in each of the organized counties and cities and counties of the State, a superior court, which is the principal trial court of the State, for each of which courts there must be at least one judge, regardless of whether or not there is sufficient judicial business in the county to warrant the maintenance of such a court. There are, in all, 144 judges of the superior court in California. At the time of the adoption of the amendment to the constitution two years ago providing for and making the Judicial Council a part of the judicial system of the State, the judicial business in a number of the counties, particularly in the larger counties, had become so congested that in some of the courts from eighteen months to two years elapsed between the setting of cases for trial and the actual trial date.

The amendment converted the judiciary of the State into a mobile force, immediately available, under the direction of the Judicial Council, for relieving the situation. The plan of assigning judges from the superior court of one county to another has worked so well that, even in Los Angeles County where the congestion was the worst, the presiding judge, in a recent report to the Judicial Council, states that litigants may now plan with reasonable certainty on bringing a case on for trial within sixty to ninety days from the time of setting. That, I am informed, is a very excellent situation in a community as large as Los Angeles County. In the other large counties of the State, an appreciable improvement has been brought about. This improved situation is evidence of the fact that the various superior courts of the State are, in effect, units of one unified superior court. It functions under the direction of the chief justice, who is ex officio the chairman of the Judicial Council. As evidence, also, of the mobility of the superior court judiciary, is the fact that during the last two years the chief justice has made 1504 assignments of judges for service in courts other than their own.

The objection that under the Judicial Council plan of assignment, some of the more remote counties have been at times left without a judge, has been answered, to a large degree, by the other plan of giving all the judges in counties grouped together by contiguous assignments for a whole year, including the case of those to sit and hold court in any of such counties. To further meet the situation, the Judicial Council will, as a matter of expediency, provide for the assignment of judges to chambers and providing for the appointment by the court in each county of qualified court commissioners, who will have substantially all the powers of judges in chambers. This plan, the council reports, works exceedingly well in those counties.

MUNICIPAL AND INTERIOR COURTS

The constitution was amended in 1924 to provide for the creation of municipal courts. The Legislature, at its succeeding session, provided for the formation and existence of such courts in cities and counties having a population of more than forty thousand inhabitants, such courts, when established, to be courts of record, and to supersede all other courts inferior to the superior court, except the small claims court. The judges of these courts are required to be of the same qualifications as judges of the superior court, and the jurisdiction of the court, in cases at law involving money judgments is fixed at $1,000 or less. They have the same organizational features of the superior courts, with their numerous, active commissions. These courts have worked well where established (Los Angeles and Long Beach), and the Judicial Council is prepared to recommend their establishment in the other communities having the designated population.

LONG-TERM PLANNING

These constitutional changes in our judicial system reflect clearly the determination of our people that their agencies of government shall be modified as needed to fit them, not only for the conditions of today but for those future developments which can be foreseen, in line with the policy I have described as "long-time planning."

THE ADMINISTRATIVE BRANCH OF GOVERNMENT

Before considering the various administrative departments connected directly or indirectly with the Governor's office it is only proper to say a word respecting the five elective offices whose duties are largely independent of the executive. By these I refer to the offices of the Secretary of State, State Controller, State Treasurer, Attorney General and Surveyor General. So well are the people satisfied with the very excellent work performed by the present incumbents of these offices that they have formed the habit of voting for them year after year. Their terms of public service in their present positions range from six to twenty-six years, giving to them average tenure of almost sixteen years each.

The powers and duties of these elective officials are very fully set forth in the last edition of the California Blue Book and I consequently shall not attempt to enlarge upon them here. Three of them, the Secretary of State, the Comptroller, and the Treasurer, have their offices on the first floor of the Capitol Building. In the remodeling of the building and the removal of the State Library to its new home, it has been found possible to give the Controller and the Secretary of State new and enlarged quarters, while the office of the Treasurer is being provided with a new vault. The Sacramento office of the Attorney General has moved to the new Library and Courts Building, while the Surveyor General has offices adjoining the Department of Finance on the third floor of the Capitol.

I am glad to mention these five elective officers, for I wish to acknowledge the many favors and courtesies I am constantly receiving from every one of them. In all their contacts with the Governor's office they have been most helpful and efficient, and it is this fine spirit of generous cooperation which serves to make our work at the State Capitol so satisfying and enjoyable. These five officials, together with the Governor, the Lieutenant Governor, the Superintendent of Public Instruction and the State Board of Equalization, constitute the nonjudicial elective State officials.

REORGANIZATION OF STATE GOVERNMENT

Before proceeding to describe present governmental activities as carried on by the various State departments, it would perhaps be well to call to mind how this departmentalized form of government came into being. California, in common with all the other larger and more progressive states of the Union, has, during the last generation, gradually assumed a very large number of governmental functions, some regulatory, others developmental, still others of different character, but each representing some proper function of government.

These governmental activities arose for the most part as a result of the legislation of many years; and each, as it was proposed, was put in charge of some commission, board, or single official, whose duty it should be to deal with the particular activity concerned. In this way, within the last twenty years, there have been created in California probably as many as 140 of these independent boards and commissions.

Practically all these boards and commissions were appointed by the Governor and were directly responsible to him, but they were so many in number and so diverse in character that their contact with the Governor's office was of necessity very slight. They were consequently left to function by themselves without anything in the way of adequate supervision. If it happened that those appointed to a certain commission had special knowledge and personal interest as to their work, the results would naturally be correspondingly good; but if it happened that the appointments to any board were merely of an honorary or political nature, not much could be expected from its unsupervised activities.

REORGANIZATION IN OTHER STATES.

What was true in California was also true elsewhere, until finally there arose in certain eastern states a plan by which these independent boards and commissions might be consolidated by grouping together into governmental departments those which were similar in kind or dealt with the same general activity. This was begun in 1917 by the state of Illinois, and a fairly well departmentalized system was the result. Other states soon followed, such as Massachusetts in 1919, and Ohio in 1921. Altogether some fifteen states have thus become more or less completely departmentalized, while still others have made a beginning through the organization of one or two departments.

In California in 1918 a Committee on Efficiency and Economy was appointed to make a study of the State's affairs, with the result that in 1919 a report was presented recommending an organization along departmental lines. At the legislative session of that year, a State Department of Agriculture was actually founded, combining nine independent though related agencies, to which four similar agencies have been added since that time. At the next legislative session, other departments were also authorized, but were not given sufficient powers to enable them to impress themselves either upon the Legislature or the public.

THE 1927 REORGANIZATION PLAN.

In 1927, at the beginning of the present administration, the matter of the reorganization of State government was taken up in earnest, for it was felt that the securing of businesslike efficiency in the State's affairs must be largely dependent upon a businesslike set-up of our various governmental agencies. The Legislature responded heartily to suggestions toward this end, with the result that nine strong departments have thus far been organized, and have been functioning since the laws creating or reorganizing them went into effect a year and a half ago.

The nine departments so far created are Agriculture, Education, Finance, Industrial Relations, Institutions, Natural Resources, Public Health, Public Works and Social Welfare. Each of these is in charge of a director chosen because of his especial interest in and fitness for the particular work of his department. Only those in close touch with State affairs can fully realize how much hitherto wasted and duplicated effort has been saved, and how much added efficiency has been gained through this new governmental plan.

There are, however, still some thirty-eight independent agencies which have not yet been brought into departments, and which yet are working under the same disadvantages as attached to the hundred and more agencies existing before any plan of reorganization was conceived. Nearly all of these agencies combine naturally into three or four very homogeneous groups, which might easily form appropriate departments, though possibly not so closely organized as some of those already existing.

Among these might well be a department made up of those agencies which have to do with the supervision of various investment and business activities, such as banking, insurance and the like. Another department could include all the boards giving examinations and licensing the various personal occupations and professions. Another might concern itself with such matters as have to do with the veterans of our wars, or the activities of our National Guard. Still another might group together all the agencies which have to do with the control of crime and the custody of criminals. These, added to our present departments, would practically cover all the agencies of State government.

THE GOVERNOR'S COUNCIL.

Of the fifteen states which in varying degrees have made headway in this work of reorganization it is possibly not too much to say that California stands pre-eminent. If this is so, it is due largely to the provision for a Governor's Council, meeting regularly at least once each month, and composed entirely of department heads, all (with the exception of the Director of Education) appointed by the Governor and serving at his pleasure.

As it has transpired, a bill creating this council was one of the most important passed the last session of the Legislature. It reads as follows:

"A council to be known as the Governor's Council is hereby created to consist of the Director of Finance, Director of Education, Director of Public Works, Director of Public Health, Director of Institutions, Director of Agriculture, Director of Industrial Relations, Director of Social Welfare and Director of Natural Resources. At least once each month the council shall meet in Sacramento at such time and place as may be designated by the Governor. It shall be the duty of each of the members of the council to report to the Governor at the time of each monthly meeting, and at such other times as the Governor may desire, the facts regarding the administration of the functions of his department and to postpone such other duties as a member of the council, as may be required of him by the Governor.

This bill took effect July 29, 1927. Since that time there have been seventeen regular monthly meetings of the council, each of these seemingly more valuable than those which preceded. Except in a very few instances when a director has been ill, or out of the State on official business, all the meetings have been attended by the entire body of directors. The meetings, which began shortly after noon in the morning and continue until nearly seven in the evening, have thus far been held in the Governor's office, but, in the reconstruction of the Capitol, a Council Chamber has been provided, which, on other than council days, may also serve as an assembly room for meetings in which officials located in the building are interested.

The meetings are held on the last Wednesday of each month, and are open to the press and the public. The new Council Chamber, which will be completed in March or April of this year, will probably accommodate easily a hundred visitors, thus affording an opportunity to anyone to keep in touch with State affairs. Each director in turn gives the entire story of what has been done by the division of his department during the current month. The director speaks from a platform, every is furnished to the Governor and other members of the council and is presented by them as a continuous and continuing history of the business of the State.

BENEFITS OF COUNCIL MEETINGS

In order to expedite business, the council has invited no one to take part in discussions except the Governor and the members of the council. These take a very active part, however, asking questions, making suggestions, offering suggestions, and in general considering every topic as presented by each director in his report. Consequently, at the end of the council meeting there has passed in review the entire story of the business of the State transacted within the month. Thus it transpires that each director becomes acquainted with all the phases of State government, in addition to the thorough knowledge of his own department, for which he is responsible. In this way the Governor's Council becomes a most efficient, ready and able to render valuable advice for the benefit of the State.

Another result of the council meeting is the added opportunity for consultation between different departments. Frequently a subject is discussed with various phases directly affecting half a dozen different departments. Discussion of office and work at cross purposes is therefore avoided. Important matters are frequently settled around the council table in half an hour which would not have been settled for months, and possibly not at all, if the department directors were not thus brought in constant contact by the meetings.

It is not too much to say that California has at last evolved a businesslike procedure in giving direction to the State's business.

With all this in mind, I think it will be evident why the present administration is extremely desirous to continue its work of reorganization until every single agency of the State is adequately represented in the Governor's Council. No agency need fear that this will result in any loss of independence, for no legislation will be asked which will not safeguard to every board its entire freedom of action in the functions for which it was organized. This will, however, bring it into living contact with other State agencies, and will enable it to get before the Governor at least once each month, the entire story of its activities. Accordingly, I would urge the Legislature to pass such laws or submit such constitutional amendments as may be deemed necessary for the completion of this work.

REPORT OF STATE ACTIVITIES

Having thus sketched the plan according to which California's government has been organized, I shall now proceed to do the thing for which this message was primarily intended, namely, to give a picture of the various administrative agencies of the State and to show their accomplishments during the most important, as well as the work in which each is now engaged. I shall treat these under the heads of the various departments into which they are organized, or, if they are not yet departmentalized, I shall include them under the head of the department or proposed department to which they are respectively related.

In this way I trust that I may avoid in a measure the complaint that all the activities with which California's government is administratively concerned. I wish to acknowledge my appreciation to various department heads for the data which they have furnished me, and to thank them for permitting me to incorporate their data, sometimes verbatim, into this message. For purposes of ready reference, I shall place the topic of discussion at the beginning of each paragraph. In order not to discriminate between different departments and other groups of governmental agencies, as to their relative importance, I shall take them up alphabetically, irrespective as to whether they are or are not yet organized into departments; and I shall accordingly begin with the Department of Agriculture.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE.

Owing to the diversified character of our farm crops, together with other causes, automatically lessening the danger of overproduction which often overwhelms single-crop states, agricultural industry in California has at no time suffered from the post-war depression to the extent which has affected most other agricultural sections of the country. However, agricultural conditions in California are not yet what we would like to have them, though they have unquestionably improved during the past year. California's comparatively favorable position in agriculture is due to our wide diversity of crops, for we grow some one hundred eighty products commercially, to our leadership among the states in many of these products, and to the virtual monopoly we enjoy in a number, like almonds, English walnuts, apricots, lemons, and olives; and to a very considerable use of cooperative marketing methods. The Returns on citrus fruits and certain other crops have been gratifying. The importance of having a prosperous agriculture in this State is so apparent, and so necessary to our well being, I do not need to dwell on this phase of the subject.

Sympathetic Legislation Required. Both legislative and administrative branches of the State have gone far in the past two years in doing everything possible to aid agriculture, an attitude which will of course be maintained in the future. A number of important measures will be submitted to the Legislature at this session, each of which will merit most careful consideration. Plant and live stock quarantine, pest control work, better standardization, up-to-date and sound market information—all these and other similar topics will come before you as necessary aids to agricultural success in California. It is particularly important that legislation be enacted to protect our producers from unscrupulous operators and those who do not have at heart the real interests of the farmer.

New Cooperative Methods. There are being tried out in our State new types of cooperative endeavor among certain commodity groups, and such aid as the State can give to these and other methods of improving the profitable distribution of our products must be given friendly consideration. It would be very valuable if the same success in cooperative marketing which is enjoyed by the citrus industry might also be worked out for our vineyards and deciduous orchards.

Plight of the Peach Growers. There was a very earnest attempt made during the past year to aid the earning peach industry. Following the unsatisfactory condition which had existed, the State government endeavored to assist in improving the situation by acting as a harmonizing agent between the various factors concerned. Although as a result of this endeavor the grower probably received more money than might otherwise have come to him, at the same time many peach orchardists operated at a loss. This condition can not continue indefinitely, and it is to be hoped that there may come about a greater unity of effort in broadening the market and disposing of the product. This is true not only of peaches, but also of other products, such as grapes.

Our Agricultural Supremacy. California is essentially an agricultural State. We are proud of our agricultural achievements, and we recognize the significance of the statement made by the Chief of the Federal Bureau of Agricultural Economics that 42 per cent of the total carload shipments of fresh fruits and 15 per cent of the carload shipments of vegetables originate in California. We are proud also of our many specialized crops, but we must realize that while these are of advantage to our agricultural supremacy, at the same time they necessarily broaden the scope and add to the expense of the State Department of Agriculture, whether concerned with the growing of agricultural products, or with the problems of live stock and live stock products.

LIVE STOCK AND DAIRYING.

Bovine Tuberculosis Campaign. The live stock industry has been in a particularly favorable position during the current biennium. No new serious animal diseases have gained entrance into the State. This has permitted the department to concentrate upon the control of those diseases which are more or less prevalent in California, and there has been a most gratifying decrease in losses to live stock by internal parasites. At the same time there has been no relaxation in the vigorous enforcement of quarantine regulations to prevent new diseases from coming in. Without doubt the most serious economic and disease problem confronting our live stock industry is bovine tuberculosis, and adequate steps must be taken to inaugurate a more extensive and intensive campaign against this disease.

Dairy Abuses Checked. The dairy industry, which also has been in very good condition, has received much attention from the department, and many fraudulent trade practices and abuses have been checked, in some instances by prosecution and conviction. In several instances the department has instituted court action which has been responsible for dairymen receiving money of which they had been defrauded through improper methods by those buying dairy products.

Milk Quality Good. Through cooperation with the city and county health departments, practically every large city in the State, and several counties, are working on a graded milk program. Ninety per cent of the total State supply of milk has been brought under State grade label. Quality as determined by the law of the Federal Department of Agriculture milk score card averaged 95.1 for the year 1927, with every indication of an increase for 1928. At the close of the year 1928 there were twenty-one approved departments with a milk score of 90 per cent. At the end of the year 1927 there were twenty-eight approved milk inspecting departments with a score of 95.1 per cent, and serving more than twice the population served in 1925.

FIELD CROPS.

Grain and Hay. The bonded warehouse services offered by the State through the Department of Agriculture have been more extensively used by the agricultural interests of the State than during any former period. Grain inspection has likewise increased in popularity both with the trade and with the farmer. The movement which is now under way to standardize and grade hay promises a significant step toward standardization in all lines. It is rather anomalous that the largest money crop produced by the farmer in California is one of the last to undertake grading and standardization.

MARKETING PROBLEMS.

Standardization Goes On. Standardizing of our fruits and vegetables has proceeded in a systematic manner, and has been of increasing value in the marketing of these products. Located as we are, two or three thousand miles from the greater centers of population, and with our tremendous production, it is necessary that every advantage be taken in order to successfully compete with the producers and shippers located closer to these markets. The fruit and vegetable standardization laws have been completely revised and brought up to date in order to expedite marketing.

Radio and Bulletin Market Service. The Department of Agriculture in its marketing work has inaugurated a series of market information bulletins on commodities which are not marketed from centralized markets, such as peaches, pears, apples, turkeys, etc., and these bulletins have met with a most successful reception. In improving the market news service, advantage has been taken of the radio, and following the all-outlet of a short wave length to the State and Federal Departments of Agriculture, market reports have daily been put out over the short wave network. This has resulted in more prompt and more comprehensive dissemination of market news information, which is distinctly to the advantage of the producer as well as to the shippers. Two remote coastal studios for voice broadcasting, one at San Francisco and one in San Francisco connected with the Pacific Bayshore Station, KQW at San Jose, also are made use of for the dissemination of market news information.

Producer Dealers' Law. In the administration of the Producer Dealers' Law, the department has issued licenses in 1928 to 631 dealers handling farm products on a consignment basis. This is compared with 288 licenses issued in 1927, which not only a better recognition of the law on the part of the dealer but also a very much greater financial protection to the producer.

A POSSIBLE AID TO NEW MARKETS.

Processing Plant at Harbor. The suggestion has been made that citrus and fruit and vegetable processing plant and warehouse be established on the San Francisco water front, thus providing for California growers the opportunity to utilize their markets very greatly. Steamship lines have been most active in this connection, their vessels with refrigeration. There are now 100 ships thus equipped with about 250 sailings a year in and out of the California ports. Ports to the north of us, notably at Seattle and Vancouver, have taken the lead in the installations of this kind.

Importance to California Agriculture. Since California is the largest grower of fruits and vegetables of any western state, undoubtedly we should not lag behind in providing facilities of this character. The markets of the Orient, Australia, New Zealand and South America await us, and water shipments to our own Atlantic coast and to European countries can easily be increased. Investigations are being carried on as to the probable business to be developed by an improvement of this kind, and as to costs of building a suitable dock, processing plant and warehouse. It is most important in considering this subject that we keep ever in plain view the absolute necessity of such operation of a plant of this kind as shall allow of the widest possible use of it by all producers, and that no monopolistic control of it shall ever come about.

LAND SETTLEMENT.

California's Two Colonies. The experiment in State land settlement started in 1918 under an act of the Legislature of 1917, resulted in the establishment of two State land settlement colonies, one at Durham, Butte County, and one at Delhi, Merced County. There has been appropriation by past legislatures (the last appropriation having been made in 1925) and expended in connection with land settlement in California $2,500,000, and obligations in connection with the colonies have been assumed by the State which now have a balance unpaid of $500,000—a total of $3,000,000.

An Unsuccessful Experiment. Conditions at these colonies after ten years' experience at Durham and nine years' at Delhi have proved conclusively that the operation of land settlement colonies as State projects is unsatisfactory both to the State and to the settlers. Investigation since the administration of land settlement was placed under the Department of Agriculture (July 29, 1927) has forced the conclusion that while the general agricultural depression of the past few years has been a substantial factor in accentuating an unsatisfactory situation, conditions and causes outside of the general depression were sufficient to prevent the success of the land settlement projects.

Situation Must Be Met. While in no degree responsible for the failure of this experiment, failure of the Delhi project and of the theory of State land settlement as a whole having been declared in a report to the Legislature of 1925 by a legislative committee of investigation, as well as in a report of a special investigation committee appointed by me in August, 1927, this administration is prepared to meet the situation frankly as we find it and to urge upon the Legislature the adoption of legislation having for its ultimate purpose the withdrawal of the State from these colonies under a readjustment program fair both to the State and to the settlers now on the projects.

QUARANTINE PROTECTION.

Necessity of Pest Control. Climatic and crop conditions in California are such that pests from all quarters of the globe can find a suitable environment if they are permitted to become established here. Inasmuch as the prosperity of the farmer depends upon producing his crop at the lowest possible cost, one of the important functions of the department is the enforcement of plant quarantine regulations so that pest control costs may be avoided. The inspection of commodities brought in by rail and water is a large feature of this work, and another large feature is the inspection of the automobile traffic arriving at California border points from other states. This latter phase of the work is one which must be carefully handled, as the traveling public is inclined to resent undue interference with its movements.

Some Concrete Cases. As to the importance of the work, and indicating the care with which the inspection is conducted, during a period of five weeks in October and November of this year, live cotton boll weevils, which do not exist in California, were taken on six different occasions at the stations at Daguerre and Yuma. One lot of cotton was found in the hat box of a lady from Oklahoma, the bolls containing eleven weevils. Six adult weevils and six weevils in immature stages were found in a suitcase in an automobile from Texas. For 1927, and the first eleven months of 1928, there were inspected at these border points 415,092 automobiles. Indicating the courtesy and dispatch with which the work is performed, there were lodged a total of only thirteen written complaints and two oral complaints against the inspection work, making an average of one complaint to each 14,427 automobiles.

Border Inspection Improvement. The department is continuing the enforcement of the quarantines designed to prevent the entrance of such pests as citrus canker and fruit flies in the plant field, and against foot and mouth and rinderpest and similar diseases of live stock. It is very important that these quarantine inspections shall be conducted under such conditions as may be least burdensome to the visitors and new residents who come to the State by automobile. Accordingly, I am recommending that whenever possible these inspection stations be combined with the motor vehicle stations on our borders; that these stations be made as attractive and comfortable as possible; and that such services be rendered the traveler as will make his entrance into the State a pleasant one, indicative of a real California hospitality.

DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION.

This is the department which has charge of our entire California school system up to the State University, which supplements it under care of a board of regents. There is no department of the State's activities lying closer to the hearts of the people than its schools. Liberal support for the education of our children is given ungrudgingly, for we recognize the duty of the State toward training its citizens of the future. California ranks very high in the standard of her schools. Liberal provision is made, both for the training of our teachers and for their salaries, and our people have a right to demand a school organization which will achieve a maximum of results.

Organization of Department. The Department of Education is under the control of an elective Superintendent of Public Instruction, who is ex officio director of the department, and a State Board of Education of ten members, appointed by the Governor. An attempt was made at last election to so increase the terms of the State Board as to remove them from the control of any one Governor, and to give to this board the power of selecting the Director of Education. Though intended to remove the schools from the possibility of political interference, it was not so understood by many voters, and the measure failed to pass. It is to be hoped that some modification of this plan may again be submitted, with such features removed or satisfactorily explained as were before deemed objectionable.

GROWTH OF CALIFORNIA SCHOOLS.

Historical Summary. The schools of California started with an elementary or grammar school system only. By 1867 a State school fund had been provided sufficient to support these schools for terms of five or six months without charge of tuition to pupils attending. In the following year the State University was established. The high school had its beginnings here and there in the larger cities, but did not become general until after the passage of the Upper High School Act in 1891, and it received no State support until 1902. There was little in this State a high school enrollment of 468,666. During the last ten years there has been a marked development of what we call the junior college.

Development of Junior Colleges. In June, 1928, there were thirteen colleges organized under this act reporting 4,391 units of average daily attendance and entitled under the law to claim $163,100 or over $18,000 in more of the available moneys. Two other colleges have since been added. If the enrollment in junior college departments of high schools organized under the 1917 law were included, the total junior college enrollment would be well in excess of 50,000 students. These figures do not include students in teachers colleges who are likely to transfer to a university at the beginning of the junior year and are therefore really junior college rather than teachers college students. I believe we need a better way of getting more clearly defined than at present, with possibly better provision for financing junior colleges.

Adult Education. One of the recent developments in California educational circles, which promises to do much toward bettering opportunity and adding to the pleasure and profit in life of the people, is the opportunity given for adult education. Emphasis is now being put on work for those who have difficulty in learning and womanhood, which will enrich and broaden their lives and give opportunity to study serious problems of a public character. In the last year 215 high schools, out of a total of 398, were carrying on work of this kind with an enrollment of 145,055. It is the belief of the Superintendent of Public Instruction that the school should be made a separate school unit, with classes and supporting as far as possible except those for special deserving citizenship.

EDUCATIONAL EFFICIENCY AND ECONOMY

Better Financial Set-up Needed. Our rather haphazard school system of California provides for three districts which vary greatly in size and resources. These are the elementary school district, the high school district, and the junior college district. Thus property lying within all of these three districts is subject to bonded indebtedness of the three corporations, and to the full payment of the budgets made by these different boards. This means serious overpricing up to a tax rate which is not always just, and too waste of expenditure which is sometimes excessive. This situation was recognized in the last Legislature, which gave some recommendations for a preliminary study of reorganization and possible re-appropriation for that purpose. The General Education Board invited the study appropriated by the State and the Department of Education has this study made under the direction of Dr. Leonard V. Koss of the Department of Education of the University of Minnesota. This study will be submitted to the Legislature for its information.

Recommendations for Further Study. In the report of Dr. Koss recommendations are made for a more comprehensive study, along the following lines:

1. The investigation of all districts, counties, or other areas of the State with the aim of proper reorganization and consolidation of districts and schools, and location of elementary and secondary schools (junior high schools, senior high schools, six-year high schools, junior colleges). This study would take into account important factors like community interests, possibilities of transportation, etc.
2. The thorough investigation of the financial problems of all districts, and schools, with the aim of working out a more satisfactory program of school support and equalization. Financial problems of secondary schools would not be considered in isolation, but in relation to responsibilities for elementary education.
3. The provision of a "basis for thoroughgoing curriculum construction and revision on the secondary school levels, inclusive of minor and senior high schools and junior colleges, one important purpose being to bring the curriculum up to the requirements of the high degree of preparation that has been attained in the schools of the State."

Proposal for Thorough School Survey. For the purpose of studying the above and similar problems, I recommend the passage of a measure authorizing a comprehensive survey of the school system by a commission of able lay members, and an adequate appropriation to be made therefor. Some national organization, such as the General Education Board, would undoubtedly be glad to share the expense of this survey, since its benefits would be nation wide. When a governmental function costs as many million dollars a year as education, it is good economy to make certain that it is returning 100 cents of value for each dollar expended. Meanwhile I believe that all measures designed to make changes in our schools, except those of minor character, should be referred to this commission.

Codification of School Law. The California School Law has consisted for many years of an accumulation of scattered statutes and sections from the four codes and the general laws. During the biennium the Codification Commission authorized by the last Legislature has been at work, and as a result there is submitted to the members of this Legislature a modern school code prepared under the immediate direction of the Legislative Counsel. Not all of the old statutes have been brought forward into the new code, since many of them are obsolete or of no concern to the administration of the public school system. No change has been made in the substance of the law as it now stands in the various codes and statutes. What is submitted to the Legislature is a reorganization and clarification of the laws under which the public school system has been operating.

OTHER EDUCATIONAL PROVISIONS.

Handicapped Children. The last Legislature sought to make less burdensome the lot of children handicapped from defective sight, hearing, or speech, or those who had been crippled through accidents or disease. The work for the blind is now on a good basis, and that for children with defective speech is better organized and is financed by the State. The needs of the State School for the Deaf in Berkeley will come to your attention through the report of a commission of your own body.

Schoolhouse Planning. The chief of this division in the Department of Education has checked over schoolhouse construction in thirty-six counties, costing in excess of $5,500,000. He has often been able to suggest better sanitary facilities, especially adequate water supply and sewage disposal, proper light, heat, and ventilation, better fire protection and such a building scheme as shall leave opportunity for expansion. The Department of Education feels that this work has been most useful and that it may profitably be extended to the giving of other expert financial advice to school districts; for it is generally conceded that school financing has not always been economical. It is very possible that such expert financial advice, given by a specially trained and unbiased State official to local school districts, would be welcomed by them, and would result in a saving of money to the districts as well as in better school facilities.

State Teachers Colleges. These institutions have developed into real colleges with courses of study leading to the degree of Bachelor of Arts. Beginning in September, 1930, those who desire to qualify to teach in the elementary schools of this State are required to complete four years' college work. California is the first State in the Union to take such action on a statewide basis, although some cities in the east and middle west now require their teachers to have four years of college education. This departure has necessarily demanded higher qualifications for the faculties of the teachers colleges, but the relationship between these institutions and the graduate school of the University of California has been fully adjusted.

Teachers College Plants. This enlarged scope of teachers colleges has made it desirable to study carefully the physical needs of the college plants. Each one of the colleges has been studied during this biennium with a view to developing a ten-year building program. At the present time no buildings are being erected at any of the colleges unless there has been outlined and accepted by the State Board of Education a program looking well into the future. Due to a fire which destroyed the main building of the college at Chico, we have been able to plan that institution from the beginning. The opportunity of use by the city schools of San Diego of the old college in that city has made it possible for the State to accept an adequate site, and plan on an enlarged building program for the San Diego Teachers College.

THE STATE LIBRARY.

Removal to New Home. The California State Library is an institution with which our people are too little acquainted. Although founded as long ago as 1850, it has until now never been in a position to show to the public the vast possibilities of service of which it is capable. Within the last few months, however, it has been removed from its cramped quarters in the Capitol to its beautiful, new, permanent quarters in a building designed especially for its use.

The Library in Its Present Setting. The library contains nearly 400,000 volumes and receives currently 1260 periodicals as well as 183 newspapers covering every section of the State. This material is made readily available to the public through four circulating departments—general reference, law and legislative reference, documents and California. These departments are all conveniently located on the third floor of the new building. On the second floor are the Librarian's offices, the department for the blind, the bindery and several study rooms. The fourth floor houses the catalog, order and periodicals departments, as well as splendid room for prints. The collection of prints, etchings, etc., built up by the library for the past few years is now available to the public for the first time.

Service to the Counties. The State Library is noted for its leadership in the library system of the State. It has fostered the establishment of county libraries so that now 46 of our 58 counties give service to all their people—rural as well as urban. There is no other State in the Union which has so well-organized a library system so widespread. Through the more than 4000 branches of the county libraries, as well as through city libraries when necessary, the State Library lends its books and spreads its service throughout the State.

Possibilities of Use. The State Library does not provide fiction and children's books, as it believes the local libraries should supply the demand for such material. It is essentially, therefore, a research library, a book collection for students in every line of thought. Through its law and legislative reference department it is of particular value to the lawyer and the legislator. Through its California department specializing in California literature and historical material it is of inestimable use to the student of the life and history of our great State. The general reference and the documents departments help the reader and research worker in less specialized lines of study. The people of the entire State are urged to make the freest use of the resources of the State Library.

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA

The total number of full-time students in the university this year will be close to 19,000. This does not count the more than 10,000 students in the summer sessions in Berkeley and Los Angeles, the approximately 35,000 adults registered in the University Extension Division, nor the much larger number of farmers and farmers' wives who are served through the Agricultural Extension Division.

Number of Graduates. Degrees conferred and certificates granted during the biennium numbered 2795 in 1927 and 5968 in 1928. There were also more than 200 certificates of completion of teacher-training programs. This astonishingly large number of graduates indicates the constant progress in the university's chief function, the higher education of the young men and women of the State.

Rapid Progress in Los Angeles. The new campus at Los Angeles is being rapidly equipped, on the basis of the bond issue provided two years ago, to provide the College of Letters and Science, now on the Vermont campus, during its September, 1932. It is expected that the 15-acre annex to the Vermont campus will be sold and the proceeds be used to provide a building on the new campus to accommodate the Teachers' College.

Possibilities of Growth. I believe that almost unlimited possibilities now exist for this new part of the university. The extremely large investment in the secondary schools of southern California, the long for higher education which exists in that portion of the State, the naturally beautiful site at Westwood, with its splendid possibilities for development, the very latest and best buildings which are being erected, the excellent teaching force which has been built up—all these advantages combine to make the University of California at Los Angeles a very outstanding educational institution.

MANY SPLENDID GIFTS

An International House. The university has received many valuable gifts and bequests during the biennium. Mr. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., has given $1,500,000 for an International House in Berkeley, a splendid residence structure with individual rooms for 300 students from foreign lands and for 150 American students, with purpose to enable the foreign and American students to live upon a plane of equality, thus permitting them to understand the worthy and valuable points in the various civilizations which they represent—all this in behalf of better mutual understanding and international peace.

Bowles Hall Dormitory. The beginning of a much needed dormitory system on the Berkeley campus has been made by the gift of Bowles Hall by Mrs. Philip E. Bowles, in memory of her husband, the late Philip E. Bowles, a former regent of the university.

Chair in Italian Culture. Many hundred, probably several thousand, loyal citizens of California and the United States, including citizens of Italian birth, of American birth but Italian ancestry, have presented the financial foundation for a Chair of Italian Culture in the university, and for scholarships enabling students in the University of California to study in Italian universities, and vice versa.

Giannini Foundation. The Bancitaly Corporation has recently given to the regents the sum of $1,500,000; $1,000,000 thereof to endow the Giannini Foundation of Agricultural Economics, and $500,000 to provide a new campus building (Giannini Hall) which will house the activities of the foundation as well as other agricultural services, with purpose to assist the farmers in California in solving their difficult economic problems.

Biology Professorship. The bequest of the late Dr. Morris Herzstein is providing an endowed professorship of biology for the university. Funds to benefit the Medical School have been received, or will soon be received, in accordance with the Harwood and Searles wills, and from other bequests, amounting to a total of nearly $1,000,000. Many other important fellowships and scholarships have been endowed by gift and by bequest in the past two years.

SOME RESEARCH ACTIVITIES

Time and Money for Research. Members of the faculties devote most of their vacation periods and nearly all of their spare time within the semesters to research activities. The Agricultural College affords one-third of its financial resources to research in behalf of the agricultural industry in California. Of the total sum appropriated by the university to research, two-thirds is expended through the College of Agriculture for the benefit of the farmers of California, and one-third is expended through all the other parts and departments of the university to increase our knowledge of chemistry, physics, medicine, astronomy, botany, zoology, the languages, the arts, history, philosophy, and the like. Referring to just a few of the leading results of researches conducted in many parts of the university, I may mention the following:

Studies Showing Costs of Production. In the College of Agriculture, cost-of-production studies have been made for twenty-five leading farm products, such as almonds, apricots, eggs, beef cattle, grapes, vegetables, oranges, peaches, prunes, etc., which have revealed reasons why some farmers make money and others do not in the production of these foods, and have pointed the way to the improvement of methods, all of which have resulted in greatly raising the average efficiency of thousands of farmers in this State. These studies will do their part in forestalling the evils of below-cost-of-production prices and over-production.

Work at Lick Observatory. At the Lick Observatory very decided contributions to our knowledge of the atmosphere of Mars have been made. A comprehensive check upon the correctness of the Einstein Theory has resulted from the photographs of the stars in the area surrounding the sun at the total eclipse of September, 1922, as observed by the William H. Crocker Expedition from the Lick Observatory to the northwestern part of Australia.

Health Work. The Hooper Foundation has rendered extremely valuable service in determining the safe conditions for the cooking and canning of those food products, vegetable and animal, which are especially susceptible to the poisonous state known as botulism; and in conducting a service for ameliorating cases of the dread disease, infantile paralysis, and to some extent preventing its inception. The Hooper Foundation appears to have discovered the manner in which the bacilli of leprosy enter the human body—from the soil through skin abrasions. This apparent fact, if sustained, will undoubtedly have consequences of immense value to the human race.

Other Scientific Studies. Members of the departments of Botany and Chemistry and of the College of Agriculture have obtained new and remarkable results from the exposition of sex cells of plants and of plants themselves to X-ray and other forms of radiation. These studies, and similar studies conducted elsewhere, give promise of discoveries relating to the processes of heredity.

Child Study. The Institute of Child Welfare is conducting promising studies on children of less than preschool age, relating to the behavior of children, habit-formation, control, and other fundamental problems of child life which have hitherto received little systematic study.

DEPARTMENT OF FINANCE.

This department administers the financial policies of the State government. Its routine work is carried on under a Division of Budgets and Accounts, a Division of Service and Supply, which includes the bureaus of Purchases, Printing and Capitol Buildings and Grounds, and a Division of Motor Vehicles. The Director of Finance, with the Chief of the Division of Service and Supply, and the State Controller constitute the State Board of Control, most of the former duties of which, by provision of legislation passed in 1927, have been taken over by the Department of Finance.

DIVISION OF BUDGETS AND ACCOUNTS.

Accounting Centralized. This division, in addition to working out the budgets, has supervision of the accounting in State offices and institutions. The policy has been established of centralizing this work as far as possible in Sacramento, the center of governmental activities. Offices for all State officers have likewise been provided here. Surveys and audits of all offices and institutions are in constant preparation, and the use of latest methods, including bookkeeping machines, is encouraged. One very useful service performed by the Division of Budgets and Accounts during the biennium, was the preparation of forms for county budgets as required by legislation enacted in 1927.

Money Made by Bond Sales. It has long been the custom for the State to employ certain funds by purchasing bonds, the rate of interest secured therefrom being higher than that received by lending to banks. The practice any keen business man would follow, however, of watching his bond holdings and selling when there is opportunity for a profit, was overlooked. The Director of Finance established the practice of selling, as well as buying, with a profit to the State thus far of $68,052,469, on a turnover of securities selling for $2,345,437.50.

Bond Issues Sold. Bond issues heretofore voted by the people, and held in reserve until the need for the money developed, have been sold as follows:

Veterans' Farm and Home Fund.....	$20,000,000 00
San Francisco Seawall No. 3 Fund.....	750,000 00
State and University Buildings.....	4,250,000 00

Premiums in the amount of $59,346 were received on these sales.

Property Auditor Appointed. Early in 1928, it was decided to create the position of property auditor, with the thought in mind that in the passing of years, possibly many pieces of valuable equipment had lost their usefulness at the various institutions and were lying idle, while at the same time they could be put to profitable use elsewhere. The results have been excellent. The position has justified itself many times over by the savings effected. Idle articles of machinery and equipment were transferred to places where they could be used, and seemingly worn-out articles turned over to the salvage departments of the institutions and worked over into useful equipment. Photographs have been taken of all State-owned buildings and a record and history of each institution has been written.

DIVISION OF SERVICE AND SUPPLY

Better Buying Policies. The Bureau of Purchases has made some important savings in purchases during the biennium. In fitting up the new State buildings at Sacramento, the saving on the one item of lumber for instance, brought in a credit last instead of placing special orders for individual departmental needs, amounted to about $11,000. Buying for the State Printer of certain classes of paper by continuing contract over several months has resulted in savings, and in lessening the stock of fine papers carried in the warehouse of the printing plant.

Buying Expense Small. Purchasing costs in the present biennium are but .67 of 1 per cent, as against .95 of 1 per cent in the previous biennium period. State purchasing cost is 5.4 per cent of the value of the merchandise. The policy of using products of California soil and factories is strictly adhered to whenever possible. Merchandise costs in the present biennium have been fairly stable with the exception of meats, which are higher and which increased feeding costs materially.

Service Rendered by State Printing Plant. The State Printing Office is an old institution in California and the wisdom of establishing it, and of carrying it on, is not questioned in well-informed circles. It is the largest share of the total cost of Chicago. The building and site represent an investment of $250,000, and the cost of machinery and equipment is a half million more. The requirements of the work are such as to necessitate carrying on hand a quarter of a million dollars' worth of paper stocks. Its entire pay roll is under the regulations of the Civil Service Commission. In order to serve the State with more convenience and at less expense than is possible under the present conditions, a plan has been worked out for concentrating the stock of materials carried at the State Printing Office, the State school authorities, the supplies for the Motor Vehicle Division, and the ballot paper required by law, to be kept on hand by the Secretary of State, and this without recourse to the general fund of the State.

Printing Output Large. The State Printing Office output is approximately $700,000 per year, about 60 per cent thereof being public school textbooks, the other 40 per cent work for the various State departments. The other two business at a loss of cost plus 5 per cent, which is to meet replacement charges. Employment number 207 in normal times. The pay roll is approximately one-half of production costs. The past calendar year showed school book production of 1,573,718 books. It is estimated that California school textbooks cost about 60 per cent of what they would cost if produced under private commercial practice. Two very large jobs were turned out by the printing office in connection with the elections of 1928: the Sponsorship Bill, 2,110,175 copies, costing $23,500, and the Constitutional Amendments, 2,500,000 copies, costing $30,690.55.

State Offices in State-owned Buildings. Completion of two new buildings of the Capitol group in Sacramento, the Library and Courts Building and the other Building, and the taking over of the Strick Building now known as the Public Works Building, have provided housing for all State activities in State-owned buildings. The State can be especially proud of the handsome structure which is the home of the State Library, Department of Education, Supreme and appellate courts and Attorney General. The furnishings of this fine structure are in keeping with the dignity of the offices it contains, and it offers for inspection several fine works of art in sculpture and mural decoration. The Strick Building, on Eleventh and P streets, was acquired for the Department of Public Works by purchase on exceptionally favorable terms, thus terminating a long term lease which would have been exceedingly unprofitable. It provides quarters for all the divisions of that department and for motor vehicle activities.

Building in Los Angeles and San Francisco. It is anticipated that plans in process of formulation in Los Angeles will result in the offer of a site there for a State building, funds for the erection of which were long ago provided by a bond issue. Consideration is being given for an addition to the State Building in San Francisco, to provide additional accommodations there. When these two building projects are brought to conclusion, all the State activities in these three cities should get out of the "rent-paying" class.

Remodeling of Capitol. Remodeling of the Capitol, made necessary to accommodate changed conditions resulting from the shifting about of offices, is still in progress, but will be finished soon. Along with the remodeling has gone a general renovation. A new vault will be built for the State Treasurer to provide greater safety for State funds and securities, and added convenience for that officer. Flood lighting of the Capitol dome is a great attraction to visitors in and residents of the Capital City, and was accomplished at comparatively small cost. The group of Capitol buildings is now a distinct credit to the commonwealth, fast approaching outstanding prominence in the Union of States.

MOTOR VEHICLE DIVISION ACTIVITIES.

Prompt Delivery of License Plates. This division has functioned promptly during the license renewal period of 1928 and 1929. There has been little congestion and the long lines of waiting applicants are a thing of the past. In order to better the service to the people, additional branch offices have been opened, the last at Long Beach. The large use of these branch offices has demonstrated the wisdom of the policy of providing them. The establishment of checking and inspection stations at the places where the several interstate highways enter California, has pleased newcomers, who are very grateful for the free service given in the way of information and visitor permits, while at the same time the traffic in stolen cars has been definitely lessened, through having officers at these points. In dealing with the public, uniform courtesy is required of all State officers, and the "hard-boiled" traffic cop of yesterday is now a thing of the past, so far as the State service is concerned.

COOPERATION WITH INSTITUTIONS.

Resulting Economies and Efficiencies. The Department of Finance has cooperated cordially with the Department of Institutions and with the individual units in that department, to work out all possible economies and to contribute toward efficient management. Conferences have been held to work out simplified routine, to the end that mutual problems should be understood; superintendents and business managers of the institutions have conferred with the buyers of the purchasing bureau and with the members of the accounting staff, with profit to all. The department prepared charts showing the expected growth of the various institutions, this information being necessary in the preparation of budgets and in the consideration of the ten-year building program referred to elsewhere. All institutions were visited and inspected as is required by law.

SPECIAL DUTIES IMPOSED BY LAW.

American River Dam at Folsom. Chapter 569, Statutes of 1927, provided for the impounding and utilization of the waters of the American River at Folsom for flood control, domestic use, irrigation, power development or other public purposes. It authorized the Department of Finance to acquire property and to lease present and acquired lands of the State for proper consideration to other private individuals or corporations, or to a political subdivision of the State, for the purposes set forth in the act, with the provision that such lease might be recaptured by the State of California for a fair price. One year was allowed for the working out of the contract.

New Legislation Necessary. Investigations were entered upon immediately following the adjournment of the legislative session and for a time it seemed as if an acceptable lease could be made with private interests for the construction of the dam under such terms as would permit the State to take over the project at any period during the lease, if that should be desirable. The flood of March, 1928, however, was of unprecedented volume, as affecting the American River. It was then seen that the proposed dam would not be sufficient in the event of a recurrence of so great a run-off. It was necessary to consider the project in the light of added information, which revealed that a larger storage capacity was required involving much greater expense. The State reluctantly gave up the project, under the existing statute. It is recommended that the enterprise be not abandoned, however, but that necessary legislative action be taken for renewed effort in this matter.

Stockton Deeper Water Channel. The State has cooperated cordially with the city of Stockton in this fine enterprise. Approximately one-half of the appropriation of $419,000 made by the legislative session of 1927 has been expended in the purchase of right of ways and areas for the dumping of dredged materials.

RECLAMATION FINANCES.

Heavy Burden of Debt. At the advent of the present administration, the affairs of the State Reclamation Board, which is the operating unit of the Sacramento and San Joaquin Drainage District, were seriously involved. An accumulated debt of nearly $16,000,000, principal and interest, lay as a charge against the lands benefited by the Sacramento River Flood Control Project, with interest charges adding to the burden, which had long since become more than the land could pay. No sound financial structure had been provided for the clearing of this enormous debt. An $8,000,000 bond issue, intended to ameliorate the desperate situation surrounding the Sutter-Butte By-Pass Project No. 6, had proved unsalable. Legislation was enacted in 1927 looking to the ultimate solution of this problem, the first step being to create the Bureau of Reclamation, under the Department of Public Works, and assigning to it all matters related to the construction, operation and maintenance of flood control units.

Nearly Two Millions Cleared. In sequence followed provisions for the cancellation of the unsalable bond issue of the Sutter-Butte By-Pass Project, the collection of the principal in semiannual installments of not less than 3 1/2 per cent, and the later refunding of the remaining indebtedness of the project into forty-year bonds, under what is known as the Sacramento and San Joaquin Drainage District Refunding Act. Since December 1, 1926, $1,349,262.67 of the indebtedness of this project has been cleared, represented by warrants and interest. In addition, there are now in the hands of the county treasurers of Glenn, Colusa, Yolo, Sutter, and Sacramento counties canceled warrants and cash amounting to $573,800, awaiting the outcome of a friendly suit now before the Supreme Court. The refunding act has been put in operation and two 3 1/2 per cent calls have been made on the original Sutter-Butte By-Pass assessment. Under this call $392,400 principal in warrants was retired. Some of the warrants were acquired by the landowners, through the activities of the State Department of Finance in their behalf, for as low as 32 1/2 per cent of face value and interest combined, and these were used at face value to pay the 34 per cent calls.

Saving to Farmers. Through inaction in the past, Feather River Loans Fund No. 7 had reached a condition where the original assessment for $250,000 had not topped more than $100,000 by the accumulation of interest charges. There was the chance of spreading a supplemental assessment to cover the deficiency or finding some other way out of the difficulty. After much negotiation, settlement upon terms most advantageous to the landowners in the assessed area, is in prospect. By agreement between the Department of Finance and the majority warrant holders, arrangements have been made for them to take the proposed loans here in exchange for their warrants; at a premium which will absorb the entire cost the payment of the original assessment, thus avoiding the necessity of increasing a supplemental assessment. The operation of this agreement will result in two-thirds of 25 per cent to the farming community of that part of Sutter County in which the assessed area lies.

The Curry Bill. The situation is greatly improved by the adoption by the last session of Congress of the Curry Flood Control Bill, which commits the federal government to increased financial participation with money to be loaned by the Sacramento River. Under this act the federal government is pledged to provide a total of $17,600,000 to the work, and the State of California participating with the State government and the landowners in the flood.

STATE CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION

Civil Service Practice. The commission is required under the Civil Service Act to classify and grade all positions in State government except those previously exempted by legislative enactment. It is then required to prepare and maintain, through examinations, to determine the "merit, efficiency and fitness" of applicants, eligible lists for each class and grade of position, to fix and regulate promotion, and to supervise such employment within the terms of the act. Civil service has been in effect in California since 1913. Its law is regarded as one of the best enacted in the United States and the service is regarded as efficient and satisfactory.

Freedom from Politics. The State personnel under this system is completely free from the evils in public and private employment where favoritism, nepotism, and employment are not in effect. Under this system, which includes a better selection of personnel can be had than is possible in the best executive scheme, time is fully occupied with the work of his department or division. Requests for employment are met by reference to the Civil Service Commission and there is, therefore, no loss resulting from a useless consideration of the importunities of applicants, mostly unqualified for public employment. The importance of a high standard of efficiency is reflected in the annual pay roll of the State, which now runs into many millions of dollars. The recent survey of the State Personnel Commission shows that there are now 7,553 State employees who may be eligible to a retirement fund if it is adopted, with an annual pay roll of $13,284,459.

Extent of Civil Service. The total number of positions in classified service for which separate examinations are given is approximately 635. Total number of employees in classified service on September 27, 1928, 8986. Of this total 2777 or 30.9 per cent are engaged in labor or skilled trades, 2233 or 24.8 per cent in clerical work, 1391 or 15.4 per cent in nursing service at State hospitals, etc., 1027 or 11.4 per cent in technical engineering work, 533 or 5.9 per cent in agricultural work, 291 or 3.2 per cent in fish and game conservation, 259 or 2.8 per cent in educational work, 89 or 1 per cent in medical work, 88 in public health work, 84 in social service work, 79 in forestry work, 58 in police and criminal investigation, 49 in employment and personnel work, and 38 in library science.

CALIFORNIA STATE FAIR

State Board of Agriculture. The California State Fair is administered by the State Board of Agriculture, of which there are twelve members. The fair is held each year at the State Fair Grounds in Sacramento and has grown to be an outstanding event in agricultural expositions of the western coast. The fair of 1928 excelled any previous event of the kind. The attendance was 281,000. Thirty-nine counties made exhibits of their agricultural and other products. These counties included the most southern as well as the most northern counties of the State.

Exhibits in Great Variety. The fair contained many other displays than those strictly agricultural, although the latter predominated. The live stock exhibits were larger than ever before and the quality was superior, indicating development of that industry. The new machinery building was thrown open, and in it was shown a vast variety of machinery of interest to California farmers. The educational department has grown to be one of the prominent features of the fair, bringing out school demonstrational work from every section of the State. The ten-cent building program is meaning much to the various minor departments in providing adequate building facilities to house the many exhibits. The California High School Agricultural Boys' Camp is now a regular feature of the State Fair. There were 325 boys this year in "Camp Lillard" and an additional 100 boys participated in live stock and dairy products contests. The State Fair is proving a fine educational influence with the young people of the State.

Next Year Diamond Jubilee. The State Agricultural Society was organized in San Francisco in 1854, held the first State Fair in Music Hall in that city in October of that year and the stock show and the races were held at the old Pioneer Race Track. The first president was Mr. F. W. Macondry. Early exhibitors were Senator Deland Stanford, the Spreckels family, L. J. Rose, "Lucky" Baldwin, and other prominent people of that time. The show was subsequently held in Sacramento, San Jose, Stockton and Marysville. In 1859 it returned to Sacramento where it has been held ever since. It is proposed for the 1929 Fair that it celebrate the seventy-fifth anniversary of the organization by holding a Western States Exposition. With that in mind, all western states have been invited to participate. The long and fine history of the California State Fair should make the Diamond Jubilee a notable event.

DEPARTMENT OF INDUSTRIAL RELATIONS.

No function of State government touches the interests of employees and employers as closely as this department. All the labor laws come under its jurisdiction, and therefore the successful administration of the Department of Industrial Relations is of major importance. Five divisions constitute the department: Division of Industrial Accidents and Safety (Industrial Accident Commission), Division of Labor Statistics and Law Enforcement, Division of State Employment Agencies, Division of Sanitation and Housing, and Division of Industrial Welfare. The director who supervises the activities of the different divisions is also chairman of the Industrial Accident Commission. The consolidation of work, the prevention of overlapping, and the greatest service possible to California's citizens, are among the accomplishments of this department. Plans are in contemplation to further consolidate different activities of the divisions, the outcome of the experiences of the last few months.

SUMMARY OF THE WORK.

Six-Day Week in Oil Industry. The Department of Industrial Relations is actively engaged in work that benefits labor in larger fields. During the early part of 1928 the six-day week was introduced into the oil industry of California, in place of the seven-day week. Officials of the department were energetic in furthering this industrial change so universally approved, not only by the oil workers and the public, but also by the oil producers.

Imperial Valley Strike. A strike of Mexican laborers in the Imperial Valley in the summer of 1928 at one time seemed to have dangerous possibilities. Conferences with the interested parties were held by representatives of the department. A settlement of the dispute followed. The conferences are being continued so that better labor conditions will prevail in Imperial County, following the removal of grievances, some of them well founded. An agreement has been reached to pay wages weekly, without the retention of any percentage, as was formerly the custom.

Age Limit for Workers. The department called public attention to the tendency to discriminate against workers because of age limits, the limit in some occupations being as low as 35 years. This mistaken policy has been condemned as anti-social and unworthy in every respect.

Training in First Aid. The training of traffic officers in first aid was advocated by the department, and has been approved by those in charge of traffic on the State highways. Lives may be saved by immediate care, thus avoiding the delay of transportation to the nearest hospital, at a cost of precious minutes or hours after an automobile accident.

DIVISION OF INDUSTRIAL ACCIDENTS AND SAFETY.

Prevention of Industrial Deaths and Injuries. The Workmen's Compensation, Insurance and Safety Act is administered by this division. Its main purpose is to prevent industrial deaths and injuries. It is the court to which all disputed cases are referred. There has been an increase in death accidents and contested cases this biennium, a fact which is inseparable from the heavy growth of California's population. In carrying on a sound social policy toward these industrial catastrophes, the element in cost is in part assessed to business, as it should be. California averages more than 800 industrial accidents, with at least two fatalities each working day. The total fatalities in 1928 will be larger than usual because of the St. Francis dam disaster. The greatest toll of human life taken in an industrial accident prior to this was that of the Argonaut mine in 1922, when forty-seven lives were taken.

Safety Work. State officers and insurance experts are now conferring to make uniform safety requirements for machinery and places of employment. Uniformity in these things will be welcomed by business interests. The spirit of cooperation which has grown up between the business interests of the State and those who are associated in the cause of accident prevention is remarkable, and is constantly increasing.

Settlement of Disputes. Cases in which controversy develops must be decided by the Industrial Accident Commission. It is a notable fact that it is the tendency of the Supreme Court, more and more, to throw upon the commission the determination of disputes, this being evidenced by the general denial of writs of mandamus in those cases where it is considered the appeal should not be allowed.

State Compensation Insurance Fund. The total assets of the State fund total $7,211,500.25. The excess earnings over expenditures totaled $707,027.90 for the first nine months of 1928. The management of the State fund has resulted in the selection of expert insurance men in the management and the perfection of the best business methods. An average sum of a little more than $1,000,000 a year is returned to the employers who take out their policies in the State Compensation Insurance Fund.

DIVISION OF LABOR STATISTICS AND LAW ENFORCEMENT

Collections for Wage Earners. The greater part of the work of this division is its service for men and women who have worked and whose wages are not forthcoming. More than $1,000,000 yearly is collected in wages owing to men and women. More than $50, and this service is performed without cost. I usually collect for my men, but, in the event of refusal, I do demand a certified check covering the balance. The often the small amount of wages due is all that stands between men and temporary income, and the service is therefore of inestimable value to the wage earner, and at the same time it often saves cities and counties from the necessity of extending aid.

Many Branch Offices. Branches of this division are maintained in San Francisco, Los Angeles, Sacramento, Oakland, Stockton, San Jose, Fresno, Bakersfield, Santa Barbara, San Bernardino, Long Beach, San Diego, and El Centro. These offer the regional and necessary to make this department of the work a success, and they are visited every day by men and women seeking advice, assistance, and the enforcement of labor legislation.

Protection for Women and Girls. The laws protecting women and girls in industry, and those which supervise private employment agencies, are given especial attention. Minors of school age are protected against employers who would have them, when possible, in violation of law. The eight-hour law for women protects constant watchfulness.

Complaints Investigated. In the last five years, complaints investigated have increased 100 per cent, numbering 32,440 in 1928. Unpaid wages collected in 1928 amounted to more than $1,000,000. Criminal actions against violators of labor laws numbered 1629 in the last calendar year, as compared with only 1041 in that number only five years ago. The increase in the number of complaints has been caused by the fact that a total of 64,365 complaints of labor law violations were received and investigated during the last biennial period. Wage complaints for the same time were almost as many, numbering 57,189. Violations of the Private Employment Agency Act were 2160, charges under the eight-hour law for women were 2904, child labor complaints were 1374, and all other complaints, 1944.

DIVISION OF HOUSING AND SANITATION

Labor Camps Are Clean. This division has charge of the 2700 labor camps in California. Into them pour tens of thousands of laborers. No less than 200,000 persons lived in these camps in the last two years, and most of this population consisted of women and girls. Formerly, dissatisfactory conditions here largely went unnoticed. Previous acute dissatisfaction and revolt, because of lack of proper accommodations, absence of sanitary conditions, and other needs of the kind, have disappeared. California's labor camps are clean. They are regularly inspected. The department furnishes blue prints and plans for those about to start operations of this kind, so that these temporary places of abode will prove works of art, hygienic and comfortable, and the people inhabiting them feel they are not prisoners in a cage.

Housing Is Bettered. The Housing Act is enforced by this division and requires constant inspection. It is our determination to keep slum conditions out of this form and to see that sanitation and modern life is kept up with modern methods. Many old unsanitary hotels and boarding houses have been condemned and vacated.

Jail Plans Approved. A recent departure in this work is to approve plans for new county jails. These places of custody in the past have been very bad, and the remedy is still far from being complete, yet considerable progress has been made.

Help for Foreigners. Immigrants and those of foreign nationalities come with their complaints to our office. They are talked to in their own languages and are helped to become good citizens of their new country. In the last calendar year, 13,735 immigrants of forty-one different nationalities declared their intention of becoming citizens of the United States.

DIVISION OF STATE EMPLOYMENT AGENCIES

Work Constantly Increasing. This division reports that 339,948 men and women secured positions in the two-year period ending June 30, 1928, the numbers placed increasing steadily each year. It is hoped to extend the types of labor called for by employers, so that the agencies can render increased service to those who are unemployed, without a fee of any kind to the State. There are 10 permanent free employment offices in San Francisco, Los Angeles, Sacramento, Oakland, Stockton, San Jose, Fresno, Bakersfield, San Bernardino, and San Diego.

Seasonal Employment Agencies. The enlargement of seasonal State employment offices has proved pleasing to the farmers and fruit growers of California. During 1928 seven such offices were opened, in Lodi, Marysville, Chico, Newcastle, Hollister, Modesto, and Brawley. In each instance the report was that the fruit was picked without loss to the growers, and that those seeking this kind of work were placed in direct communication with orchardists, thus saving the wearisome search for employment.

Amount Saved Through State Agencies. The average fee per job charged by private employment agencies during the years 1926 and 1927 was $3.98. If the men and women who secured positions through the State employment agencies had paid the average fee mentioned, the total cost to the 330,948 applicants for work would have been $1,317,173 during the two fiscal years ending June 30, 1928.

DIVISION OF INDUSTRIAL WELFARE.

Minimum Wage Law. This division administers the minimum wage law for women and minors. Its duties are to fix and enforce the minimum wage, maximum hours of labor consistent with the health and welfare of women and minors, and sanitary standards wherever they are employed. Without this law, the unorganized condition of women in industry would make them easy prey for those who would pay low wages, work them long hours, and provide them with unhealthy working surroundings. As an outcome of this beneficial legislation millions of dollars have been diverted into the pockets of those solely in need of the money, because of the minimum wage which has been set and enforced, and actual wage collections delivered to the workers wherever an underpayment of the minimum wage has been found.

Attitude of Employers. One noteworthy fact in connection with minimum wage enforcement is the attitude of nearly all the large employers. They favor the law. They know that indiscriminate wage cutting would follow its repeal. The employers in the canning industry pay a large proportion of the audit system cost, insuring that piece rates and overtime rates will be paid according to law. Men in charge of business operations in the cities likewise give their support to the only means of defense now available for thousands of women and girls.

Sanitary Inspections. In the last biennium over 1400 sanitary plant inspections were made by agents of this division, which greatly increased the comfort and health of many thousands of women in industry. During this period, also, the sanitary provisions set for other industries were extended to cover motion picture studios and special sanitary requirements made for women employed "on location."

Minimum Wage Laws Justified. The mass of statistical data which has been collected and tabulated since the Industrial Welfare Commission was first appointed in 1913 proves conclusively that the claims of former opponents of minimum wage legislation were not founded on fact.

DEPARTMENT OF INSTITUTIONS.

On January 1, 1927, the various institutions of the State included six mental hospitals, two homes for the feeble minded (only one of which was in operation), three correctional schools, and the Home for the Adult Blind in Oakland. The population of these institutions at that time was as follows:

	Population	Capacity
Mental hospitals.....	12,965	11,689
Homes for feeble-minded.....	2,061	2,003
Correctional schools.....	1,049	1,055
Adult blind home.....	132	143

This showed for the mental hospitals an excess population of 1276 above the number they were designed to accommodate. Although the figures might indicate that the homes for feeble-minded, the correctional schools, and the home for the blind were not full on that particular date, as a matter of fact there were nearly 1000 persons seeking admission to these three classes of institutions. This is just one of the many reasons which justify a building program over a long period of years.

Necessity of Rapid Turnover. The large number of the adult population to be cared for at some time in our mental hospitals, the number of children, either feeble-minded or possibly destined for a correctional institution, the number of blind who will probably require training—all make it apparent that the paramount duty of this department is to establish a policy of treatment and training in its institutions which will lead to rehabilitation and adjustment, and to a more rapid turnover of the population. Otherwise the State would acquire such a large number of institutional inmates that it could hardly stand up under the staggering financial burden of providing funds for the permanent housing, care, and maintenance of this vast army of future wards.

Personal Attention of Director. Most of these twelve institutions, as well as a thirteenth, recently added and later to be described, are visited monthly by the director of the department. At his early visits, eight hundred patients were found sleeping on the floor. Beds were immediately provided, and now all patients in hospitals and homes have clean, warm beds, and sleep in well-ventilated quarters.

Bi-monthly conferences of superintendents and business managers have been inaugurated, at which problems concerning the institutions are discussed, thereby bringing the superintendents to better understanding of each others problems and those of the department, and making for a more harmonious and efficient administration.

Study of Food Requirements. A supervising dietitian has been appointed who visits the institutions regularly, and furnishes expert advice on the preparation and service of the food. The saving of food by the reduction of waste has resulted in one institution alone, more than equalled the dietitian's salary for the year period. Cafeteria service has been established in three institutions, and the effect upon the patients themselves has been so excellent that plans are being made to adopt it in other institutions.

Training in Industries. An industrial supervisor has been appointed who visits monthly all the institutions, stimulating the farm production and the industrial activities, providing for the education of normal children and the training of the another, as well as the exchange of commodities between institutions thereby effecting a great saving to the State.

Other New Departures. For the first time in the State's history an intelligent survey of the needs of State institutions has been made, and a definite ten-year construction program has been projected which will take care of future conditions on the greatest possible saving to the taxpayer. For the first time also complete records are being kept of all patients, and of those on periods of discharge. This permits a follow up in each case, and makes possible an accurate evaluation of the treatment and training in the various institutions.

EIGHT HOUR DAY FOR WOMEN

Statement of the Problem. One of the problems which must be solved by our State institutions is the full adoption of an eight-hour day for women employees. The eight-hour day for women in private employment was made a law by California for 16 years, and yet possibly because of administrative expenses that cannot be escaped in reducing the number of hours from twenty to eight and thus meeting an extra shift, as well as the fact that those attending patients suffer similarly to those of graduate or registered nurses, who are exempt from the provisions of the eight-hour law, this law has not been applied to the institutions of the State. It is certainly not right, however, to insist upon this law as for private institutions are exempted, and continue to operate on the longer day in our own State institutions of the future.

Difficulties in Solving It. It is clear that this eight-hour day for these workers should go into effect as soon as possible, but I believe that the adjustment must be made gradually, owing to the physical difficulties of the situation. The extra expense to the State will amount to a considerable sum, but the great difficulty, however, is in the new buildings necessary to provide accommodations for the enlarged staff of employees made necessary by the change. This difficulty can be solved much easier by anticipating these conditions over a period of years and a building program to adequately solve the existing needs as they appear.

Necessary Steps Toward Solution. The Division of Industrial Welfare under the Department of Industrial Relations has for some time been making a survey of this problem. The Director of Institutions is very anxious that it be solved as soon as possible, and he advises that as to all women employees not actually engaged in the care of the sick, steps are now being taken to adjust the eight-hour day immediately in all State institutions. In order that all women employees subject to the law may as quickly as practicable be put on an eight-hour basis, I recommend that this department, the Department of Industrial Relations, and the Department of Finance make a study of the problem during the coming year, applying the eight-hour day as rapidly as financial and internal adjustments can be made and recommending for succeeding budgets such physical additions to existing plants as may be necessary to take care of the increased force of institutional employees.

MENTAL HOSPITALS.

Number and Treatment of Patients. Population of the mental hospitals on December 1, 1928, was 13,953. The total discharges for the last 24 months amounted to 5031, as compared to 4317 for the corresponding period ending December 1, 1926. In accordance with the new policy, patients committed to mental hospitals are now considered as sick people, and are given individual care, treatment, and attention. Our mental hospitals are now being operated as hospitals, and not as custodial or penal institutions.

Research. A new research laboratory has been planned, which will serve all State hospitals, and where experimental work can be done. A complete study and research in connection with all epileptic cases in State institutions is now being made, which promises much valuable information in the treatment and cure of this disease.

Clinics. Out-patient clinics have been established in communities near the various hospitals, where people suffering from early symptoms of mental disease can be brought for diagnosis and treatment, where patients on parole can be brought for further examination, and where the public generally can become acquainted with the nature and treatment of mental disturbance which leads to insanity. It is felt that these clinics will save many people from commitment to State hospitals, and also reduce the number of commitments of patients who are on parole.

Restraint. All forms of cruel and inhuman mechanical restraint have been abolished, and in their place has been substituted hydrotherapy of continuous warm baths, outdoor exercise, and vocational training. Kindness has supplanted force. More than 200 disturbed patients who, eighteen months ago, were crissed up in strait-jackets are now treated by the new method with far better results.

Recreation. A rule has been adopted which requires all patients to be given at least three hours daily outdoor exercise. This has resulted in better health for the patients, and the "prison pallor" so often seen on people long confined indoors is fast disappearing among the patients in California hospitals.

Vocational Training. All patients who are able are urged to do some kind of work. Occupational therapy has come to play an important part in the treatment of mental disease. Where possible, training is given along the kind of work that the patient would follow upon his release from the institutions.

Segregation of Patients. Tubercular patients have been transferred to Patton State Hospital, where they may have the benefit of the warmer climate and sunshine. Criminal insane have been transferred to Mendocino, where custodial quarters have been provided to care for this dangerous type.

Paroles and Discharges. Paroles and discharges have been greatly increased through added social service workers and the establishment of out-patient clinics. Patients now discharged, through proper and adequate supervision, are enabled to make an adjustment and in practically every instance resume their place in society.

HOUSES FOR THE FEEBLE-MINDED.

Population of the Two Homes. Population of the homes for feeble-minded on December 1, 1928, was 2410. The total discharges and paroles for the last 23 months amounted to 1292 as compared to 751 for the corresponding period ending December 1, 1926. Most of these are at the Southern State Home, which is filled to capacity, and which has 810 applications on the waiting list. The better institution, Pacific Colony, will have no accommodations for 480 by the end of the year. There are 239 applications on file for admission to this institution. 52 inmates having just been discharged from two independent private institutions in Los Angeles County.

New Institutions and Services. At the Southern State Home construction has begun on a new and modern hospital building with a bed capacity of 100. An additional 500 beds has been added to the hospital service, equivalent to that of the hospital and infirmary, giving those children better use of their limbs, and reducing the amount of physical care necessary. The building program of Pacific Colony is also being pushed to completion, in order to accommodate the increasing population for which beds are being built.

Savings Through Social Service. The social service staff at the Southern State Home has been increased in view of the necessity of placing as many as possible of the feeble-minded cases in families. The success in this staff is an illustration of the fact that the State and the social service workers make different means to become self-supporting and independent. Illustrating this point, 108 cases on independent basis in San Francisco Bay district, through work of the State, $7,926.87 in savings, but only amount of $200,000 in actual savings to the State of $7,726.87, due to cases being made the institution being built. The savings of this group for the year was $47,52.

COMPARISON OF SCHOOLS.

Placement in the Schools. For three years past schools, the Public School of Los Angeles, Western State School, and Vincent School for Girls, using a majority of feeble-minded children, have been able to place in the schools. On December 1, 1928, this group had a total of 1014, a decrease of 104, or 10.2 per cent. This shows the progress of 11 in placement and 114 in removal. During the 12-month period we could place more than 1500 inmates and 1000 discharged and released as against 1000 committed and 1500 released in the same period the year immediately preceding.

Vocational Training. Specialized vocational training is being carried on at all levels, from the high school to the college level. Vocational training is being carried on in the form of day training, and in the form of night training. The day training is being carried on in the form of day training, and in the form of night training. The night training is being carried on in the form of day training, and in the form of night training. clearing house for relations between the separate activities, and a representative to speak for the common interests of all in the meetings of the Governor's Council.

Activities All Regulatory. One of these activities deals with regulation of public utilities, although it still operates under its old name of Railroad Commission. Its functions are rather definitely fixed by the constitution, and the establishment of any relation between it and a departmental director, in the absence of constitutional change, would necessarily be limited merely to the work of reporting. The other five activities deal with the regulation of banking, insurance, corporate securities, building and loan associations and real estate. It is clear that there are competitive or conflicting interests among these groups as well as large elements of mutual interest. The form of organization which will be suggested will, I believe, adequately protect the necessary powers of each of these divisions and at the same time give to each the advantage of cooperative contact with the others and of official relationship with the executive branch of the government.

BANKS.

Growth in Bank Resources. The superintendent of banks reports California banking conditions as sound. During the past two years there has been a substantial increase in their capital, surplus and undivided profits. On October 3, 1928, the capital account figure was $442,688,000, representing an increase of 46 per cent since July 1 of the preceding year. Total resources of all banks in the State on October 3, 1928, amounted to $4,115,990,000, as compared with $3,860,165,000 on October 10, 1927—a gain of $255,525,000 in a little less than a year. Total bank resources have almost doubled during the past decade and per capita resources have very substantially increased during the same period.

Savings Bank Increases. There has also been a phenomenal growth in savings accounts during recent years. On June 30, 1928, there were $1,852,088,000 in all such accounts, representing the savings of approximately 3,000,000 individuals. If there were only one savings account to each person, this would represent practically our entire adult population. Savings accounts increased by more than $150,000,000 during the year ending June 30, 1928, during which period there has also been a marked increase, both in the number of depositors, and in the average amount credited to each.

Changes in Bank Ownership. The significant outward changes which have occurred in banking during the past two years have had to do partly with changes in ownership and identity, and partly with the tendency toward larger banking units, whose interests extend to all parts of the State. During the year 1927, 111 changes in the ownership of banks took place. A few of these changes were mergers, some were consolidations, but the greater majority were outright purchase and sale agreements. In all some $60,000,000 in capital stock and $700,000,000 in resources changed ownership. By the early part of 1928, changes in ownership and identity had become less frequent, and the situation was apparently stabilized. At the present time there are in California 499 state and national banks, which, together with their 822 branches, make a total of 1321 banking establishments in the State.

California's Economic Conditions. The economic situation in California is, on the whole, satisfactory. While there are certain areas and industries in the State which present difficult problems of readjustment, the State, taken as a whole, has prospered during the past two years. As already noted, bank resources show a very healthy increase. Manufacturing, as measured by average daily production, has made satisfactory progress. Agriculture, except in some commodities such as citrus fruits, still leaves much to be desired. Building activity is more quiet, but the general employment situation in 1928 was distinctly better than that of the previous year.

CORPORATE SECURITIES.

Corporation Commissioner. This office has developed into one of the most important units in the State's function of regulating investments. Its volume of work during the last biennium is the greatest since the department was organized on January 1, 1915. Securities amounting to $2,886,302,288 have been authorized during this period. That the department is functioning in the interest of investors, as well as for the protection of corporations, is shown by the fact that during the past two years moneys and other valuable properties, recovered by the department for purchasers of securities in which questionable elements were involved, total $722,625. To make possible the handling of this increased volume of work the department has, during the past year, been completely reorganized, with its various responsibilities segregated and coordinated. The number of separate matters handled during the two years is 43,483.

Work Is Preventive. The work of the department is intended to be preventive of loss rather than to be a supplement to the courts in the effort to recover losses already sustained. Many cases of fraud and attempts at fraud in securities transactions have come to the attention of the department and the operations stopped or prevented through the cooperation of the newspapers and radio broadcasting stations of the State. A survey recently completed showed that many finance, mortgage and related companies have become involved in financial difficulties. It was, therefore, deemed necessary to take steps which would tend to cure this unfortunate situation. Regulations have been prepared which, it is hoped, will prevent a recurrence of the condition referred to. There is ample room for changes in the Corporate Securities Act which would strengthen that law. With this in view, suggestions for amendments and changes were submitted to the State Bar Association more than a year ago and are now being considered by that body. Any recommendations by the State bar probably will be embodied in bills to be presented to the Legislature.

INSURANCE.

California's Rank in Insurance. The problems of regulating insurance have been very pressing during the past two years. California is now the fourth state in the Union in volume of insurance business, and second in the volume of casualty insurance.

Examination of Companies. One of the most important duties imposed upon the Insurance Commissioner is the examination of insurance companies in accordance with the provisions of section 597 of the Political Code, in order to determine whether or not such companies measure up to the standards of solvency required by law, and also to ascertain if the companies under examination are observing the provisions of the law with respect to investments, establishment and maintenance of proper reserves, and the reporting of their financial condition in general. While several California companies were found by the Insurance Commissioner to be in very questionable financial condition, the office has at this time practically cleared up all details in connection therewith.

Complaints as to Settlements. Another function of the office in which the general public is interested is the handling of complaints made by citizens with respect to claim settlements. While the office does not have judicial powers, it has been very successful in this particular phase of the work, having effected settlement of a vast number of disputes between the insurance companies and their policyholders. Efforts are now being made to "clean up" the field of soliciting insurance agents in order to eliminate, to the greatest possible extent, the agent who is not properly equipped to handle intelligently the insurance problems of the general public, and the office has established a so-called black list in order to prevent the issuance of licenses to agents who have proven themselves not to be trustworthy.

BUILDING AND LOAN.

Increased Assets of Associations. The Building and Loan Commissioner reports that the year ending June 30, 1928, was the most prosperous one for building and loan associations in the history of the State. Assets of the combined California associations increased $74,265,243.60, or 28 per cent.

Every Department Strengthened. In addition to the actual increase in assets, every department of the business has been strengthened. The reserves have been increased by 27 per cent, the permanent capital stock by 18 per cent, and cash on hand by 12 per cent. Nearly all of the larger associations have also increased their liquid assets by purchasing high grade bonds, the increase in this department being 223 per cent.

REAL ESTATE.

Activities of Commissioner. During the past two years the work of the Real Estate Commissioner has shown a very marked increase. The scope of the work is apparent from the fact that more than 60,000 brokers' and salesmen's licenses are issued each year; that over 200 formal hearings are held each year, with nearly ten times as many informal hearings and conferences; that an average of 200 examinations for brokers' licenses are held each year, and that these examinations for brokers have proven so valuable that the real estate people themselves are asking that they also be applied to salesmen.

Inspection of Agricultural Projects. One of the activities of the present bureau which has seemed most necessary is the inspection of agricultural projects, which are being promoted in California. While many of these projects are entirely legitimate, there are others which are so clearly fraudulent that if they are permitted to proceed unchecked it can only mean harm to the State and discredit to the real estate business as a whole. As a result of inspection by the Real Estate Commissioner, many of these unsound promotions have been withdrawn from the market, thereby saving the investing public millions of dollars. In the first eleven months of 1928, the actual money and canceled contracts returned as a result of these investigations and hearings amounted to $1,806,106. There have been held during the biennium 396 formal hearings, as a result of which 34 licenses were revoked and 16 others suspended. In all this endeavor there has been most cordial support by the entire real estate fraternity, and to this attitude the success of the work is very largely due.

IRRIGATION DISTRICT PROBLEM.

Relief for Irrigation Districts. I wish to suggest the need for a very careful examination of the methods of financing irrigation, reclamation and other public improvement districts in agricultural regions. The laws governing irrigation and reclamation districts were drafted years ago, and have been subject to many amendments, some of which are conflicting or obscure in their meaning. We have learned a great deal during the last quarter century from our experience in the handling of these projects. It would seem that the time is ripe for a careful study of the history and present status of irrigation and reclamation districts in California, and for the consideration of improvements in our laws and methods of handling these projects.

Excessive Interest Charges. Irrigation districts in California pay for the use of money needed in these projects an average of 6 per cent per annum, or almost $6,000,000 a year. Furthermore, irrigation district bonds are not sold at par in most instances, the discount amounting at the present time to almost 10 per cent on an average. The heavy rate of interest paid on irrigation bonds, coupled with the discount on those bonds, lays a very heavy burden upon landowners in many of these districts. It is my belief that this burden may be materially lightened. A reduction of 1 per cent in the interest rate on these securities would save over $1,000,000 a year.

Investigation Suggested. I recommend that a commission consisting of financiers, engineers and others having a vital interest in irrigation and reclamation development be appointed and that this commission shall be charged with the responsibility of studying the situation in reference to irrigation and reclamation districts, and of making recommendations to the next Legislature, looking toward a reduction in the burden now being carried by lands in such districts.

INTERSTATE INVESTMENT ACTIVITIES.

Interstate Cooperation Necessary. Too much emphasis can not be laid on the extent to which California must cooperate with other states in the protection of its people. Promotions appealing to California investors frequently have their origin in other states. Like the necessity for quarantine against disease, plant pests and other similar invasions, the agencies of investment regulation are constantly faced with the problem of interstate operations. A few examples of this problem are significant.

Insurance. The Insurance Commissioner spent considerable time in the initiation and completion of investigation of a group of middle western insurance companies operating extensively in California. As a result, radical steps were taken to protect the policyholders, whose policies in California alone reach hundreds of millions of dollars, and criminal proceedings against the persons responsible for the unsound conditions have been instigated.

Real Estate. The Real Estate Commissioner has found it necessary to visit and inspect large subdivision projects in Arizona and Nevada, which were being offered for sale almost exclusively in California, and thus came within his jurisdiction.

Corporations. The Corporation Commissioner advises that a very large proportion of corporate securities offered for sale in California are those of corporations having their home office, or their principal place of business, or both, in states other than California.

Public Utilities. The Railroad Commission during the last biennium has largely assisted the Interstate Commerce Commission in proceedings resulting in large reductions of interstate rates on fruit and other California products.

Duty Toward Public. I feel that all these officers would be derelict in their duties if they failed to protect the interests of the California public as vigorously in the case of enterprises having interstate features as they do in the case of enterprises originating in California.

PUBLIC UTILITIES REGULATION.

As indicated above, the commission regulating public utilities has its duties so specifically defined by the State constitution that it must be considered apart from the other five agencies of investment regulation. All public utilities under the jurisdiction of the California Railroad Commission, except transportation companies, showed a substantial growth during the last biennium. The steam and electric railroads and motor carriers showed a slight falling off in business during 1927.

Period of Lowering Rates. Due to increased production, lowering costs of money, and greater efficiency of operation, there were large reductions in the rates of many gas and electric companies during the last two years. Some of these reductions were voluntary, and others were ordered by the commission. The period was also marked by many consolidations of utilities, and purchases of smaller utilities by large outside holding corporations. There was also a large volume of refinancing, and of new financing of public utilities, largely at lower interest rates.

Scope of Utilities. There are now 1762 public utilities under regulation of the commission. They range from those having a score or less of consumers to others having 350,000 or more consumers. The total number of connected water, gas, electric and telephone customers on December 31, 1927, was 5,124,328, as against 4,786,930 in 1926. The total installed capital carried on the books of the utilities as of December 31, 1927, was $3,279,585,169.

Utility Securities Authorized. The Railroad Commission authorized public utilities to issue $218,559,617.57 of stocks, bonds, notes and other evidences of indebtedness during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1928. Since its reorganization in 1912 the commission has authorized the issuance of $2,718,609,741.41 of such securities. Rigid care has been exercised by the commission to prevent over-capitalization or inflation of public utilities securities. The commission has refused to permit holding companies to capitalize inflated prices paid for smaller companies, nor charge excessive profits against subsidiary companies.

Revenues of Utilities. The revenues of these utilities from purely California business during 1927 was reported at $591,988,000, and for 1926 was $544,000,000. The importance of the utilities from the standpoint of the amount of business transacted may be gauged by a comparison of their revenues with the figures for the agricultural production, including live stock products, of approximately $648,400,000 in 1927. Operating revenues of these utilities, including business within and outside California, was $1,024,889,114.32 in 1927 as against $1,001,170,245.23 in 1926. Dividends paid during 1927 amounted to $125,614,281.84, as against $109,332,215.97 in 1926.

Benefits of Regulation. Regulation of public utilities pays large dividends to the public in California. Reductions in rates during the fiscal year 1927-28 aggregated approximately $3,500,000, and increases requested by the utilities, amounting to $3,706,712, were denied. The amount expended by the Railroad Commission in the regulation of the utilities during the fiscal year 1927-28 was $518,164.38. It is apparent, therefore, that for every dollar expended by the Railroad Commission in regulating the utilities there has been returned to the rate payer .87 in reduction of utility charges, irrespective of the savings due to the denial by the commission of requested increases in rates. These figures are believed to represent a 100 per cent. average for all normal years since the reorganization of the commission in 1912. During the last biennial period the commission assisted in Interstate Commerce Commission proceedings resulting in large reductions in interstate rates on fruit and other California products.

Safety Work. The commission is able to report a continuance of its work for the reduction of grade crossing hazards, danger to the public and safety appliances due to impaired clearances on railroads, and also the elimination of interference of laws governing overhead electric line construction.

Noteworthy Action. The commission adopted a general order September 27, 1927, requiring public utilities to file data in regard to salaries paid, donations, contributions, subscriptions and political expenditures, and valuable information has been filed by the companies in conformity with this order.

MILITARY AND VETERANS' AFFAIRS.

In accord with the general scheme of reorganization, and in order that all related State agencies may be grouped together and their functions coordinated within a department with representation in the Governor's Council, it seems to me desirable that The Adjutant General, the Veterans' Welfare Board, the Woman's Relief Corps Home, the Veterans' Home and the State Athletic Commission should constitute independent divisions of a new department.

Value of Proposed Department. A departmental organization which will preserve the autonomy of the above-named agencies, but which will at the same time afford opportunity for cooperative solution of mutual problems affecting both service and ex-service men and women and give them representation in the Governor's Council, would seem to be a necessary step in the process of reorganizing the State Government, as well as a great benefit to the Veterans. Such a step, however, must involve the unhampered continuance of all existing agencies without curtailment or restriction of their respective powers and duties in the slightest degree. I believe that this protection can be afforded and still provide the necessary measure of coordination.

NATIONAL GUARD.

Drill and Camp Attendance. The National Guard of California is in a very satisfactory condition and is prepared to meet any call that either the State or the federal government may make upon it. The outstanding features are the very excellent drill attendance of 81 per cent, the camp attendance of 89 per cent, the splendid state of training as evidenced by the War Department inspection reports, and the economy of administration as compared with the cost of maintenance of the National Guard in other states.

Strength and Cost of National Guard. There has been no recent increase in the strength of our National Guard, due to the policy of the federal government to curtail expenses. However, the federal budget bureau has recently approved an expansion program wherein the Fortieth Division is to be completed—a division largely allotted to this State for organization. This increase will amount to 1000 men, and will bring the total strength to 6000. As an indication of the interest taken in our National Guard, there are applications on file from 48 cities in the State desiring units. During the last fiscal year the federal government expended on the National Guard of this State the sum of $1,116,000, and the State approximately $300,000.

High School Cadet Corps. There has been considerable improvement in the High School Cadet Corps, owing to the policy of supplying cadets with a portion of their uniform, which was made possible through the increased appropriation granted by the last Legislature. The Porterville Union High School was judged the most efficient high school for 1927 and 1928. The Sacramento High School won the trophy for rifle competition during 1927, while the Fresno High School won for 1928. For the past four years the Fresno High School has won national honors by winning the national indoor interscholastic small-bore rifle competition.

First Place in National Competition. The California state civilian rifle team won national fame by finishing first among the civilian teams of the country at the national competition held at Camp Perry, Ohio, in 1928. The team was selected by competition, and represented every section of the State.

Training Camps and Armories. A permanent training camp for division troops has been established near San Luis Obispo, and the federal war department has approved plans for its development, which, when completed, will cost $500,000, of which amount $275,000 has already been provided. This site is reputed to be the best training area in the country. During the present biennium the completion of the Los Angeles and San Francisco armories has been accomplished. These buildings were erected in 1915, but were never completed. It is interesting to note that the tentative 10-year building program includes provision for additional armories which will serve approximately 30 cities in our State.

Historic Flags Preserved. The historic colors carried by the citizen soldiers of our State in the Civil and Spanish-American Wars, although in a very dilapidated condition due to months of service and natural deterioration, have been restored by a patented method and will now be preserved for posterity. In the plans for the renovation of the State Capitol there is included a display of flags, which will include the colors carried by our troops during the World War, and will be one of the finest displays of the kind in the country.

Emergency Services. During the past two years the National Guard has performed valuable emergency service as follows: guarding against possible outbreak at the Folsom Prison riot; protecting life and property and furnishing relief during the North Sacramento flood; providing tents, blankets and supplies following the St. Francis Dam disaster; hunting for lost persons by airplane; and performing many other acts of service.

VETERANS' WELFARE BOARD.

Veterans' Legislation and Bond Acts. The California Legislature of 1921 conceived and enacted into the statutes of this State what is now recognized throughout the nation as the most admirable and constructive veterans' legislation provided by any commonwealth in the Union. The specific acts comprising this legislation are known as the Veterans' Welfare Act, creating the Veterans' Welfare Board and defining its powers and duties, the Veterans' Farm and Home Purchase Act, and the enabling act designated as the Veterans' Welfare Bond Act, providing a bond issue of $10,000,000. All these were passed in 1921, and were followed four years later by another Veterans' Welfare Bond Act, this time for $20,000,000.

Results of This Legislation. A study of the accomplishments under these relief measures clearly indicates the soundness of their economic structure, their benign influence, and the good which has already accrued to the veterans who have been served as well as to the State through the creation of thousands of contented and law-abiding home owners. All these things have been accomplished without cost to the State.

Methods and Results of Farm Purchase. Although legally authorized under the Veterans' Welfare Act to expend $1,000,000 in the colonization of veteran farmers, the Veterans' Welfare Board developed, after a thorough study of the practicality of colonization, which included a study of the State Land Settlement Act and the two State colonies already in operation, a policy of individual farm purchase by which the veteran was enabled to select farm property in the community in which he desired to reside and to which his farm training and ability were best adapted. This policy has been amply justified in the light of present land settlement developments, and has resulted in scattered farm purchases in thirty-eight counties of the State by about 275 farm-minded veterans who desired to engage in agriculture. For seven years agriculture in California has suffered from depression. Despite this fact the delinquent list of farm veterans is unusually small, which is directly attributable to the selection by the board of only qualified veteran farmers and carefully selected farm property.

Bond Issues Exhausted. Aside from the farm purchases mentioned above, all the balance of the $30,000,000 fund provided by the two bond acts has gone for the purchase of homes costing an average of about $4,700. Approximately 6,000 veterans in forty-six counties hold these home-purchase contracts, while about 10,000 applications remain on file, with no possibility of taking action upon them unless additional funds are made available. To this end a proposition for a third bond act will probably be laid before you to be submitted to the voters at the general election of November, 1930.

Total Resale Show Profit. In order to learn whether the State can be absolutely certain that no considerable number of these homes or farms may go into default, thus preventing the retirement of bonds or payment of interest thereon, I have recently requested the facts from the secretary of the Veterans' Welfare Board. I have learned that the repossessions so far equal a scant 12 per cent of the properties purchased; that when a property is repossessed it is at once renovated and resold as speedily as possible; that ordinarily this resale is accomplished inside of a month; and that there are rarely more than four or five properties on hand at any one time. I am also informed that, instead of loss, there has been a net profit of $6,861.16 on these resales.

A Good Work Well Done. On the basis of this showing it would appear that the State has no mistake in thus lending its credit to our ex service men. The manner in which the Veterans' Welfare Board has carried out the duties imposed by this pioneer legislation is worthy of the best traditions of California's veterans, for whose relief these measures were passed.

WOMAN'S RELIEF CORPS HOME.

Purpose of Home. Near Santa Clara, California, is the Woman's Relief Corps Home of California. It is an institution in large measure supported by the State, but with some contributions from various individual units of the Woman's Relief Corps of California, for the maintenance and care of widows, unmarried daughters and dependent sisters of veterans of the Civil War. The population of the home varies but little, and is generally about forty five, that being its extreme capacity.

Origin and Management. The home was originally built from private funds secured by the Woman's Relief Corps, Department of California, with some assistance from the posts of the Grand Army of the Republic. It was established at Evergreen, Santa Clara County, and was changed to its present location following a fire which destroyed the buildings at Evergreen. The property at Evergreen was sold and the present property near Santa Clara purchased, the State contributing toward the purchasing price. The control is vested in a board of directors, consisting of six women, all of whom are members of the Woman's Relief Corps, Department of California. This board employs a matron who supervises the institution under the direction of the board.

Future of Home. It is hoped that this worthy institution may find its way into the proposed department of Military and Veterans' Affairs. The management of the home is agreeable to this, provided the entire of the institution shall be maintained. The home is undoubtedly doing a worthy work, and the fact that it is supported in part by private contributions should not be lost sight of. Certainly, everyone will join in assisting as far as possible the people whom this home cares for, namely, dependent relatives of veterans of the Civil War. The average age of those in the home is 77 years.

VETERANS' HOME.

Veterans' Home Near Yountville. The membership of the Veterans' Home is steadily increasing, and it is an ever present problem as to how all the applicants can be taken care of. The buildings are in such a dilapidated condition that a new building program has been inaugurated, and it is hoped that the next eight years may see the completion of this program. The Legislature of 1927 appropriated $170,000 for the construction of the new barracks building from funds of the Athletic Commission. This building, when completed will house 200 men. On October 20, 1928, the cornerstone for the new barracks building was laid with appropriate ceremonies. A regular plot plan has been worked out for the development of the home and it is contemplated that each unit will be placed in accordance with this plan.

Minor Buildings. The Legislature of 1927 also appropriated the sum of $25,000 for the construction of a quartermaster's storehouse and employees' buildings. These buildings were started in March and have now been completed. In May, 1927, the directors set aside $28,000 from the unexpended funds for the erection of a new post exchange building. This building is now completed and stands parallel with the quartermaster's storehouse building. In addition to the post exchange, it accommodates a barber shop and post office.

Great Need of Improvements. Much has been accomplished toward the improvement of conditions at the Veterans' Home by the present State administration, which has formulated plans for a building program to extend over a period of ten years; replacing with modern, fireproof, concrete structures the old wooden barracks, hospital, and auxiliary buildings, at present occupied by the membership and various departments. The extreme need of new fireproof barracks buildings, as well as a new, modern, fireproof hospital, has been evident for some years, due to the menacing fire hazard and the insanitary condition of the present occupied buildings, many of which were constructed during the eighties.

Entertainment in Home. As the home is some distance removed from centers of population, a great deal of attention is devoted to entertainment and welfare work among the membership and employees. Funds for this work are provided by the post fund, which is supported by the post exchange and unclaimed estates of deceased members, which estates have remained in the posthumous fund for a period of five years. Patriotic, fraternal and religious organizations have also contributed to this work by rendering frequent and appropriate entertainments. All national holidays have also been appropriately observed. One of the most excellent sources of entertainment is the motion picture theater, another is a very fine library, which is well supplied with books, periodicals, magazines, newspapers and general literature, and still another is the "Home Band."

An Honored Director. The Veterans' Home of California has been greatly honored in that one of the members of the board of directors, Captain E. L. Hawk, was elected national commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic. In October, 1927, after Captain Hawk's election, a reception was tendered him at the home.

STATE ATHLETIC COMMISSION.

Boxing Approved by Voters. At the general election on November 6, 1928, the initiative measure to repeal the boxing law was defeated by a majority of 393,383. In 1924 the electorate, through an initiative measure, placed boxing on the statute books by the slender majority of 20,214. Although this question has for some time been in controversy, the recent large majority against the repeal of the law in the November election can only be construed as a public endorsement of the work and activities of the State Athletic Commission during the past four years.

Commission Self-Supporting. The law provides that the sum of $40,000 be allotted for the expenses of the Athletic Commission. Not a cent for salaries or other expense comes from the funds of the State. The commission is not only self-supporting, but a balance of considerably over a hundred thousand dollars a year has gone into the Athletic Commission fund.

Tax and License Fees. During the third fiscal year of the Commission, from December 1, 1926, to November 30, 1927, the commission received from the 5 per cent tax and license fees $135,298.36. During the fourth fiscal year, ending November 30, 1928, the receipts fell off to $122,985.58. During this biennium 2152 shows were held under State supervision, which were attended by 3,163,762 people and produced total gate receipts of $1,641,410.79.

Veterans' Home Building Program. Under the law the Commission's receipts must be expended only for the maintenance of veterans' homes. The Veterans' Home near Yountville is the only such home in California at present. As has been said above, in addition to $80,000 out of the general fund, $170,000 has been appropriated out of the Athletic Commission fund for new construction at Yountville. Under the ten year building program contemplated by the Department of Finance, in agreement with the directors of the Veterans' Home, all of the present buildings will eventually be replaced, and additional barracks and other buildings will be provided.

Why Included With Veterans' Affairs. Although much of the Athletic Commission's activities are not directly connected with veterans' affairs, the fact that the commission has been endorsed by the veterans and was brought into being largely through their activity, coupled with the fact that posts of the American Legion sponsoring boxing contests are exempt from the 5 per cent tax, would seem to make this connection a very appropriate one. The chief reason, however, why this commission forms necessarily a part of veterans' affairs, is the law already referred to, which devotes the entire net receipts of the commission to maintenance of veterans' homes.

DEPARTMENT OF NATURAL RESOURCES.

The Department of Natural Resources, as the name indicates, has to do with those resources which formed the native wealth of California ages before the coming of its present population. This department brought together five of the agencies for development of these native resources of our State, and has enabled them to function in five divisions, as follows: Division of Mines and Mining, Division of Petroleum and Gas, Division of Fish and Game, Division of Forestry and Division of Parks.

DIVISION OF MINES AND MINING.

Mining Came First. Mining is California's oldest industry and long antedated agriculture in importance. Though the early days of gold have long since passed, the State still has a very considerable mining industry, amounting to more than $100,000,000 per year in metallic and nonmetallic production. These figures can undoubtedly be increased and production stabilized if plans of the department are carried out in providing for a comprehensive geological survey, to be completed over a period of years. Progress has already been made in bringing to near completion the first stages of the survey of the commercial mineral resources of the State, and in the publication of the resultant reports.

Mining Bureau Merged in Division. The general routine work of the Division of Mines and Mining has been carried on effectively, furnishing information and assistance as needed to various elements of the mining industry. The State Mining Bureau, now merged in this division, has long rendered invaluable service to State and nation, winning merited recognition among the mining men of the world. The California State Mining Bureau has served as a pattern for the establishment of similar agencies in various states of the Union.

DIVISION OF PETROLEUM AND GAS.

New Work Entered Upon. This is the newest division of this department, and concerns what is both one of the newest and one of the largest of California's industries. The production of petroleum, petroleum products, and natural gas amounts in value to more than $280,000,000 a year. During the past few years the industry has been immensely stimulated by the discovery of deeper oil sands and the discovery of new oil-producing areas.

Move to Reduce Wastage. The bringing in of these new wells has caused a great wastage of natural gas, and a vast gas conservation movement headed by the Director of the Department of Natural Resources, in consultation with operators of the oil industry with a view to reducing wastage as much as possible. As a result of our recommendations field committees were formed of production superintendents and engineers to study the problem as it applied to each particular field. Although the results have been but fairly satisfactory, owing to the rapid development of the industry and the large number of new wells at the same time there has been a gratifying response on the part of the operators, all of whom evidently realize the economic loss through a production of oil in excess of market needs and industrial requirements, and especially through the loss of gas which, when once blown off into the air, can never be recovered.

Methods of Conservation. Through the efforts of this conservation committee some gas has been shut in, some has been trapped to deprive some companies there to remain for future use, and some has gone to the compressing of producing oil sands, thus increasing the ultimate amount of oil. There has also been a considerable extension of service of natural gas for domestic and industrial use. The latest development of the nature is the replacement of a main pipeline for the laying of a gas-carrying pipe line, connecting the Ventura and Kern County natural gas producing areas with the main pipeline between San Francisco Bay. The methods of dealing with the gas saving problem have met with approval both from the oil operators and from the public, and should be encouraged. The conservation gained and the results attained through conservatively handling of oil and gas producing operations in a given field, under the direction and management of those interested, warrant the suggestion that such action be given to this committee. Everyone would certainly agree that this conservation of oil resources should be conserved as efficiently as possible, in order that it may serve to the utmost the State's development.

DIVISION OF FISH AND GAME

Means Much to U. S. The importance of the work carried on by the Division of Fish and Game, in the Department of Natural Resources, can not be overestimated. It provides for the enforcement of all laws relating to fish and game in the interest of preservation and conservation. It undertakes the dissemination of information regarding our fish and game in all parts of the State by the game, public schools, and public gatherings. It secures and permits the taking of interesting representative species of fish and game for private purposes, such as exhibits to be displayed at the State Fair and other suitable occasions.

Would Better Fish Planting. It undertakes the propagation of fish and is making a study to learn how and when fish may be released in our streams to secure the most beneficial results. It is operating 26 hatcheries and 12 egg-taking stations, and handles over 20,000,000 trout and salmon fry each year. It has recommended and provided for a full year's closing of certain streams throughout the State to provide a better opportunity for restocking such streams.

Protective Work. The division is provided with bureaus of research, education, hydraulics, and other lesser agencies to enable it to carry out its many activities. In addition to fish culture, in its fish rescue work it has salvaged almost a million fish which would otherwise have perished returning them to waters suitable for their needs. Its work also provides for protecting the State's streams against pollution, and it is watchful in safeguarding the public against both snail and other fishery products. The patrol force of the division consists of 122 regular deputies and 500 special deputies in addition to the commercial fisheries patrol.

Other Helpful Activities. In its game activities it supervises and sets aside for game refuges, and under authority of a recent legislative act, through a Game Refuge and Public Shooting Grounds Commission, has proceeded to survey and classify lands suitable for the conservation of game. It also carries on operations in an effort to reduce the losses of game through predatory animals, and it maintains a game farm where pheasants and other game birds may be rented to be turned loose in suitable localities.

Statistical Work Done. The work of the division in compiling statistical records showing the number of deer annually killed in the State, as well as the number and value of fur-bearing animals trapped for commercial purposes, will prove of great value in shaping necessary legislation in the interest of wildlife. I think it is safe to say that our fish and game activities have never been in better hands, and that they have the cordial endorsement of all the sportsmen of the State.

DIVISION OF FORESTRY

An Efficient Board. Progress has been made in the interest of forestry during the present biennium, particularly in the selection of an exceedingly efficient Board of Forestry, headed by former Governor George C. Pardee. There is being rapidly built up a strong fire prevention and supervision organization, and cooperation has been effected with many counties in forest protection work.

First State Forest. There has been exchanged nearly 9000 acres of scattered parcels of State lands within national forests in California for a compact body of fine standing timber in the vicinity of Lassen National Park, thus establishing California's first State forest. Other forests will be purchased as a result of the State Park Act, and all these must be carefully protected, as well as the vast areas of privately owned forest lands.

Forest Protection First Duty. It is self-evident that nothing can be more important than the protection of our forests from fire, partly for their intrinsic value, but still more because of their value as watersheds in causing water to sink into the ground to replenish our underground water resources, instead of wasting itself in winter freshets, as is the case when these watersheds are bare. California was fortunate in the matter of forest fires in 1927, but correspondingly unfortunate in 1928. For this reason there is being recommended a very substantial increase in the forestry budget—a larger percentage of increase than for any other one activity.

Progress Expected. As a result of this larger measure of support, it is believed that the coming biennium will witness marked progress in forest conservation, with a much needed extension and enlargement of our field organization, personnel, and motorized equipment. Meanwhile there must be education, and still more education, of the public which goes into our forest during the dry hunting, fishing, and camp-fire season, to bring about a proper reorganization of the vital responsibility for the protection of this great natural heritage.

DIVISION OF PARKS.

Legislation for Parks. The people of California have for a number of years enjoyed the possession of a few beautiful State parks. The rapid growth and development of our State has threatened to drive into private exploitation, just as has been done in the case of our beaches during the past few years, other attractive spots which should be saved to the people. To prevent this possibility was the purpose of very important legislation enacted at last session. By this legislation a State Division of Parks and State Park Commission were created, a State-wide survey was authorized, looking to the classification of such areas in all portions of the State as are suitable for park purposes; and finally a bond issue of $6,000,000 was proposed, to be spent for parks, when matched, dollar for dollar, with an equal sum from private sources.

Report of Park Survey. This bond proposition was adopted at the last election by an overwhelming vote. The park survey authorized by the Legislature was carried out by the commission through a survey entrusted to that well known and preeminently qualified authority, Frederick Law Olmsted, who has within the past few days submitted to the Park Commission a most excellent report, dealing with fundamentals involving in general State park selections and policies.

Features of the Report. This report presents most graphically to the people of California a complete pictorial analysis of those things deemed necessary and worthy of being preserved as State parks. The report will also be a valuable guide in directing the work of the State Park Commission in carrying out the desire of our people, to the end that we secure for ourselves and our posterity a comprehensive State park system worthy of California. In the report there is stressed the recreational value of our ocean beaches, particularly as to their proximity to the large centers of population in the south and along the ocean shore north of San Francisco. It deals also with the preservation of outstanding examples of our redwood groves, Sierra forests and desert areas.

Examination of Possible Park Sites. Three hundred twenty-three proposed projects were inspected and classified by Mr. Olmsted and his staff. Approximately one-half of the above number was eliminated as being unsuitable to inclusion in a State park system. Valuable assistance is being rendered by district advisory committees in contributing intimate knowledge as to the merits of local projects. The outstanding character and ability presented by the membership of the State Park Commission insures the carrying out of the State park program and the expenditure of the six million dollar bond money in a thoroughly business-like manner.

PENOLOGY.

One of the very important duties of any State is a proper treatment of the crime problem. As regards this subject, in my inaugural address two years ago I spoke as follows:

"The spread of organized crime throughout the United States has become a very real problem. This has become the day of the professional criminal, who has in cold blood organized the business of preying upon society. The effective way to reduce the numbers of these professional criminals is to make it clear to them that their chances of escaping the penalty of the law are too remote; that the risks are so great the crime business doesn't pay. If the criminal or potential criminal is to be deterred from his crime, he must be convinced that his punishment will be certain and that it will be prompt. A wise coordination of the agencies of crime detection and prevention, coupled with carefully considered reforms of our obsolete criminal procedure, should effect a prompt reduction in the amount of crime in California."

Appointment of Crime Commission. During last legislative session a great deal was done in the way of speeding up criminal procedure through the passage of a considerable number of laws to that end. A crime commission was also authorized, which should make a study of the underlying causes of crime, as well as suggest methods leading toward its prevention and cure. The report of the commission, which will be discussed in another part of this message, is a very interesting one; and I am of the opinion that its work might well be continued through a permanent Division of Criminology, for the purpose of conducting a continuous study of this very important problem.

Suggestions for Department. I am of the belief that such a Division of Criminology, together with the very splendid board which has charge of our prisons, a special board dealing with some phases of the women's prison problem, the Advisory Pardon Board, the Bureau of Criminal Identification, and the division dealing with the criminal aspects of the narcotic situation, might well operate as one of our regular departments of government. I feel that coordination of effort along these lines may very easily put California to the forefront in this vitally important work.

THE STATE PRISONS

Policy in Prison Administration. The policy of the State Board of Prison Directors, both in the general administration of the two State prisons and in its individual relationship to prisoners, has been inspired by certain very definite principles that it is believed should control in prison government and by certain very definite objectives that it has been sought to accomplish. It is the belief of those responsible for prison administration that the chief problem of the prison is to train prisoners for decent living, to teach them to respect and obey lawful authority, to reduce the number of "repeaters" in crime, to prevent as far as it is possible so to do the conversion of the first offender into a hardened criminal.

Endeavors to Help Prisoners. It accordingly has been the endeavor of those in charge of the prisons to treat and train those who have come under their charge in such a manner that they may leave the prison better than when they entered. To this end particular attention has been paid to physical welfare, mental advancement, and employment, in the hope that those who entered when ill, idle or ignorant might, when corrected, again become useful members of society.

Prison Population. During the past two years the number of prisoners in California's two State prisons has increased from 5343 to 6227, an increase of 884. This population (December 1, 1928) was distributed as follows: San Quentin, 4034; Folsom, 2193. The prison population is the largest in the history of both San Quentin and Folsom penitentiaries. It tells its own story of the overcrowded condition of the two prisons. Present facilities are inadequate to house this great number of prisoners, despite the additional housing space provided during the past biennium by the Women's Building and the "West Wing" cell house at San Quentin. Some relief will come by the "East Wing" cell house, containing 570 cells, which will be ready for occupancy by January 15, 1929. The housing problem, however, will still be acute. At Folsom prison there is now in course of construction a new cell house. This new cell house will relieve temporarily the overcrowded cell conditions existing at that prison.

Youthful Offenders. An analysis of the population of the two prisons shows that the number of youthful offenders has greatly increased. Notwithstanding the crowded condition at San Quentin prison, where first offenders are confined, every effort is being made toward segregation of these youthful offenders in the hope of their betterment upon release.

PAROLES AND PRISON CAMPS

Paroles Show Decrease. Both the parole system and the indeterminate sentence law have proved their beneficial worth. A policy of combining firmness with fairness in the administration of the parole law and in the administration of prison affairs generally is reflected in the number of paroles granted in the past two years. Thus on December 31, 1926, there were 1600 prisoners on parole from San Quentin and 242 paroled from Folsom. On December 1, 1928, despite the larger prison population, there were fewer paroled prisoners than twenty-three months previously, the figures being 1479 for San Quentin and 281 for Folsom. To express this by percentage figures, while the prison population increased by 128 per cent, the number of paroles granted decreased by 044 per cent. Since our California parole law was enacted 36 years ago, over 10,000, or 82 per cent, of the prisoners thus released have been restored to a law-abiding, normal life.

Convict Road Work. On December 31, 1926, the number of prisoners assigned to the State highway work from San Quentin prison was 157. On December 11, 1928, the number of prisoners from San Quentin engaged in State highway work was 584. From Folsom comparative figures for the same dates were 16 and 2. The assignment of prisoners to the highway has been a great aid to San Quentin in relieving the overcrowded housing condition. To house these prisoners in the penitentiary would require an investment of $300,000 on the part of the State. The State has also been freed of the cost of sustaining these men during their prison life. On the basis of an average annual employment of 650 prisoners, it is estimated that this means an annual saving of $150,000 to the State. The prisoners have been helped in the opportunity given them to work in the outdoors and to earn compensation for themselves and their dependents. These highway camps have proved a great benefit to the prisoners. It is to be hoped that the number of these camps may be increased, and particularly that a highway camp may soon be established containing such prisoners from Folsom as may prove worthy of highway assignment. In the selection of prisoners for road camp work, great care has been exercised in order that prison camps may have the least possible percentage of violations. This extreme care will be exercised in future assignments as it has in the past.

PRISON EMPLOYMENT PROBLEM.

Prison Employment. The lack of real industrial occupation is a serious problem in both prisons. At San Quentin prison, the chief industry is the jute mill and at Folsom quarrying and rock crushing. At Folsom, farming operations with diversified crops has been of material aid both in supplying farm products and garden truck for that institution. The jute mill account is of particular interest. On December 31, 1926, the jute revolving fund had been reduced to $235,000. On December 1, 1928, it had been restored to its full capacity of $200,000 and in addition the general fund was also benefited in the sum of $53,000 during the same period. The value and usefulness of the jute mill will be greatly increased through improvements about to be made. Sales of furniture at San Quentin for 1926, 1927 and 1928 show the following figures: 1926, $43,106.80; 1927, $52,472.19; 1928 (up to December 1st), $45,723.70. At Folsom a modern rock crushing plant was installed during the biennium, the product being sold to the Division of Highways. The State railroad from Folsom to the prison quarry has been practically rebuilt. During the past two years the prison has been thoroughly cleaned and loads of dirt and debris have been removed to secure and insure proper sanitary conditions.

General Administration. Both San Quentin and Folsom prisons have as their executive officers two splendid wardens. The condition of the prisons has been improved, despite crowded conditions prevailing in both institutions. Excellent work is being accomplished at both prisons in educational opportunities accorded prisoners. The medical, surgery and dental departments are well conducted. The management of the prisons has been creditable in all respects.

PROPOSED PENAL INSTITUTION FOR WOMEN.

Need for Institution. The last session of the Legislature authorized the appointment of a commission to prepare plans for a separate penal institution for women. This commission of two eminent attorneys, together with three women experienced in dealing with problems connected with the care of women offenders, have reported their findings. There exists in California a great need for a separate institution to care for women offenders. The new prison for women at San Quentin is crowded to capacity, there being over a hundred incarcerated at the present time. Experience has proved that housing men and women in the same prison increases the problems of administration and discipline. The building now housing the women prisoners at San Quentin is greatly needed, either as a hospital or to relieve the overcrowded quarters of the men prisoners, and can readily be adapted for urgent necessities, such, for example, as the segregation of nonadult prisoners.

The Woman Misdemeanant. Experience of other states indicates that the woman felon and the woman misdemeanant can be cared for in one institution at great saving in expense to the State and with no loss in the reformatory side of the program. The woman misdemeanant, now in our county jails or on probation, constitutes a much greater menace to society than has been generally recognized. That these women are a moral and physical menace to the youth and homes of the commonwealth has long been recognized, but too much emphasis can not be put on the fact that they also are an important cog in the organized crime machine. Police and jail records show that more than five hundred women have been convicted of crimes involving moral turpitude, three or more times each during the last fiscal year.

Partly a County Charge. In considering this much needed institution for women offenders I believe that the State should continue to bear the expense connected with the care of felons, but that the counties, which are now meeting the entire expense connected with the care of county prisoners or misdemeanants, should contribute to the expense of caring for these women in a State institution, where a reformatory program can be carried out, where vocational training can be given, and where the habit of work can be inculcated.

ADVISORY PARDON BOARD.

Origin and Purpose of Board. The Advisory Pardon Board was established by a legislative act passed during the session of 1915. Its purpose was to investigate for the Governor such cases of applicants for executive clemency as may be submitted by him to the board. Reports as to the results of these investigations are, of course, merely advisory or informational, but they are often valuable in giving an accurate picture of the case in hand which would not be possible except for this aid.

Nature of Cases Considered. Although hundreds of applications for pardon or commutation have come into my office, I have granted executive clemency very sparingly. In fact, as shown in my report to you upon the subject, clemency has been extended to only nine individuals during the past two years. I have insisted in consideration of California's wise and liberal parole laws, that parole, except under extraordinary circumstances, should precede commutation or pardon. However, when a prisoner has finished his term of parole, and has returned to an orderly and law-abiding mode of living, I believe that it is best for the State and just to him that his citizenship rights should be restored. To invest with the cases of former prisoners who may have earned this right is one of the important functions of the Pardon Board.

Personnel of the Board. The Advisory Pardon Board, as constituted by law, is composed of the Lieutenant Governor, who serves as chairman, the Attorney General, and the warden of the two prisons. If the Legislature sees fit to create a Division of Criminology, as suggested above, I would believe that a fifth member be added to the board, in the person of the chief of such division. The board, composed of a board of five, excellently fitted to give to a Governor the information on which he may require in dealing with acts of executive clemency.

CRIMINAL IDENTIFICATION BUREAU

Bureau of Criminal Identification and Investigation. The perpetration of crime is closely linked with the early apprehension of the offender and his prompt commitment. To aid in the apprehension of the criminal the Bureau of Criminal Identification and Investigation operates. An indication of the scope of this bureau may be gleaned from the following records for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1928: Station and embezzled property valued in excess of $500,000 were secured to its return. Of the 28,535 finger print records of persons arrested, recorded in the bureau, reclassification and comparison 42,667 were identified and verified as being habitual law offenders. These identifications have unquestionably effected an additional saving of thousands of dollars to the State in the number of and crimes referred to jury trials. Reports of felonious crimes committed within the State numbering 132,685 were received, analyzed and filed according to the method of classification employed by the perpetrator of the crime.

Work of the Bureau. A good many of these cases have been solved and the perpetrators apprehended through identifications reported directly through the modus operandi maintained by the bureau. Persons and fraudulent check numbers numbering 32,296 were identified by the handwriting upon fraudulent checks previously submitted to the handwriting and laboratory section of the bureau for examination. In the majority of these cases, these identifications were of great value to police officials in effecting the immediate apprehension of the guilty delinquents. Of those identified as habitual offenders 970 were either accepted as bona fide visitors or fugitives from justice; many of them were escapes from penal institutions outside the State. Identification led to their extradition and return to the respective institutions from which they escaped, thereby eliminating the expense of prosecution and confinement in California prisons.

STATE NARCOTIC DIVISION

The Three Phases of the Problem. The State Narcotic Division has been operating a little over a year. During that period considerable time was necessarily devoted to a study of the problem and an evaluation of many suggested methods to its approach. The State is primarily interested in what may be aptly defined as three phases of the problem. First, the protection of the public from the criminal and other antisocial tendencies of narcotic addicts; second, the rehabilitation of such addicts; and, third, the prevention of the spread and increase of the vice of narcotic addiction. The chief of the division conceives the latter named phase to be by far the most important, although, of course, all three phases are so interrelated that any proper activities of the division must necessarily affect them all.

Cooperation with Local Peace Officers. It has not been the intention to have this division succeed to the duties and responsibilities of the great body of peace officers of the State in the matter of the suppression of drug addiction, nor has the division deemed itself in competition with such peace officers in the work of apprehending violators of the antinarcotic laws. Rather it has been the purpose of the narcotic division to cooperate to the fullest possible extent with all peace officers and other agencies dealing with this problem, and to assist rather than to supplant such officers in the performance of their duties. This relation between the division and the peace officers of the State has been admirably maintained, with the result that the police, sheriffs and other enforcing officers have freely called upon the division for information and assistance and have shown a commendable interest and energy in attacking this great evil.

Arrests and Convictions. From January 1, 1928, to December 15, 1928, there were 1058 completed criminal cases for narcotic violations in the State of California through the activities of the State, county and city police officials, and there were on that date 65 pending cases. In these cases 100 defendants were incarcerated in the State penitentiaries, and a very large number in county jails. These cases do not include a large number of important arrests made in this State by the federal authorities.

Operation of Narcotic Division. This division has maintained its own force of inspectors, attorneys and chemists, who have been actively engaged in the work of apprehension and prosecution. The division has thus far been operating under the State Board of Pharmacy, which formerly had charge of this work. It is now thought, however, that it is no longer wise to depend upon Pharmacy Board funds for this purpose, and it is accordingly recommended that the division operate independently until such time as it is joined with some department having to do with penal matters.

REHABILITATION OF NARCOTIC ADDICTS.

Possibilities of Rehabilitation. The experience of the division has indicated that there is not a very considerable number of drug addicts who desire to be relieved of their addiction, except when they are made to feel the repressive effects of the penal provisions of the anti-narcotic laws. It is the belief of the chief of this division that an overwhelming majority of the drug addicts in this State have become such voluntarily through self-indulgence and as a result of association with those who had already acquired the habit, and that they are consequently almost impossible to cure. Although reports from other states are also discouraging as to the percentage of victims of this devastating habit who can be rehabilitated and saved, California is nevertheless making a real effort in this direction through its Narcotic Hospital, described under the Department of Institutions. As there indicated, this is only a sort of laboratory attempt to find out whether rehabilitation of drug addicts is not possible. The attempt will cost something, but if it achieves results it will be worth all it costs.

Evident Decrease in Drug Addiction. The last Legislature materially increased the severity of the punishment for violation of the important provisions of the anti-narcotic laws and a part of the activities of the State Narcotic Division has been to impress upon trial judges, district attorneys and the citizenry generally the necessity of regarding such violations as serious offenses which the community can not afford to allow to go inadequately punished. It is the belief of the chief of this division that, as a result of drastic federal and State legislation and the energetic and sincere enforcement of this legislation by all of the agencies charged with such enforcement, drug addiction has been materially decreased in California. This belief is based upon the unanimous testimony of peace officers and those in charge of corrective institutions throughout the State.

DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC HEALTH.

The State Department of Public Health is an outgrowth of the State Board of Health, which was organized in April of 1870. This was the second state health board created in the United States, being antedated only by a board created six months earlier in the state of Massachusetts. The new department was organized in 1927, and took over, very largely, the functions of the old State board. The new Department of Public Health consists of seven members, including a secretary who acts as full-time director of the department, and six other members serving without pay.

DEPARTMENTAL REPORTS.

Various Activities of Department. The reports of the Department of Public Health include discussions of sanitary engineering and general sanitary conditions throughout the State; of the gradual but very positive steps made in the control of tuberculosis; of other diseases with comparatively high death rates, such as cancer or various heart disorders; of communicable diseases, particularly those of children; of diseases rapidly becoming negligible factors, such as typhoid and malaria; of child hygiene, with the mortality rates of infants under one year of age and of maternal mortality; of the possible dangers from some of the more deadly maladies, such as plague or typhus fever; of the visitations more or less prevalent during the past year and the present, as, for instance, influenza and infantile paralysis.

Influenza Epidemic Mild. An epidemic of influenza began in California during the first week of last October, when twenty-seven cases were reported. The epidemic apparently reached its height during the week ending December 8th, when 10,683 cases were reported. From the first of October to the middle of December a total of 43,067 cases were reported. Similar epidemics of this disease appeared in other states, eventually covering the eastern and central portions of the country. It is too early as yet to learn the number of deaths that have occurred from influenza and pneumonia in California during the past few weeks. It is certain, however, that the present epidemic is not to be compared in numbers of cases, deaths or severity, with the great pandemic of 1918, when 230,845 cases, with 13,340 deaths, were reported. The chief characteristics of the present epidemic in California are the mildness of the attacks as compared with those of previous widespread epidemics, the infrequency of complications and the resultant low mortality.

Work on Tuberculosis. One of the gratifying results of work by our health department is the gradual control of tuberculosis. In 1906 the death rate from this disease was 235.7 per 100,000 of population. In 1923 it had fallen to 150.4, and in 1927 to 140.3 per 100,000. The difference in these rates indicates the progress that has been made in this control. The Bureau of Tuberculosis, connected with this department, has been instrumental in raising the standards of care in county hospitals by means of the State subsidy to approved institutions, the money being appropriated from the State treasury and allocated to the counties for expenditure.

Disease Brought Into the State. About 7 per cent of all tuberculosis deaths in California each year are of persons who have lived in the State for less than one year.

while about 30 per cent have lived here for less than four years. Considerable has been accomplished in preventing the migration to California of tuberculous individuals whose cases are too far advanced for any hope of recovery, as well as of those other individuals who come here to be cured, but who are not so situated as to be financially independent for at least a year.

CHILD HYGIENE.

Health of Women and Children. Since the World War an intensified interest in child welfare has made itself conspicuous throughout the country. Undoubtedly the physical defects discovered in the men called in the draft furnished the impetus for the development of a desire to find and correct all physical defects that might be present in American children. California has taken an active part in the promotion of the health of women and children and the Bureau of Child Hygiene of the Department of Health has answered the extensive demands made upon it. Most of the activities of this bureau are carried on in those of the rural districts where no service for the promotion of maternal and infant welfare is available.

Reduction of Infant Death Rate. The reductions in the death rates for infants under one year of age are most conspicuous. The infant mortality rate, which was 73 per 1000 live births in 1923, had fallen to 62.5 per 1000 live births in 1927. This means that 2551 babies lived who otherwise would have died had the 1923 rate not been reduced. Under the stimulation of the activities of the Bureau of Child Hygiene, 229 health centers are now being conducted where infants may secure periodic medical examinations and where mothers may be given educational advice in the upbringing of their children. These are scattered widely over the State, all of the more populous counties having at least one conference each month. The organization of conferences for well babies, physical examinations for children, of preschool age, mothers' classes, lectures, instruction in child care, public health nursing and other services has constituted the bulk of the work of this bureau. The Pacific coast states have achieved an enviable reputation for their maintenance of favorable conditions for the conservation of child life. Together with Washington and Oregon, California maintains the lowest infant mortality rate in the United States and these activities carried on by the State Department of Public Health are important factors in the acquisition of this prestige.

Prevention of Maternal Deaths. The work has not been confined alone to the promotion of the health of infants and young children, but activities have also been directed toward the prevention of maternal deaths. As a result, the maternal mortality rate fell from 6.7 deaths per 1000 births in 1923 to 5.2 maternal deaths per 1000 births in 1927. Had the 1923 rate prevailed during these five years the lives of 432 women would have been sacrificed at child birth. The work of the bureau along these lines consists of the inspection of maternity homes and hospitals, the provision of prenatal advice to prospective mothers; demonstrations in the technique of prenatal care, and the distribution of literature. Consultations with 6823 expectant mothers have been conducted and more than 20,000 sets of prenatal letters have been distributed.

Safeguarding the Health of the Tourist. Within recent years interstate automobile traffic has developed immeasurably. California has always attracted tourists, but during recent years the lure to the Golden State has brought enormous numbers of tourists, a very large proportion of whom travel by automobile. The State Department of Public Health has made every effort to safeguard the health of these tourists. It has provided sanitary inspection of wayside eating places; has assisted local authorities in the prevention of stream pollution; and has taken every precaution to protect wayfarers from contracting any diseases that might come from infected food or water. Since the tourist traffic is undoubtedly a tremendous commercial asset to the State, the importance of the establishment of protective measures is self-evident.

VARIOUS SAFEGUARDS TO HEALTH.

Safeguarding Domestic Water Supply. The topography and climate of California necessitates the extensive use of surface streams for domestic water supplies. Most California communities are obliged to obtain their drinking water from such surface streams. This necessitates the treatment of all such water supplies in order to make certain that no disease may be contracted through the use of contaminated water. The State Department of Public Health has stimulated much activity among the officials of communities which draw their water supplies from surface streams, and as a result properly treated waters are distributed to most of the residents of California. Not a single epidemic of water-borne typhoid has occurred within the State since 1924.

Problem of Sewage Disposal. All over the United States during recent years there has been a tendency for residents of rural communities to flock to the larger centers of population. This tendency has shown itself in California as well as in other states. The sudden increases in population of the large cities have placed tremendous strains upon the physical capacities of all public works, including streets, water supplies, sewage disposal systems, and other public utilities. The adequate and proper disposal of sewage in the average large city has become an acute problem. The State Department of Public Health has provided needed assistance leading to the solution of these problems. It passed upon the design of sewage disposal systems, and under the law issues permits for the construction of such systems. There has been recently a marked advance in the design of both large and small sewage disposal systems, and the State Department of Public Health is responsible in no small measure for the progress recorded.

Protection of Food Supplies. The canning industry of California is one of its largest industries, and the insurance of the packing of high-grade food products for distribution throughout the world is essential for its progress. Upon its own initiative the canning industry enlisted the support of the State Department of Public Health in the establishment and enforcement of regulations that would safeguard the quality of products canned in California, chiefly vegetables and fish. Through this cooperative arrangement, financed by the cannery themselves, no less than 50,000,000 cases of canned products have been inspected by the State Department of Public Health and the quality established definitely.

Importance of Public Health Work. Because of its proximity to oriental and tropical ports, California has public health problems that are of special significance. Alertness in the detection of communicable diseases that may be brought into the State is essential. The State Department of Public Health is entrusted with a heavy responsibility in safeguarding the health of Californians and, in a broader sense, the health of the people of other states, for, under modern conditions of transportation, epidemics of disease may be kindled with a speed comparable to that of our most rapid transportation facilities. The lowered death rates for many of the communicable diseases, and their favorable comparison with similar rates for other states, indicates that public health administration in California is conducted upon a high plane of efficiency and that the maintenance of adequate public health machinery produces results that are commensurate with the efforts and expenditures involved.

DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC WORKS.

The Department of Public Works, as the name indicates, has charge of all such activities as the construction and maintenance of our State highways, the building program for State hospitals, teachers colleges, and the like, and the development of our water resources. Its work is conducted under the Division of Highways (acting in conjunction with the Division of Contracts and Rights of Way), the Division of Engineering and Irrigation, the Division of Water Rights, the Division of Architecture and the Division of Ports (at present concerned only with the ports of Eureka, San Diego, and San Jose).

DIVISION OF HIGHWAYS.

Road Building Assumes Large Volume. The director of the department serves also as the head and administrative officer of the Division of Highways. The work of road building in California has of late years properly assumed very great importance, being only second to education in cost, both to the State and to the various counties. At the beginning of the present administration, only about $5,000,000 a year was available for the construction of new State highways, the bond issues previously used for that purpose having been exhausted some years before. The gasoline tax then coming to the State was used entirely for reconstruction, maintenance and repair.

Gasoline Tax Allocated by Law. At the 1927 session of the Legislature, the Breed Gasoline Tax Law was so amended as to provide a three-cent gas tax. Of this, one cent goes to the counties (to be shared with the cities as may be found desirable), one cent goes to maintenance and reconstruction of State roads, and one cent to the constructing of new State highways. A State Highway Commission of five members, serving without pay, acting on the basis of facts ascertained by the engineers, at the beginning of each biennium allocates the funds to various highways of the State. The percentage of overhead cost is being steadily reduced, efficiency of operation is being increased, and it can probably be said that, both in extent and quality of road construction and in its business-like administration, California stands at the forefront of all the states.

BUDGETING OF HIGHWAY EXPENDITURES.

New Budget Policy. Up to two years ago, road construction was not mentioned in the State budget except an item of $20,800 per year for the salaries of the Highway Commission and Highway Engineer. The 1927 budget, however, published not only an estimate of highway expenditures for the succeeding biennium, but also gave a list of specific expenditures proposed for reconstruction of State roads. This marked the inauguration of a new policy in State highway affairs in California, that of frankly telling the public in advance of expenditures just where and how it is proposed to spend highway funds.

Original Gasoline Tax Plans. The maintenance and reconstruction program in this first budget involved total expenditures of $27,100,000, a like amount being allotted to the counties as their share of the two-cent gas tax. Supplemental allotments of increased revenue and savings on contract awards brought the total of this budget to $28,577,517 for the biennium.

Highway Funds Total. In January, 1928, the additional cent gas tax for the construction of new roads became effective, and a detailed budget of the new roads proposed, and the amount to be spent on each, was at once published. This budget allocated $15,100,000 for new construction, this being estimated available income from the present gasoline tax for the 18 months of the biennium during which the new law was effective. The budget for expenditures of federal road money (third State highway funds) totals $5,582,834. The total of the budget for the three State highway funds for the present biennium, therefore, aggregated $40,200,000. This does not include the money turned over to the counties for highway purposes, which aggregated $25,000,000 and which was included in the budget, since it represents an allocation of revenue raised through State law.

Budget for Next Two Years. The budget for the 1929-1931 highway program with the funds specifically allocated for new construction had practically been completed, and is being submitted in the accompanying budget message. The highway program of the State has become so important, and the sources of its revenue are so distinct that for the sake of convenience, it has been thought wise to segregate the highway budget from the budget of expenditures for education, and for general purposes. Fund work looking toward the preservation of the highway budget for the biennium of 1931-1933 has already been begun.

Highway System to Date. There are now fifty miles controlled by the State highway system, 4273 miles being of primary and 2,792 miles of secondary roads. Of this mileage 2,465 are graded and paved, 1,350 miles are graded and unpaved, 517 miles are merely graded and not yet paved or surfaced, while 2,333 miles have as yet had no work done upon them by the State.

POLICY AS TO NEW STATE ROADS.

Policy as to the Inclusion of New Roads in the State System. At this time it will be necessary to establish some policy relative to the inclusion of new roads within the State highway system. There is a certain amount of confusion which, by error in description, by oversight, or through other cause, has not remained in the State system when the patent roads were designated as State highways. This probably should be annexed to the present system of roads. It comprises about fifteen miles. But aside from this I am very doubtful whether other additions can be made just now without disrupting our entire highway program.

Method, Priority and Time of Adding New Roads. There are certain other roads, now a part of county highway systems, that are largely devoted to State rather than local uses. These roads clearly have prior right to become a part of the State system, when that system is expanded. The question arises as to when such transfer should take place. I would suggest to the Department of Public Works that during the next two years he make a comprehensive traffic study of those county highways in California which now serve as arterial highways, or of roads not now in the State system of probable arterial value, to determine what roads should be added to the system, and the order in which they should be added as determined by State use and traffic needs, together with an estimate of the probable time when such roads can be included in the State system without imposing an impossible burden on that system.

Recommendation of Department Necessary. No Governor should be asked or expected to sign a bill providing for the extension of the State highway system, except upon recommendation of the Department of Public Works, a recommendation in its turn based upon a careful study of traffic requirements and highway use, in line with the broad general policy of long time planning. Any other plan will break down our program of highway construction and will sever of political expediency rather than of safe and business-like procedure. Whatever policy may be adopted must be based on traffic and not political pressure.

HIGHWAY AND BRIDGE CONSTRUCTION

Moneys Distributed as Required by Law. Particular attention is being given to increasing the volume of winter highway work as a means of assisting in the relief of seasonal unemployment. Allocation of funds, both for new construction and for reconstruction, has been made in strict accordance with the Brood bill. In this connection it should be clearly understood that a balance as between construction expenditure in the northern and the southern group of counties can not economically be maintained on a day to day, week to week, or month to month basis. In the northern counties work must be largely prosecuted during the summer months, if due regard is to be given to economy in construction. The southern group of counties offers advantages for winter work, work highly desirable because of the aid to seasonal unemployment that usually prevails during the winter months. Accordingly, during the summer the northern group of counties will inevitably show a greater ratio of expenditure than the southern group, while in the winter conditions will be reversed. A biennial financial balance, however, is entirely possible and will be maintained.

Volume of Work. The importance to California of State highway expenditures is shown by the fact that the volume of these expenditures authorized to date (January 7th) for the biennium reached the huge total of $41,346,184. This money is distributed all over California, furnishing a large, immediate market both for labor and goods, as well as contributing to the future development of the State.

Toll Bridges. The policy of the State can be expressed as opposed to privately owned and controlled toll bridges on the State system of highways, but not opposed to publicly constructed, owned and operated toll bridges where adequate public funds are not now available for the construction of free structures. In all cases, however, the aim will be to amortize these investments as rapidly as possible, in order to be able to turn them over to the public, free from all tolls, at the earliest possible date.

HIGHWAY SAFETY AND BEAUTIFICATION.

Increasing Safety of Highways. Increased attention is being given to making the highways of the State safer for travel. This is being accomplished through the elimination of dangerous curves; the separation of railroad grade crossings; striping the highways and thus providing defined travel ways; the abatement of the dust danger through oiling operations; betterment in alignment; more adequate protective signing; reduction in the crown of roads; increase in road widths; filling borrow pits; increase in guard rails, etc.

Wider Rights of Way. During the present biennium, substantial progress has been made toward securing the 100-foot right of way as the minimum requirements of all main north and south State highways and on all other important arteries of travel. Notable examples of highways where the minimum right of way of 100 feet has been obtained are the Foothill boulevard in Los Angeles and San Bernardino counties, and the Bay Shore highway in San Mateo County. On practically every road which was built or reconstructed during the present fiscal year the ultimate width desired for right of way was obtained before contracts were let.

Highway Beautification. A definite campaign which is winning widespread support has been launched to save the scenic values of highways, by preventing their injury through unsightly roadside structures and by billboards which, while properly situated in commercial areas along highways, yet have no place along our scenic roads. Study of the highway system is being made to determine those areas of particular scenic charm, recreational value and historical interest, lying adjacent to the highways, that should be preserved. Model sections are being planned at various points to show planting methods by which roadside beautification can be accomplished. An effort has been made to assist in the "Save the Beaches" movement, and care has been given to the preservation of roadside trees and shrubs and other trees, of unusual interest or importance, although growing off the highway right of way.

PRISON ROAD CAMPS.

Origin and Purpose. Convict labor on highways is no longer an experiment in California. It has been in existence for fourteen years, being first authorized by the Legislature of 1915. Although such labor costs practically the same as road building by contract, it has more than justified itself by the good it has done for the prisoners themselves. The work is for the most part in rough mountain country, and the men are practically unguarded; yet attempts at escape are very few, as are also the numbers of former road camp prisoners who drift back into crime after their release.

Convict Road Projects. The number of convict highway projects is now eight as compared with three such projects during the winter of 1927-1928. The expansion of convict camp work has meant the average employment on highway work from March 1, 1928, to December 1, 1928, of 490 prisoners. This has relieved the State of a considerable burden of expense in the maintenance of prisoners in San Quentin. It is estimated that the average employment of 650 convicts on road projects saves $150,000 a year in their prison upkeep, besides doing immeasurable good in so rehabilitating them physically and mentally as to enable them to "go straight" at the expiration of their term. The small percentage that return to crime after a road camp experience is very gratifying.

Nearly Six Hundred at Work. There were 571 prisoners at work on State highways on December 1, 1928, all of them being paid a small wage for their work. Out of the earnings of the prisoners, a substantial sum has been allotted by them to the care of dependents. Those without dependents save something to aid them in starting life anew. It is worthy of note that out of every one dollar spent on convict highway projects approximately eighty cents goes directly or indirectly to free labor.

DIVISION OF ENGINEERING AND IRRIGATION.

Dam Investigations. Although the fact that St. Francis dam was a municipal project exempted it from approval and supervision by the State, yet it was felt that the collapse of the dam presented a situation of such vital importance that an investigation of the causes leading to its failure should be made by a board, both expert and impartial. The State accordingly took upon itself the task of organizing such a board. The result of the investigation and the report of the board constituted a notable contribution to the science of dam building, and was a material factor in paving the way for an amicable adjustment of damage claims arising from the disaster. The State board was the first to report. Its reports were followed by the reports of five other investigating bodies, whose findings all agreed with that of the State board. Following this investigation, a general study of all dam structures in California was undertaken by the division, and is now under way. This investigation, it is believed, will have important results in assuring California that conservation of its water supply can proceed with knowledge that this water is being reservoirized behind safe structures.

Water Investigations. The Division of Engineering and Irrigation has worked in cooperation with the legislative committee in further study of a plan for coordinating water resources of California. Studies have been both economic and physical. More detailed engineering investigations of certain parts in the coordinated project have been made, while economic phases of the development of these projects have also been studied. The division also participated in hearings held by the legislative committee.

Irrigation Districts. The biennium has been important in the greater degree of supervision that has been given to financial structure of irrigation districts. There has been little increase in the land area of irrigation districts during the biennium. Supervision of engineering of these districts has followed the usual procedure. An interesting feature has been the growing importance of water storage districts as a factor in the irrigation situation in California.

Flood Control. Usual phases of flood control activity carried on as an outstanding development of the biennium has been the demonstration of the soundness of California's plan of flood control through the by-pass system, as proved by the flood of March, 1928. This system is to form the basis in Mississippi flood control plans.

DIVISION OF ARCHITECTURE.

Construction Work. The total amount of construction work handled by the division in the past 18 months is $6,556,191.44, the cost of architectural and engineering service being 5.27 per cent of that sum. This is the largest construction program in that period of time in the history of the division.

Extent of Activities. Construction activities during the period were located at 50 places, and consisted of 194 different projects. Of these, 99 were of minor character, being under $10,000 in cost. By June 30, 1929, all but four of the 194 projects will be complete.

Promptness of Action. During the past year the work of this division has been so speeded up that hereafter there will be eliminated the long delay which formerly prevailed, with many months, or even years, elapsing after the Legislature had authorized a building before its construction actually commenced. Existing work has been hastened, tentative drawings have been made for proposed building operations under this year's budget, and as soon as the Legislature approves the budget, detailed drawings will be commenced, so that building contracts may be let as soon as the bill goes into effect.

Ten-year Building Program. When we consider the steady increase in inmate population of the various institutions, it would seem utterly impossible wisely to plan for their efficient and economical functioning on any basis other than a building program spread over a period of years.

DIVISION OF WATER RIGHTS.

Much Interest in Water Locations. The division has received 858 applications to appropriate water, approving 481. It has revoked 203 permits for failure to comply with the conditions thereof, and has issued 189 licenses confirming rights acquired through applications filed and beneficial use.

Water Investigations and Studies. An investigation covering several years has been completed, dealing with surface and underground water supplies, and uses of water, in the San Gabriel basin in Los Angeles County. Studies of water titles have been completed and reports filed preparatory to clearing water titles on Shasta River in Siskiyou County, Whitewater River in Riverside and San Bernardino counties, North Cow Creek in Shasta County, and Owl and Soldier creeks in Modoc County. In cooperation with Ventura County an investigation of surface and underground waters has been begun. Similar work is in progress on Upper Pit River in Modoc and Lassen counties.

Court and Division Decisions. The adjudication proceedings under which the division functions in clearing up water titles has been approved by the Supreme Court. The superior court of San Joaquin County has upheld in the main the division order of determination in the Stanislaus River proceedings. The status of stored waters after same has been used and restored to a stream has been determined by the division. Another division decision has established the principle that users of underground waters may not complain of diversions from the source supplying their basin providing steps are taken to maintain the underground level at the elevation which would have obtained were the diversions not made, and providing physical basis for such maintenance.

STATE HARBOR COMMISSION.

Although the State Harbor Commission is not organized under the Department of Public Works, an account of its activities may appropriately be inserted in this place. The statistical data furnished me has covered the last fiscal biennium, and the figures here set down consequently extend only to July 1, 1928. Since that time, however, it is safe to say that here has been the same steady increase in business and revenues that has been noticeable throughout the last two years.

Increase of Business. Cargo passing over the piers during the past biennium reached the enormous total of 21,985,937 tons, an increase of 1,234,525 tons over the previous two years. The State Belt Railroad handled 265,862 loaded cars, an increase of 23,923, or 9.8 per cent. Operating revenues amounted to $5,965,008.65, an increase of $373,011.67.

Decrease of Expense. Notwithstanding the increased business and revenue and the additional facilities operated, the operating expense has steadily decreased. Not only was the biennial expense less than for the preceding two years, but the last year of the fiscal biennium (all within the present administration) showed a decreased expense over the previous year of $71,729.08. This decrease in operating expense was brought about by numerous economies and by strict regulation of the purchase of materials and supplies, but without any loss in efficiency or curtailment in service.

Wage Raises. This decreased expense of operation has been made in face of the fact that there have been substantial wage raises during the period. Wage increase granted to railroad employees by the Federal Wage Board caused similar increase for employees of the Belt Railroad amounting to $14,808 per year. Wage increases awarded by the San Francisco Impartial Wage Board to mechanics and other employees prompted our Civil Service Commission to meet these increases to the extent of $18,935 per year. These increases were undoubtedly deserved, but necessarily lessened net revenues. Notwithstanding this fact, during the past fiscal year under the present administration, net revenues over expenditures amount to $142,100.

Contemplated Improvements. Among the improvements which are about to be provided is a new pier at a cost of $500,000 on which construction is just about to begin, and two new modern piers for which plans are being prepared, and which will cost about $1,000,000 each. Besides this there must soon be an extension of the Belt Railroad, the raising of the wharf and Embarkadero between Mission and Harrison streets, the enlargement of storeroom and shop facilities, and very possibly the creation of a precooling storage plant, elsewhere discussed in this message.

New Accounting System. In cooperation with the Department of Finance, a new accounting system has been adopted and will shortly be installed. This new system, badly needed to replace the present inadequate and very ancient methods of recording the transactions of the port, is the result of about a year of continuous study and many months of careful preparation. It provides for the extensive use of tabulating and bookkeeping machines, by which methods very complete and comprehensive accounting and statistical records will be maintained at practically no additional cost.

A State Harbor. It must be kept in mind that this is a self-supporting State harbor, naturally of special service to San Francisco and the bay region, but none the less of extreme importance to all the State. The proposed refrigeration warehouse for the benefit of agriculture suggests the wider State uses, of which the harbor is capable. It has been built up and its bonds have been sold under State auspices, and I must follow the lead of all other governors in calling attention to the fact that its continued proper maintenance by the State will best serve not only the State at large, but also the city of San Francisco where it is located.

DEPARTMENT OF SOCIAL WELFARE.

The chief function of a Department of Social Welfare is to reduce, as far as possible, the social burden of insanity, feeble-mindedness, crime, delinquency and dependency by providing needy children with the opportunity to grow up under normal home conditions, and thereby become worthy self-supporting citizens.

Begin With the Children. With thousands of adults who are already mentally and physically unfit and socially demoralized, it is of course impossible to find and remove all of the causes of adult crime, delinquency and dependency. This department, together with similar local agencies, is, however, slowly but surely developing programs which in time will greatly reduce this enormous social and economic burden. In this endeavor the greatest results are naturally achieved through work in child welfare.

An Ultimate Saving. Social welfare work is both so necessary and so costly at best that only the most efficient modern methods can be used, and the strictest economy practiced. The phase of the work which falls under the Department of Social Welfare is, however, an ultimate saving to the taxpayer on the principle that an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure. The department programs the social work of the State and exercises advisory and supervisory powers through a small staff of trained workers.

Organization. In addition to this, the department collects State-wide information on social conditions and problems, and disseminates that information where it rightly belongs. For administrative purposes the work is organized under three divisions: The Division of Inspection and Studies, the Division of County Relations, and the Division of Children's Work.

DIVISION OF INSPECTION AND STUDIES.

Group Studies. During the present biennium a number of important studies and surveys have been made by this division. Among them was a study of the adult blind, first suggested by the problem of securing the greatest efficiency in industrial training for the blind, and now doubly important in view of the constitutional amendment just adopted for blind relief. One of the values of the Governor's Council was demonstrated a few months ago when three departments were found to be vitally interested in the conditions of the adult blind of the State. Consequently the directors of education, institutions, and social welfare were appointed a committee to bring the present program, which was formulated forty years ago, up to a point where it meets modern conditions. The directors arranged a series of the adult blind under the Department of Social Welfare and a special program has been agreed upon, covering education, rehabilitation, training and placement. In compliance with a request from the 1927 legislature a survey of the adult aged in California, together with a study of old age pension legislation, was made during 1928. A report on this old age survey has been prepared for presentation to next present session. Still another study was made upon the social aspect of the Mexican situation, the latter being undertaken in conjunction with the Departments of Agriculture and Industrial Relations.

Survey of Land Settlement Colonies. There was also conducted a first capital survey of social conditions in one of the California Land Settlement colonies, where another has been undertaken to determine the efficacy of the Preston parole system. Beside this, it is required by law of this division to make inspections and reports as to conditions affecting the 24,666 inmates of State institutions, such as prisons, hospitals, juvenile detention homes, and the like. These inspections are welcomed as supplementing the work of the Department of Institutions and Prison Board, and are undertaken in such a way that duplication of work is avoided. By a further agreement with the Director of Institutions, this department inspects, supervises and licenses private homes for mentally defective children.

DIVISION OF COUNTY RELATIONS.

County Responsibilities. This division inspects and reports to boards of supervisors regarding conditions in county hospitals, jails, dispensaries, outdoor relief, juvenile detention homes and homes for the aged. The number of inmates in these county institutions ranges between fifty and sixty thousand. The work of the department concerns the standard of administration, housing, social records, and care of the inmates in these institutions.

The County Jail. The division during 1928 made a partial survey of jails, visiting 48 of the 60 jails of the State. During the period of this survey, 64,285 adults and 2024 juveniles passed through these county jails in one year, a number which does not take into account city jails or police stations. The report charges that the least standardized of all county work, and one of the biggest problems, is the county jail. The enforced idleness of the inmates, and the only too common lack of segregation of juveniles and first offenders from the older and more hardened criminals, adds to this problem.

County Welfare Work. The inspection of all county institutions is being carried on as rapidly as possible, and the department, in cooperation with the boards of supervisors, has established several county welfare departments for the direction of local social work. In general, the relations between county authorities and this State department have been cordial and mutually helpful.

DIVISION OF CHILDREN'S WORK.

Forty Thousand Children Aided. The Division of Children's Work licenses and supervises all children's institutions and boarding homes and children's agencies and has charge of the adoption work of the State, insuring that the adopted child finds a congenial and appropriate home. It also has charge of the administration of State aid for children. The number of children affected by this work is little short of 40,000.

Why This Dependency. For the first time in the history of the State, during the past year a census has been taken of all institutions caring for dependent children. Its purpose was to determine the types of children and the reasons for so large a number—between six and seven thousand—who are being cared for in institutions. The material gathered is very illuminating, and shows the causes and social conditions that contribute in the main to these children's dependency. In cooperation with children's institutions their requirements for license have been materially raised, the most important of these being that each institution must provide adequate trained service to assure proper study of each child's needs and careful planning for its future.

Homes Must Be Right. There are in California many children living away from their parents or legal guardians in family boarding homes, and to make certain that these boarding homes—more than 4000 in number—are in every case of a nature to give the right kind of upbringing to these children, is one of the great responsibilities of this department. Each of these homes is inspected and only those meeting the department's standards receive a license.

Our Provision for Orphans. As regards State aid to dependent orphans, half-orphans and certain other groups of children, the department has placed emphasis upon its uniform and satisfactory administration in every county of California. One of the main purposes of this act making State funds available to these children is to keep them in their own homes, and of the 14,000 children in California receiving the benefits of this aid, approximately 90 per cent are living with their own mothers. California's provision for this dependent group of boys and girls exceeds in liberality those of perhaps any other State. The interpretation of this law and the method of its administration secures for each child a more personal and intelligent use of available funds than is usual with legislation of this character.

Standardizing Juvenile Probation. Juvenile probation, which is one of the most important instruments of social welfare, has never in California had the advantage of anything but local direction, with the result that there has been developed no uniformity, either of administration or of standards. The department, realizing the supreme importance of probation work as an adjunct to its endeavors, has given to it much thought and effort. Just recently, in cooperation with the State Probation Officers Association, it has worked out an agreeable and satisfactory plan, which promises much for increasingly better results in work with problem children.

VOCATIONAL STANDARDS.

In California, as in other states, there has grown up a recognized policy of protecting the public safety, health, and welfare by the requirement of certain standards for the practice of various professions and occupations. These standards are enforced by requiring that every person engaged in the profession or occupation shall secure a license from the State, based upon an examination or other evidence of competency. The licensee is required to pay a fee for the examination and also an annual fee for the continuance of the license. This system of licensing came into existence primarily for the protection of public health and safety and to provide for requiring licenses for the practice of the healing arts. Subsequently it was extended to include professions and occupations dealing with various phases of personal, business, and industrial service. The test for the application of the licensing principle to any occupation should obviously be the extent to which public danger exists in the practice of the occupation by an unqualified person. It may be noted that California has been conservative as compared with other states in the application of restrictions to occupations.

Functions of Licensing Boards. Each of the boards administering California's laws on vocational standards has functions which can not be properly assigned to another board or to lay persons. These functions include the fixing of standards for the vocation, in so far as these standards are not fixed by law; the examination of candidates for licenses; and the determination of the necessity for revocation of licenses.

Interrelations Between Boards. However, in addition to these functions, there are many elements of interrelation between the respective boards. It seems highly desirable also that so important a function as that of professional and vocational licensing should be represented in the Governor's Council, thereby having the advantage of contact with the executive branch of government and with the other major departments. It would seem best to group these various licensing boards in some such departmental organization as will preserve their autonomy in all needs of professional or occupational interest but which will at the same time give opportunity for cooperative solution of their mutual problems, and give them representation in the Governor's Council.

Value of Definite Standards. It is my opinion that the recognition of this function as one of the major activities of the State government will do much toward clear thinking in the future when efforts are made to add new occupations to those for which a license is required. A standard by which the necessity for licensing an occupation is measured will be more definite when the occupation must be considered in comparison to those for which the State has already assumed responsibility through the Department of Vocational Standards and the Licensing Board.

Existing Boards Still to Be Maintained. I feel very strongly that the creation of such a department must involve the unhampered continuance of every existing board which regulates a profession, particularly those which deal with the healing arts; and this protection to the powers of the boards can very easily be accomplished and still give the necessary measure of coordination through a departmental organization which will bring the occupational licensing function of the State into harmony with the other activities of the government.

PROFESSIONAL BOARDS REGULATING THE HEALING ARTS.

Board of Medical Examiners. California has maintained splendid standards for the licensing of physicians and surgeons. It is safe to say that no state in the Union has given better attention to the welfare of its people through the protection against unqualified practitioners in this field. The Board of Medical Examiners works in close harmony with the institutions in California which train for the profession of medicine. In addition to the admission of new practitioners, many physicians come to California from other states. Reciprocity relations are maintained with other states whose standards are equal to those of California.

Prosecution of Violators. The activities of the board necessarily involve the prevention of unlicensed, unprofessional or incompetent practice. In rendering this service to the people of the State, the board finds it necessary from time to time to initiate criminal prosecutions against those who violate the Medical Practice Act of the State. In addition to such actions by the board, a continuing effort is being made to enlist the interest and cooperation of local law enforcement agencies because it is upon sustained local interest that the public most chiefly depends for adequate protection.

Reduced Fees. In this, as in every other licensing function of the government, it has been my policy to encourage the reduction of fees to a point which will merely meet the cost of proper regulation, and not accumulate an unnecessary surplus. In line with this policy the Board of Medical Examiners has, during the biennium, reduced by 50 per cent the annual renewal fee for physicians' licenses.

Board of Osteopathic Examiners. This board, created by initiative act, licenses and regulates the practice of osteopathy. In this regard the board has substantially the same functions and problems as those discussed in connection with the Board of Medical Examiners. Although the status of the board under its initiative act gives it much wider powers in relation to examinations, employment, and disciplinary functions, I am pleased to report that the members of the board have cooperated heartily and effectively with the general policy of the State, both as regards budget control and general policies of professional regulation.

Board of Chiropractic Examiners. This board, dealing with the licensing and regulation of chiropractors, is identical in its legal status with the Board of Osteopathic Examiners. Being one of the newest organized professions dealing with the healing arts, it has faced perplexing problems during the past several years. These problems are now approaching solution and a stabilized regulation of the profession will soon be evident.

Board of Dental Examiners. The activities of this board parallel very closely those of the Board of Medical Examiners, as to problems, as to professional standards, admissions to practice, reciprocity with other states and professional regulators. In line with the effort to improve its service to the profession and the public, the office of the secretary has been removed from Petaluma to a central location.

Board of Pharmacy. An act passed in 1927 raised the amount of college preparation necessary before candidates were eligible for examination as pharmacists. A greatly increased number of applications were received from those who deemed to be licensed before the new standard, became effective. This same legislation also enlarged the reciprocity relations with the pharmacists of other states. The fee for the annual license renewal was cut in half. There are approximately 10,000 pharmacists registered in the State of California. The suppression of the traffic in narcotics was taken over by a newly created division under the supervision of a chief. The operation of this division has been fully discussed earlier in this message.

Bureau of Registration of Nurses. This bureau is under the supervision of the State Board of Public Health. It has fifty-five accredited schools of nursing under its jurisdiction, which schools are regularly inspected by the personnel of the bureau. Approximately 20,000 registered nurses have certificates which allow them to use the title of registered nurse. The Board of Public Health recently passed a resolution increasing the educational requirements of classroom instruction in nursing and has also added a number of additional courses to those previously approved by the board. A pamphlet entitled "The Profession of Nursing" has been prepared and circulated among high schools and junior colleges. Examinations for the registration of nurses are held three times each year in both San Francisco and Los Angeles. High schools and colleges are occasionally visited and those interested in entering the profession are interviewed and counseled.

Board of Optometry. Regulation of the practice of optometry has become a recognized and necessary public function in most of the states. Excellent work has been done by this board in the promotion of proper standards of practice and the elimination of quackery.

OTHER VOCATIONAL LICENSING BOARDS.

Boards of Architecture. The State Board of Architecture is divided into two district boards, one for the north and one for the south. However, the board meets annually as an entire board and the district boards meet monthly in San Francisco and in Los Angeles. The board examines approximately 100 candidates for architects' certificates each year. It has been the object of the board to encourage proper architectural training, grant certificates only to those well qualified, and assist candidates to fit themselves for competent and honest service to the public and the commonwealth.

Detective License Bureau. The licensing of private detectives was further regulated by an act passed in 1927. By the provisions of that act the Board of Prison Directors employed a secretary to give full time to this work, with the result that an increased number of private detectives have come under State supervision and additional cooperation has been secured from law enforcement agencies and from mercantile concerns. In addition to those engaged in general detective business, uniformed patrols, insurance investigators and so-called store crackers are brought under the provisions of the act. Approximately 180 are now licensed and pay an annual fee of $50. Each must post a bond to insure faithful performance of duty. About 38 per cent of those licensed are engaged in patrol work and about 50 per cent in general detective business. The balance of about 12 per cent are engaged in insurance investigation, personal service and store checking. Detectives employed by political subdivisions of the State are not required to have a license under the provisions of the act.

Board of Embalmers. California stands among those at the top of the list of states in the matter of standards required of embalmers. A splendid type of young man is entering the vocation of embalming, and the board is diligently alert in passing upon applicants to assure that those who are licensed are properly versed in the care and the preparation of the dead in order that the public health may be properly safeguarded.

Board of Barber Examiners. This board was created by an act passed in 1927 and consists of three members who devote their entire time to the work of the board. The board has licensed over 17,000 barbers annually and in addition has approximately 450 apprentices registered. Examinations are held every three months in sixteen different cities throughout the State and in addition, in three other cities remotely situated, examinations are held every six months. The board has four inspectors working, who have inspected approximately 6000 barber shops. Sixty-nine barbers have been found practicing without certificates and 166 shops have been closed on account of insanitary conditions. Most of these have later reopened in conformity with law. The constant effort of the board is to improve sanitary and health conditions in barber shops, thus benefiting the public at large.

Board of Cosmetology. This board was also created by an act of the last Legislature. Under the provisions of the act the Board of Cosmetology blanketed in over 10,500 cosmetological operators. Since the effective date of the law all new operators have been licensed after passing the necessary examination. A large number of cosmetological establishments which before the passage of the act had little or no sanitary provisions for the protection of the public, have been remodeled and improved to meet the standards of sanitation required by the board. Eighty-eight schools of cosmetology were in existence before the passage of the act. Many of these schools were being conducted by unscrupulous and unprincipled persons. The number of these schools has been reduced to forty, and all of them are under the direct supervision of the board and are providing complete and standard courses in the teaching of the various phases of the vocation of cosmetology. Since the enactment of the law a decided improvement has been secured in the condition of cosmetological establishments and the general efficiency of the operators has been brought to a higher standard.

Board of Pilot Commissioners. Under existing law this board may license but twenty-two pilots, twenty for the port of San Francisco and two for the ports of Suisun and San Pablo and the Sacramento and San Joaquin rivers. Only two new pilots have been licensed by the board during the present biennium. The board has cooperated splendidly with the Division of Budgets and Accounts in the installation of a uniform system of accounting.

Board of Veterinary Medical Examiners. This board, by means of examinations, ascertains the professional qualifications of all applicants for license to practice veterinary medicine. During the past year and a half there has been an increase of fifty veterinarians licensed by the board. At the present time there are 510 licensed veterinarians in the State.

COMMISSIONS OF INVESTIGATION.

In line with the desire of the present State administration to get to the bottom of problems which confront us, the Legislature at its last session provided for a number of commissions, each charged with the duty of making some important study or investigation of interest to the State. Some of these commissions were legislative, composed of Senators and Assemblymen, and chosen by the presiding officers of the two houses. Among these were the Commission on Water Resources, the Commission on a New Penal Institution, the Commission on Compulsory Automobile Insurance, and the like. All these will report directly to the present Legislature, and I shall not presume to anticipate their reports.

Statutory Commissions. Some of the commissions, on the other hand, were statutory, with members to be appointed by the Governor. Among these was the commission to make preparations for the Olympic games, the members of which have not yet been named, owing to the fact that need for their services is only just arising. Others, like the School Code Commission or the Commission on a Penal Institution for Women, have been treated in appropriate places in other portions of this message. Still others, like the Tax Commission, the Crime Commission, and the Commission on Pensions and State Aid, may properly be treated in this place.

TAX COMMISSION.

Nature of the Tax Problem. The California Tax Commission was created in recognition of the fact that the people of the State were demanding a very careful study of our tax problems. It was not because we needed new sources of revenue to provide more money, for we had so cut down expenditures that our existing tax system would apparently supply sufficient revenues for some time to come, with an occasional increase in the gross profits rates of public service corporations. It was rather because certain of these corporations were manifestly being heavily overtaxed, while other larger and more prosperous corporations of the same class were escaping with a clearly insufficient tax burden. It was also because real estate, especially in certain counties, was obviously paying more than its fair share of our taxes. It was because we had begun to doubt whether our tax system was, after all, the best or most equitable one.

Organization and Meetings of Commission. After various meetings for organization purposes, a technical staff was recruited from some of the leading tax experts of the nation, with Dr. Robert M. Haug of Columbia University at its head. At the outset public meetings were held at various cities in different sections of the State. The chairman of the commission has given almost continuous service every day since its organization, and a number of other commissioners have been constantly available. An average of one formal meeting each month has been held, generally of three days duration.

Emergency Bank Tax Situation. The commission had not proceeded far with its labors before it discovered that a critical situation existed in the taxation of banks. On August 10th the commission issued a special report, analyzing the bank tax problem, as well as the related questions of the taxes on corporate franchises and on securities and solvent credits, and urging that a special session of the Legislature be called to consider an amendment to the constitution designed to meet the situation. This special session was called, and on September 7th the Legislature, by unanimous vote, decided to submit to the electorate the amendment recommended by the commission. At the election of November 6th the people adopted the amendment by a majority of almost three to one.

Provisions of New Amendment. The amendment, as passed, substitutes a tax "based on or according to the net income" of banks, for the old tax on bank shares, the rate being specified at 4 per cent. It imposes a similar tax on other business and financial corporations in substitution for the old corporate franchise tax, with provision whereby personal property taxes paid by such corporations may be offset against the new tax to the extent of 90 per cent of the new tax. Finally, it imposes a 3-mill tax on so-called "foreign" securities and solvent credits. The Legislature will be asked to provide the detailed legislation necessary to put the new amendment into effect.

Solution of the Main Problem. In the meantime the commission has been carrying forward its analysis of the general tax problem of the State, and has in preparation its report which will be submitted to you some time during this month. I believe that you will find this report a very comprehensive one, possibly more exhaustive and more carefully prepared than any before offered in any state. It represents the earnest, conscientious work of the commission and its staff of experts, and will be worthy of your most careful consideration. It will attempt to do for California what every state is seeking—give it the fairest and most equitable tax system possible under present conditions, and point the way to further improvements on the system as soon as public demand is ready to receive them.

Time Available for Deliberation. Conditions surrounding the commission's main report will be very different from those at the time of the bank tax emergency. Then action was imperative at once if any relief was to be secured. Hence the special legislative session and the prompt submission of the constitutional amendment to the voters. In this case, however, no such haste will be necessary. The commission will probably recommend a constitutional amendment to be adopted by you now, for submission to the voters in November, 1930. This will give two years for study of the amendment, and if there is the general wish for a tax change which the commission senses, the amendment will undoubtedly be acclaimed by both yourselves and the electorate as the best possible present solution. However, there will be no desire on the part of either the commission or myself to force any tax change for which an actual demand does not exist, and I shall suggest that during the February recess you lay this matter before your constituents, in order to ascertain the strength of this demand.

CRIME COMMISSION.

Purpose of the Commission. The California Crime Commission was established by the last Legislature to make a careful study as to the causes and cure of crime. The Legislature had already passed a large number of code bills, designed to expedite criminal procedure in our courts, and it was considered wise to create this commission for a more fundamental survey of the problem. The commission began its work by reviewing the reports of other State commissions, such as those of New York, Minnesota and Missouri, as well as the proceedings and proposals for legislation submitted by the National Crime Commission.

Investigations by the Commission. The commission communicated with every State, county and city official whose duties bring him into contact with crime in any of its phases or at any stage. This included justices of the supreme and appellate courts, every superior court judge, every municipal and police judge, every district attorney, sheriff, police chief, probation officer, public defender, prison and reformatory official. Those who have made a study of crime were also appealed to, such as physicians, psychiatrists and educators.

Public Hearings and Meetings. In order to get into touch with every interested citizen, the commission held a number of public hearings in Los Angeles, San Francisco, Oakland, Sacramento, Berkeley, San Jose and other places. Members of the faculties of the University of California and Stanford were consulted. Meetings were held in conjunction with the State Bar Association at Pasadena, the district attorneys' convention at Del Monte, the Conference of Social Agencies at Yosemite, and the State Peace Officers' Association at San Bernardino.

Special Investigations. The chairman of the commission visited the prison at Stillwater, Minnesota, as a place where prison industrial development is very excellently carried out. Another member visited several reformatory institutions in the eastern states, to learn their methods of segregating the youthful from the older and more hardened offenders. Still another member attended sessions of the National Crime Commission and the criminal law section of the American Bar Association. Everything thus learned, both outside the State and from our own officials, has been classified, summarized and studied.

The Commission's Recommendations. The commission will recommend to this Legislature a limited number of bills, probably not more than twenty in number. They have avoided mere changes in code procedure, deeming that these were either covered at last session or may be cared for through rules promulgated by the Judicial Council. They have also avoided adding to the number of statutory offenses, but have submitted all their proposals and suggestions to these tests: Is this legislation likely to prevent or reduce crime? Will it make crime more difficult to commit, and the consequences of crime more difficult to escape? Will it help our penal institutions to cure crime rather than breed it? The importance of this problem is so great that I earnestly recommend to you every effort toward its solution.

STATE AID AND PENSION COMMISSIONS.

Special Investigations. Three investigations, initiated by the Legislature in 1927, deal with the teachers' retirement salary fund, pensions for State employees, and the problem of aid for the needy aged. The three investigations have some common characteristics, chiefly the scientific determination of the future probable liabilities of the State and the need of solid financial foundations. They further reflect the basic idea I have ever kept in mind of building for the future as well as for today.

Teachers' Retirement Fund. This study is being conducted by a special commission created by act of the Legislature. This commission advises me that their report will set forth the basis of a sound, permanent system and indicate the steps which would accomplish the revision of the present plan. We have had sufficient experience, both in California and elsewhere, upon which to plan soundly for a teachers' retirement salary system. Our own California experiment has been valuable. It does not now fully meet the need: the amount of retirement salary is too small, and it does not provide assurance of permanent sufficiency of contributions. Under these circumstances I feel that the study made at your direction should be given wide publicity and that any changes necessary should be made with the hearty concurrence of all those interested, including the teachers and school administrators.

Pensions for State Employees. This subject has, I believe, in some form been brought before every legislative session in the past twenty years. The first definite action was the measure adopted in 1927 authorizing a study. The report of the special commission will be presented to you within a few days. I understand that it will recommend a plan to provide retirement salaries or pensions, based on contributions by the employees and the State.

Fundamental Requirements. In our common desire to make just and proper provision for employees who have served long and faithfully, and our desire to have our teachers' retirement system comply with modern standards, we should, I believe, proceed as promptly as possible in conformity with these fundamental requirements:

1. Financial soundness.
2. Constitutional soundness, involving if necessary an amendment to be adopted by the people.

State Aid for Needy Aged. This problem is reported upon by the Department of Social Welfare as directed by your act in 1927. California has a splendid record of success with State aid for orphans. I trust you will give most sympathetic consideration to the extension of State aid, in cooperation with the counties, for the indigent aged, and the necessary constitutional and financial provisions to put it into effect.

SUGGESTED DEPARTMENTAL LEGISLATION.

Reorganization Bills. As discussed elsewhere in this message, bills will be introduced for the creation of new departments and for the reorganization of existing departments in certain minor details. These bills will provide for the creation of a Department of Investment Regulation to include the activities relating to the regulation of banks, insurance companies, real estate brokers, building and loan associations and corporations; the creation of a Department of Vocational Standards to include the boards of Accountancy, Architecture, Dental Examiners, Embalmers, Barber Examiners, Cosmetology, Medical Examiners, Optometry, Pharmacy, Pilot Commissions, Veterinary Medical Examiners and the Detective License Bureau of the Board of Prison Directors and the Bureau of Registration of Nurses of the Department of Public Health; the creation of a Department of Military and Veterans' Affairs to include the Adjutant General, Veterans' Welfare Board, Woman's Relief Corps Home and Veterans' Home of California; the possible creation of a Department of Penology, to maintain contact between the prisons, the proposed woman's penal institution, the Bureau of Criminal Identification, the Advisory Pardon Board, and the Division of Narcotic Control; the transfer of the State Agricultural Society and the various district agricultural associations, the Civil Service Commission and the Surveyor General to the Department of Finance; the transfer from the Department of Finance to the Department of Public Works the activities relating to the Division of Motor Vehicles; the creation of a new Board of Agriculture as an advisory board to the Director of Agriculture; and the transfer to the Department of Industrial Relations the duties of the State Fire Marshal in connection with the licensing of cleaning and dyeing establishments, and various other bills such as may be needed to complete the reorganization program of the State.

CONCLUSION

In concluding this message I trust I may be pardoned for describing it in a somewhat comprehensive survey of the condition of the State. I do make known the message is lengthy. The agency of the Greenback Channel has made it possible to lay before you, much more comprehensively than before, the status of governmental activities. The faithful adherence to the constitutional provisions regarding the budget has given us a framework for a financial survey of the State which, well as I believe, very valuable to all of us.

Apart from these considerations, that I express again my conviction that the dominant public policy in the minds of all the people at this time is one of long-time planning. The facts and conditions reported to you in this biennial message are data upon which plans will be laid by you and by those who will follow you for the progressive development of our State through many years to come. A careful analysis of true conditions is somewhat tedious to write as well as read, but such a careful analysis guarantees that our progress shall be sane and consistent rather than spasmodic.

We are enjoying in California the privileges and blessings of a government which is the outgrowth of an era of pragmatism that had its beginning about twenty years ago. By marshalling of facts, by an analysis of needs, and by a survey of our resources, we have before us an opportunity to launch a program of constructive progress which, without regard to persons or politics, will influence the history of California for a generation to come.

Respectfully submitted,

C. C. YOUNG, Governor of California.

MESSAGE FROM THE GOVERNOR.

The following message from the Governor was received and read:

BUDGET MESSAGE OF C. C. YOUNG, GOVERNOR OF CALIFORNIA
To the Members of the Senate and Assembly.

The budget herewith presented has been prepared in accordance with section 34 of article IV, of the State constitution. In submitting this budget I have adapted the same plan as was followed in the budget presented by me to the Legislature two years ago; a plan by which all of the proposed expenditures of the State provided by existing law, together with such other items as may be recommended for your consideration, have been included. Every dollar of proposed expenditure has been accounted for, whether to be disbursed by the State directly, or indirectly through the agency of the counties, as in the case of schools, highways, airplanes and the like.

A SEGREGATED BUDGET.

The proposed expenditures for the coming biennium have been segregated into three separate sections, namely, the general budget, the educational budget, and the highway budget. This segregation has been made in order that special study may be given to each of those three major functional expenditures of the State. The expenditures for the general activities of the State comprise but 24 per cent of the entire budget, while 32 per cent is expended for education and 44 per cent for highways. A large group of the public is directly interested in the expenditures made by the State for educational purposes, while still another large group is interested in the expenditures for highway purposes. Many requests are received throughout the year for detailed statements of expenditures for those two purposes, and special pamphlets dealing with the educational section and the highway section of the budget will be separately printed for distribution to those requesting this information.

DEPARTMENTAL REQUESTS REPORTED.

Another new procedure is introduced in making known to you the amounts requested by the various agencies of the State and the reasons why deductions have been made in some of the requests. A detailed explanation has been inserted before each functional group in the budget.

Your attention is particularly invited to the fact that of the total budget only $66,434,322, or 27.22 per cent, comes under the direct control of the Governor. The other 72.78 per cent, or $177,626,784, of the budget is made up of fixed charges, comprising items which have been appropriated in recurrent amounts by the Legislature, and for expenditures definitely fixed by vote of the people.

THE GENERAL BUDGET.

The general budget, totaling $58,710,614, represents an increase of only 6.79 per cent over the expenditures of the previous biennium. This increase is far below the estimated percentage of increase of the population of the State for the next two years. This is without doubt the smallest percentage of increase for the general budget in the history of the State, and represents an actual substantial reduction in the per capita cost of State government. Of the general budget $6,831,670 consists of fixed charges. The general budget has been arranged according to departmental functions, grouping therein departments already in existence and such other activities as naturally suggest themselves as parts of a functional group. This arrangement will enable those interested in any particular departmental activity to find all of the items in connection with that activity grouped together. This new form of budget has met with the approval of those who are interested in the scientific preparation of governmental budgets.

SALARIES SUBJECT TO REVISION.

The salaries shown in this budget are those which were actually paid in the 79th fiscal year and are such as are approved for the present fiscal year. In the 81st and 82d fiscal years the salaries shown are in most cases the recommendations made by the departments. It was impossible to check the proposed individual salary increases with the salaries to which the respective employees were properly entitled under the salary schedules of the Civil Service Commission. There is, therefore, no assurance that the proposed salaries will be paid to the occupants of the various positions in the next biennium.

It is recommended that arrangements be made by which the Civil Service Commission may be put in a position to assist in the consideration of the budget by the Department of Finance, so that in future budgets the salaries may be shown as actually paid at the time of the making of the budget; and that a general item be included for each department to provide for the normal increases in compensation after making due allowance for the turnover of employees. This plan, if adopted, will obviate the apparent effort to determine the individual salary allowance nearly two and a half years in advance of the time of payment, and will justly give effect to the salary schedules scientifically prepared by the Civil Service Commission.

RETIREMENT OF FUNDED DEBT BONDS.

Your attention is invited to the expenditure of $282,870 each biennium for interest on $2,277,500 funded debt 6 per cent bonds of 1873, as shown on page 192 of the general budget. These bonds would have matured in 1893, but the people, in 1892, voted not to retire the bonds, which were then held by the school fund and the university fund. The Legislature accordingly, by the provisions of chapter 65, Statutes of 1893, provided that interest should continue to be paid on the bonds. In addition to the bonds for which interest was provided by the act of 1893, the Legislature also included an amount of $78,750 due the university fund for amounts incorrectly withdrawn in previous years, and upon which interest at 6 per cent per annum was added to the amount of interest for the bonds.

The interest, which has been paid annually for thirty-five years, amounts to $3,950,225. This sum would have been sufficient to retire the bonds and leave a balance of $1,172,725. It is recommended that consideration be given to the gradual retirement of these bonds, which would effect a biennial saving of the $282,870 now paid out in interest.

THE EDUCATIONAL BUDGET.

In this budget have been grouped together all of the expenditures proposed for educational purposes during the next biennium. The total educational budget of $78,931,901 includes $64,362,324 in fixed charges. The proposed expenditures for the University of California represent an increase of 12.76 per cent over the previous biennium, while the total educational budget represents an increase of 10.44 per cent over the previous biennium.

THE HIGHWAY BUDGET.

The total highway budget of $106,432,790 is entirely a fixed charge over which the Governor has no control. The increase in the proposed expenditures for the next biennium over the present biennium is 17.03 per cent. This increase is due largely to the additional one-cent gas tax law for new construction, which was enacted by the last Legislature, the revenue from which does not cover a complete two-year period in the present biennium. A considerable increase is also estimated in the gas tax for highway maintenance and reconstruction. These funds are dealt with in greater detail in the comment preceding the highway section of the budget.

The proposed highway budget for the next biennium shows an estimated expenditure of approximately $27,400,000 for new construction of highways. It is interesting to note the saving to the taxpayers effected by the "pay-as-you-go" plan. If bonds maturing over a period of forty years at 44 per cent interest were issued to provide the $27,400,000 for new construction, this construction would eventually cost the people of the State $51,272,250, or an increase of practically $24,000,000 over the cost of such construction under our present plan of financing.

THE TOTAL BUDGET.

The original requests received from all agencies exceeded the final approved budget by over $8,500,000. Many of the requests of the various agencies were voluntarily reduced after consultation. Conferences were held with heads of many of the State institutions and directors of departments, and different institutions were visited to obtain complete knowledge of the particular local situations involved. The State Architect and members of his staff were consulted on various permanent improvement programs. As a result of these conferences, a satisfactory understanding was reached with those in charge of the various activities, and we were enabled to reduce materially the amounts which were originally estimated as being necessary in the next biennium to provide for the needs of the agencies concerned.

The total of proposed expenditures for the next biennium represents an increase of 12.28 per cent, or $26,688,085. This increase represents approximately $16,408,274 from special funds and only $10,279,811 from the general fund. Moreover, of this amount, $22,291,638, or 83.65 per cent, represents an unescapable increase in fixed charges, while only $4,396,447, or 16.35 per cent, represents normal increase in the general activities of State government. As is shown further in this message, the percentage of increase for the total budget is lower than for any period since the budget law was enacted, while the actual amount of increase in money in the proposed expenditures during the ensuing biennium payable from the general fund of the State is far below the average of the past twelve years.

COUNTY SPENDING OF STATE REVENUES.

We frequently overlook the fact that a large part of the funds included in the State budget represents merely agency transactions by the State—funds which the State does not actually spend, but which are apportioned to the counties and local subdivisions. These items, generally speaking, are set aside by law, such as the funds apportioned to the counties out of the gasoline tax and other sources of highway revenue, apportionments for schools, and apportionments for tuberculosis subsidies.

For this reason a table showing the relative amounts of such agency transactions compared to actual government operations is submitted. It will be noted that in the general budget there is a recommended appropriation for this biennium of $640,000 for subsidies in order to cooperate with the counties in the fight against tuberculosis. In the educational budget 68 per cent of the recommended biennial appropriations and the apportionments provided by law will be distributed to be expended by counties for elementary schools, high schools and junior colleges. One-third of the total highway budget will be expended by counties for county roads, and for the payment by the State of the county road officers. A comparison of the totals of the table reveals that the sum of State funds apportioned to counties for agency transactions during the 81st and 82d fiscal years will be $10,000,000 more than the agency transactions of the 79th and 80th fiscal years. The agency transactions form a slightly greater percentage of the total budget than in the preceding biennium.

THE GENERAL FUND SURPLUS.

I am able to report to you a most satisfactory condition of the general fund. Instead of the reduction of the surplus in this fund believed inevitable by some experienced observers, there is a substantial increase.

In my message to you two years ago, transmitting the budget for the present biennium, beginning July 1, 1927 and ending June 30, 1929, I discussed at some length the general fund surplus which would presumably exist at the beginning of this biennial period. I quoted from a report of the State Controller on December 14, 1926, to the effect that the surplus June 30, 1923, was $4,707,852.21; that during the past two years $11,500,000 had been paid in by reduced comparisons to cover the impounded taxes resulting from the King Tax Bill litigation; and that those two amounts, or approximately $16,250,000, was the general fund surplus two years ago. By conserving the appropriation of $5,542,000 inadvertently made in 1925 for highway construction, we actually entered the biennium beginning July 1, 1927, with a general fund surplus of $20,420,983.

I urged the need of conserving this surplus to the greatest possible degree and quoted the State Controller further as saying that the next two years would reduce this general fund surplus to $10,000,000 without taking into consideration special appropriations commonly made by each legislative session. As a matter of fact, several major appropriations were made, notably that dealing with the employment of convicts on highway construction.

The utmost care has been exercised, however, to maintain the expenditures within the available revenues at all times. Consequently I am happy to report to you that instead of depleting in any degree the surplus with which we entered the biennium, we have been able materially to supplement it. On June 30, 1929, we will have a surplus in the general fund of $29,302,946.40, an increase in the two years of almost $10,000,000.

ANTICIPATED SURPLUS IN GENERAL FUND, JUNE 30, 1931.

The State Controller estimates the general fund surplus as of June 30, 1929, as above. The revenue for the ensuing biennium is estimated at $130,178,106.26, while the proposed expenditures for the same period total $129,399,310. In other words, the proposed budget of expenditures for the next biennium is less than the amount of estimated revenue which will accrue to the general fund of the State under existing statutes. An endeavor has been made this year to hold the increase of the budget to the lowest possible figure commensurate with intelligent service and absolutely necessary permanent improvements. Every effort was also made to keep the budget within the estimated revenues for the biennium, and I am glad to say that has been accomplished. However, legislation is to be recommended during the present session of the Legislature affecting the Inheritance Tax Law, which will reduce the revenue from this source by approximately $3,000,000. Should this legislation be enacted, the general fund surplus at the close of the next biennium will be reduced by the amount of this loss in revenue.

COMPARATIVE TABLES OF EXPENDITURES.

The constitutional amendment providing for State budget administration was adopted by vote of the people in 1922. The following tables set forth comparative figures covering the entire experience under the budget system. These figures have been carefully segregated into sections in accordance with the plan of budget submitted herewith.

GENERAL BUDGET.

Fiscal years of bienniums—	Date limits of bienniums	Total expenditures for biennium	Percentage of increase
75th and 76th-----	1923-1925	$39,079,665	22

HIGHWAY BUDGET.

81st and 82d-----	1929-1931	106,432,790	00
			17.03

The following table shows the growth of State expenditures for a fourteen-year period. While the budgets for this biennium and the next contain a very large item in the additional one-cent gasoline tax for new road construction, which enters into these two bienniums and not into those preceding, the percentage of increase is nevertheless being sharply reduced.

TOTAL BUDGETS FOR FOURTEEN YEAR PERIOD.

* Figures taken from table in State Controller's report of 1923-1924, "Showing State Expenditures for the Past Fifteen Years."

A study of the table above will reveal that a decided check has been placed on the increase of percentage in expenditures during the present administration. In the general budget the ratio of increase has been reduced from 24.14 per cent in 1925-1927 to 6.79 per cent for the period 1929-1931. The total budget ratio of increase has been reduced from 27.95 per cent in 1925-1927 to 12.28 per cent of the period 1929-1931.

In the budget submitted by me two years ago, a table was presented showing that the percentage of increase over the previous biennium was 7.4 per cent. This percentage has been increased to 19.99 per cent during the biennium, two-thirds of which increase, or $15,100,000, is due to the one-cent gas tax for the construction of new highways, provided after the budget for the last biennium was presented. Other increases were $2,233,000 in special appropriation bills passed by the Legislature; $2,689,000 more in highway reconstruction and county highway apportionment revenues than had been anticipated; $1,137,756 greater school expenditures, due to larger school enrollment; $857,275 increased funds for fish and game purposes, secured by new fishing and hunting legislation. These, with other smaller items, caused the increase from the estimated percentage in the original budget.

PERMANENT IMPROVEMENT APPROPRIATIONS.

Presented on the following page is a comparative statement showing the actual and proposed appropriations from the general fund for permanent improvements from the 75th to the 82d fiscal years, inclusive, or from July 1, 1923, to June 30, 1931.

It will be noted that there was a decided cessation of permanent improvements in the 75th and 76th fiscal years, which resulted in an undue burden being placed upon the succeeding years. The appropriations made in the 79th and 80th fiscal years and proposed for the 81st and 82d fiscal years, have been recommended with a view of meeting as far as possible present requirements for housing facilities at the various institutions and schools. It is hoped that the presentation of a long-time building program, based on a careful study and survey of present requirements and conditions and future growth and development will eliminate drastic changes and unnecessarily large, spasmodic appropriations in any one biennium.

COMPLETE SUMMARY OF EXPENDITURES.

A complete detailed summary has been included in the budget showing all of the expenditures for every purpose since the budget law was enacted. The actual expenditures for the first two bienniums have been carefully checked and corrected. The expenditures shown for the third biennium represent a careful estimate of the total expenditures for the ensuing two years.

LONG TIME PLANNING.

As a feature of long-time planning, at the end of the budget has been appended a ten-year building program. In presenting this ten-year building program, it is fully recognized that each succeeding Legislature and each succeeding Governor will be free to modify any long-time building program which may be suggested. However, the value of having a basic study of the needs for a period of years in advance is so evident as to justify the preparation of such a program. Furthermore, an attempt has been made to outline a program based so exactly on the available facts that there will be no inducement to modify it except in the direction of better meeting the needs as they may be changed by new conditions.

CONCLUSION.

As I have stated elsewhere in this message, the budget presented herewith is based upon expenditures necessary for efficient service and essential permanent improvements. It is not a budget made up from the viewpoint of economy alone, in so far as economy means the reduction of amounts requested by the various agencies to keep the total of the budget down to some predetermined amount; but it is a budget based upon an economy that will assure a businesslike, efficient, progressive, and intelligent administration of the State's business.

Respectfully submitted.

C. C. YOUNG, Governor of California.

January 8, 1929.

WHEREAS, The forests of western United States now contain two-thirds of the remaining virgin timber resources of the country and the entire nation is dependent upon these forests for its supply of timber and other forest products; and

WHEREAS, Bark beetles and other forest insects are annually destroying hundreds of millions of board feet of virgin timber each year, and such losses by insects exceed the total annual growth of young timber in this region, and the losses in the pine region of the west caused by beetles is greater than the loss by fire; and

WHEREAS, Such losses are resulting in a too-rapid exploitation of the timber resources of this region in an effort to salvage timber before it is killed by insects; and

WHEREAS, These insect depredations have become a serious threat to the timber resources comparable to the activities of the boll weevil and corn borer in other parts of the nation; and

WHEREAS, It is impossible to control bark beetle infestations on private lands unless control work is also conducted upon adjoining federally owned lands; and

WHEREAS, A very large proportion of all timber in the west is owned by the United States government; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate and Assembly, jointly, That the Legislature of the State of California respectfully urge and request adequate federal assistance in the control of this great forest menace, and the adoption by the Congress of the United States of appropriate legislation for the appropriation of the requisite funds for the purpose of meeting this emergency; and

MESSAGE FROM THE GOVERNOR.

The following message from the Governor was received, read, and ordered printed in the Journal:

MESSAGE OF GOVERNOR C. C. YOUNG REGARDING ACTS OF EXECUTIVE CLEMENCY.

To the Senate and Assembly of the State of California.

Pursuant to the provisions of the constitution, article VII, section 1, and the Penal Code, section 1419, of California, I am communicating to you, at the beginning of the forty-eighth session of the Legislature on this seventh day of January, 1929, each case of reprieve, commutation, or pardon granted by me since I assumed office two years ago, stating the name of the convict, the crime of which he was convicted, the sentence and its date, and the date of the commutation, pardon, or reprieve, with the reasons for granting the same.

In order that you may know fully the facts in each case, as well as my reasons for exercising executive clemency therein, and particularly that my attitude towards the use of this power may be generally known, I am stating briefly the substance of the executive orders and including certain letters and press releases of an official character. For those who are interested in any particular case, I am transmitting the entire text of each executive order in the appendix to this communication.

EXECUTIVE CLEMENCY IN NINE CASES.

I have exercised executive clemency in the cases of nine individuals during the past two years, but only one man has been released from prison. These nine cases include one reprieve to a prisoner who died during the period of reprieve, aside from another which was given and twice extended to a prisoner whose sentence was finally commuted and who is included in the list of commutations, three commutations of sentence from death to life imprisonment (two of which were without possibility of parole), three pardons to restore citizenship and civil rights after parole and expiration of sentence, one pardon from prison where innocence was conclusively proved, and one pardon to a woman about to be imprisoned.

ADVISORY PARDON BOARD.

In the budget for the current biennium, the forty-seventh Legislature included an item for the support of the Advisory Pardon Board. Accordingly, within the past year, I have revived that board by referring to it for investigation and recommendation some twenty-four applications for pardon or commutation appearing to me, from the information at hand, to merit such investigation. Except in capital cases, it has been my announced policy to await a recommendation from the Pardon Board before acting upon any application for executive clemency. The board has been actively functioning for slightly more than a year and has been of great assistance to me as an advisory body. The scope of their work, and my general policy in executive clemency matters, is well defined in the following letter from my executive secretary to the chairman of the board:

January 31, 1928.

Honorable Burton Fitts,
Chairman, Advisory Pardon Board,
Sun Finance Building,
Los Angeles, California.

Dear Sir:

Under the provisions of an act approved May 18, 1915, as amended by an act approved May 8, 1917, the Governor is referring to the Advisory Pardon

Board the following applications for pardons and commutations of sentence with the request that the board investigate and report thereon, and make such recommendations with reference thereto, as to it may seem advisable.

Name	County	Crime
Baldwin, Chester B.	Santa Clara	Robbery, second degree
Brown, Robert	Los Angeles	Murder, second degree
Collins, Daniel E.	Tulare	Manslaughter
Derichs, Peter H.	Contra Costa	Burglary, second degree
Ducuing, Lucien	Sacramento	Falsely pretenses
Kinney, Myrtle	San Diego	Burglary and receiving
Parks, C. A.	Sacramento	Burglary, first degree
Schwartz, Bernard	Los Angeles	See 95 P. C., 141001, C. O. M. F. P.
Seiffert, John H.	San Diego	Murder, second degree

He requests that the board examine and consider the aforesaid applications and all transcripts of judicial proceedings, affidavits and other documents herewith submitted in connection therewith, and that such testimony be taken, witnesses examined under oath, and any and all things done necessary to make a full and complete investigation thereof.

The papers enclosed in the envelope with each application constitute the entire file of the Governor's office on each particular case, and it is requested that this file and its contents be returned to the Governor with the board's recommendation when investigation of the case is completed, together with such other data and documents as may have been included in the meantime.

For the information of the board, and in order that you may be guided to some extent thereby, the Governor has directed me to outline his general policy in executive clemency matters.

First, the requirements of sections 1421 and 1422 of the Penal Code, respecting service of notice upon the district attorney and probation officers, and of the rules of this office, copy enclosed, must be strictly complied with.

Second, in cases where a restoration of citizenship is sought, an appreciable length of time must have elapsed between the time of final discharge and the time of acting on the application, to clearly demonstrate that the applicant is observing a course of proper conduct after the restrictions of parole have been removed.

Third, a parole should precede a pardon or commutation in those cases where the application is not based upon innocence.

Fourth, where innocence is asserted, the burden of proof is upon the applicant, just as before conviction he was presumed to be innocent and the burden was upon the prosecution to establish guilt beyond a reasonable doubt.

Of course, what is said above is more or less general, and exceptional cases may arise from time to time necessitating a departure from these principles in order to avoid a miscarriage of justice. In the ordinary run of cases, however, it is believed that adherence to a general policy of sustaining the verdicts of juries and the judgments of our courts will be a furtherance of justice.

The indeterminate sentence law and the parole law as administered by the State Board of Prison Directors must also be upheld. Due regard must be given to our penal system as a whole rather than to an individual case involving certain mitigating factors. Pleas founded upon sentimental considerations must be disregarded. Petitions and recommendations from persons not in a position to know the facts should have little weight.

During the past year the Governor has referred to the various county parole boards all pleas for executive clemency in behalf of persons serving a jail sentence. No action has been taken in the cases of juvenile delinquents committed to one of the correctional institutions without a recommendation from the Department of Institutions. Death penalty cases have been investigated from this office. No change is anticipated in this procedure in future cases.

In closing, your attention is respectfully invited to the provision of section 2 of the act of May 18, 1915, which requires the board to meet at the State Capitol at least once every two months. Therefore, will you please have the secretary of the board keep me advised of the time of those meetings, as well as the time and place of special meetings, in order that I may, at the Governor's request, transmit applications to the board from time to time in advance of such meetings.

Very sincerely yours,

(Signed) KEITH CARLIN.

In addition to the large number pending at the time I took office, more than two hundred applications for pardon or commutation have been presented to me. These cases have all been carefully looked into and the applicants advised as to procedure in accordance with the law and rules of the office. As soon as the file was complete, appropriate action has been taken. Although the rule promulgated by my predecessor, that all arguments and statements be submitted in writing, has likewise been adopted by me, I have nevertheless in no case refused an interview requested by anyone. In every instance I have listened to such pleas as have been presented, and have endeavored to accord considerate treatment to those who have appeared before me.

NO ACTION IN MISDEMEANOR AND CONTEMPT CASES.

A few requests have been made of me to act in misdemeanor cases and in cases of contempt of court. My attitude with respect to such cases is reflected in a letter written by Mr. Carlin, at my direction, to a former district attorney of Orange County who came to Sacramento and conferred with me. The letter follows:

May 31, 1928.

Mr. A. P. Nelson,
Attorney at law,
Santa Ana, California.

Dear Mr. Nelson:

The Governor has carefully considered the application for executive clemency presented in behalf of your client, who was convicted by a jury in the superior court of Orange County of the crime of simple assault, a misdemeanor, and sentenced to thirty days in the county jail, and has concluded to deny the application.

As stated to you during our conference, the Governor has been compelled as a matter of policy to adopt an ironclad rule against the consideration of applications for executive clemency in misdemeanor cases. He has uniformly referred such applications in the past to the parole boards of the various counties in order that any injustices resulting from a misdemeanor conviction might be remedied by such boards. Upon examination of the transcript of testimony taken at the trial, and of your brief in the District Court of Appeal, Second Appellate District, Division Two, the Governor finds no reasons which would seem to justify him in making an exception to the rule in this case.

It is true that there are one or two questions of law raised, which the appellate court did not consider in dismissing the appeal, that might be for the general welfare of the State if they were finally settled. The Governor's decision on these points, however, would represent nothing more nor less than his opinion, would not be final or binding upon anyone, and would adjudicate nothing. The proper forum for the determination of such matters is, of course, the courts, and, since the instant case can no longer serve as the vehicle for such determination, the members of the bar and the public at large will have to await the decision in some other case wherein the same questions are properly presented.

Little, if anything, could be accomplished had the Governor taken a different viewpoint, since it would then have been necessary to publish notice of intention to apply for executive clemency as required by section 1422 of the Penal Code. While this publication could be waived, the Governor has never done so in any case. He feels that the spirit of the law should be complied with and the people of the community wherein the conviction was had given an opportunity to express themselves for or against the granting of an application for executive clemency. Furthermore, he is opposed to what may be termed a secret pardon.

In those cases which the Governor believes may justify executive clemency, the usual course is to refer them to the Advisory Pardon Board for an investigation and a recommendation. This procedure necessarily takes time and the thirty-day sentence which your client began serving a week ago would have expired. Since he incurs no disabilities as a result of his conviction of a misdemeanor, and loses no citizenship or civil rights, no practical result could be accomplished by granting him a pardon after he had served his sentence. A pardon could not restore to him the thirty days served.

I am writing you thus at length in order that you may know that your request has really received serious consideration and was not dismissed or denied cavalierly. Having been district attorney of Orange County, and having yourself occupied a high official position, you can readily appreciate the necessity of an office charged with law enforcement laying down rules of policy and rigidly adhering to them. To let the bars down in one case would set up a precedent, and the Governor would soon be called upon in numerous other misdemeanor cases to interfere. As no resultant good would be accomplished to the State at large by such a course, and very little, if any, to your client, I think you will agree that he has done the obvious and proper thing in denying the application.

I understand that you have already taken this matter up with the Orange County parole board. It would, therefore, serve no purpose for the Governor to again call the case to their attention and I see no alternative for your client than to complete the remaining twenty-odd days of his sentence.

In accordance with your request, I am returning under separate cover the trial transcript.

Yours very truly,

EXECUTIONS DURING PAST TWO YEARS

During the past two years 12 men have been executed at the two prisons in this State, as follows:

Name	Executed	Prison
1. Slater, W. J.	Jan. 7, 1927	San Quentin
2. Adams, Sydney	Jan. 21, 1927	San Quentin
3. Arnold, Ray	Jan. 28, 1927	Folsom
4. Sayer, Ed. K.	Feb. 4, 1927	Folsom
5. Clark, Earl J.	Sept. 23, 1927	San Quentin
6. Yukich, Millan	Oct. 7, 1927	San Quentin
7. Sieber, Charles	Oct. 21, 1927	San Quentin
8. Shannon, Willard D.	May 4, 1928	Folsom
9. Kelly, Clarence	May 11, 1928	San Quentin
10. Dowell, Mark	Sept. 17, 1928	San Quentin
11. Hickman, Wm. Edward	Oct. 19, 1928	San Quentin
12. Malone, John Joseph	Dec. 7, 1928	San Quentin

In each of these cases appeals were made for a commutation of sentence from death to imprisonment for life. In each instance I personally read every word of the transcript of testimony taken at the trial and all letters and documents relating to the cases that reached this office, and also talked with all who came to see me. In most instances, in declining to intervene, I refused for publication of a statement setting forth my reasons. A few of the more notable, such as the Arnold and Sayer, Millan Yukich, and Clarence Kelly cases, will be treated briefly herein under the caption "Denials in Capital Cases."

ACTS OF EXECUTIVE CLEMENCY

The several acts of executive clemency are treated briefly in the succeeding paragraphs according to the classification of "Reprieves," "Commutations," "Pardons," and "Restorations," the last named being pardons to restore citizenship and civil rights after parole and discharge. The full text of all the Executive orders appear in the Appendix chronologically, just as they are found in the record books. A fifth classification, entitled "Denials in Capital Cases," is appended unsorted above.

A. REPRIEVES

*1. GEORGE WATERS was sentenced to be hanged at San Quentin on January 20, 1928, for the murder of his wife. Certain representations having been made to me at the last minute, creating a possible doubt as to his guilt, I granted a two weeks reprieve on January 19 for the purpose of investigation. This investigation led into six different counties of the State and made it necessary to again postpone the execution. Accordingly, on February 3, I extended the time to February 24. On February 21 it became apparent that some of the reports necessary in reaching a final conclusion, and certain persons whom I desired to interview personally, would not be available in time, and the execution was again postponed a week, until March 2. I came to a final decision on February 28, and commuted the sentence to life imprisonment without possibility of parole.

*2. LONNIE JOHNSON was sentenced to be hanged on May 11, 1928, also for homicide. A week before the date set for his execution I was advised by the warden of San Quentin Prison that he was desperately ill and would in all probability have to be carried to the gallows. Daily reports were made to me up to May 10, and, on that date, upon the recommendations of Warden Holahan and Dr. L. L. Stanley, resident physician at the prison, and representations from both to the effect that Johnson was very weak and his health rapidly failing, Dr. Stanley expressing the opinion that he could not live more than 60 days, I granted a reprieve for 30 days, or until August 10, 1928. Johnson died on July 5, 1928, in the hospital at San Quentin.

B. COMMUTATIONS

*1. SCOTT C. STONE, sentence commuted March 9, 1927, from death to life imprisonment without parole. Convicted in Los Angeles County of murder of first degree on December 22, 1925, and sentenced to be hanged at San Quentin, where he was received on December 31, 1926. Recommended by Deputy Sheriff Norris G. Stensland, Chief of Detectives H. H. Cline, District Attorney Asa Keyes, Deputy District Attorney E. J. Dennison, Deputy District Attorney Joseph W. Ryan, Judge Edwin F. Hahn, who presided at the trial, a majority of the members of the jury, the mother and grandmother of the murdered Martin children, the principal witnesses for the prosecution, and many other officials and citizens of Los Angeles County, all of whom agreed that an element of doubt existed as to his guilt, due to the circumstantial character of the evidence.

**2. JOSEPH SANDOVAL, sentence commuted September 22, 1927, from death to life imprisonment. Convicted in Ventura County of murder of the first degree on August 13, 1926, and sentenced to be hanged at San Quentin, where he was received on August 25, 1926. Recommended by Judge Merle J. Rogers, who presided at the trial; Sheriff R. E. Clark, eleven members of the jury, Judge Edward Henderson, who was the district attorney of Ventura County at the time of the trial; County Clerk L. C. Hallowell, David J. Reese, for many years head of the State Civil Service Commission; Jose Lopez, the brother of the murdered woman and an eye witness to the shooting, and a number of other officials and citizens of Ventura County, including several prominent attorneys. All are of the opinion that Sandoval had intended to plead guilty, but was prevented from doing so by his attorney, that he had sought to avoid the quarrel that led to the shooting, and that it is very doubtful if the facts warranted a verdict of first degree murder.

†3. GEORGE WATTERS, sentence commuted February 28, 1928, from death to life imprisonment without parole. Convicted in Sacramento County of murder of the first degree on September 21, 1926, and sentenced to be hanged at San Quentin, where he was received on September 24, 1926. Recommended by the district attorney, J. J. Henderson, Judge John F. Pullen, who presided at the trial; Dr. Anita M. Mühl, M.D., head of the Division of Special Education of the State Department of Education; my Executive Secretary, Keith Carlin, under whose direction a lengthy and exhaustive investigation was conducted, and others. No trace of the body of Myrtle Watters, the supposedly murdered wife, has ever been found, and Watters was convicted upon the testimony of his 9-year-old daughter, Genevieve, who has related half a dozen stories of the crime. The bare possibility that the wife may not have been murdered, and might afterward reappear, made it clearly unsafe to proceed with the execution.

C. PARDONS.

*1. CHARLOTTE ANITA WHITNEY, pardoned June 20, 1927. Convicted in Alameda County of a violation of the Criminal Syndicalism Act—membership in an association prohibited by the act—on February 20, 1920, and sentenced to a term of one to fourteen years in San Quentin. Recommended by Walter J. Peterson, chief of police of Oakland at the time of the arrest; Orrin Kip McMurray, Dean of the School of Law, University of California; Judge James G. Quinn, who presided at the trial; Justices Frank H. Kerrigan and John E. Tyler of the District Court of Appeal which decided the case; the attorney who wrote the Criminal Syndicalism Act and the State Senator who introduced it, as well as hundreds of outstanding citizens of California and other states, including bankers, lawyers, publishers, judges, educators, ex-service men, agricultural leaders, social workers, ministers of every denomination, and men and women of large affairs the country over. There was never a conviction in any other case in this State based solely on evidence of membership in an organization prohibited by the law, and Miss Whitney's conviction has been well expressed as falling "within the outside limits of a technical violation."

†2. JAMES S. WILLIS, pardoned August 18, 1927. Convicted in Sacramento County of robbery, first degree, and assault with intent to commit murder on April 12, 1927, and sentenced to consecutive terms of five years to life and one to fourteen years at San Quentin, where he was received April 15, 1927. Because of prior felony convictions, a majority of the judges of the Supreme Court, in accordance with law, joined in a recommendation to me. In addition to Judges Waste, Seawell, Shenk, Curtis, Preston and Langdon, being all of the judges of the Supreme Court present in California at the time, a pardon was recommended by the district attorney, Neil R. McAllister, after the conviction of one Vincent Bohac of the same crimes for which Willis was paying the penalty. Bohac was positively identified by the said witnesses who had formerly identified Willis, and who admitted they were mistaken. It is thus absolutely certain that Willis, possibly in the hope of receiving a light sentence, was being punished for a crime with which he had no connection whatever. This is the only man released from prison during the past two years.

D. RESTORATIONS.

*1. LUCIEN DUCUING, pardoned April 26, 1928. Convicted in Sonoma County of obtaining money under false pretenses on July 23, 1924, and sentenced to an indeterminate term of one to ten years at San Quentin, where he was received August 2, 1924. He was discharged August 23, 1925. Recommended by Judge Ross Campbell, who presided at the trial; Deputy District Attorney Clarendon W. Anderson, the Advisory Pardon Board, and several reputable citizens who have been associated with Ducuing since his discharge and testify to his exemplary conduct.

**2. PETER DERIGIS, pardoned May 21, 1928. Convicted in Contra Costa County of burglary, second degree, on February 4, 1913, and sentenced to a term of five years at San Quentin, where he was received on February 5, 1913. He was paroled on December 2, 1915, and discharged upon the expiration of his sentence February 4, 1918. Recommended by Ed H. Whyte, the State Parole Officer, F. Bernbach, Director of the St. Francis Grammar School at Watsonville, California, who employed him as infirmarian at the school during nearly three years after his discharge; Dr. S. C. Rodgers, one of the physicians at the school; the Right Reverend Edward Burgess, president of Salinas College, Salinas, Arkansas, where he has been employed as infirmarian and nurse during the past seven years or more; Judge Ray Blair of the county and probate court of Logan County, Arkansas; S. H. Kincannon, sheriff of Logan County, Arkansas; Conrad Eklund, mayor of Salinas, Arkansas; others who testify to his exemplary conduct, and, finally, by the Advisory Pardon Board.

†3. JOHN CABONI, pardoned June 29, 1928. Convicted in San Francisco of manslaughter on August 10, 1912, and sentenced to a term of eight years at Folsom, where he was received on August 13, 1912. He was paroled on February 19, 1915, and discharged on December 10, 1917. Recommended by Judge J. J. Trafton, who presided at the trial; Deputy District Attorney Maxwell McNutt, Rabbi Rudolph I. Coffee, of Temple Sinai, First Hebrew Congregation of Oakland, his several employers during the past eight years, including officers of the Dunwidge Construction Co., G. Weissbaum & Co., J. N. J. Firebrick Co., and Montgomery Sutter Building Co., all of San Francisco, and, lastly, by all of the members of the Advisory Pardon Board.

1. DEFENDANTS IN CAPITAL CASES

1. RAY ARNOLD and ED. K. SAYER.

For the past few weeks I have been diligently studying the cases of Ray Arnold and Edward K. Sayer, convicted of murder of the first degree and now awaiting execution. Both I and my Executive Secretary have carefully examined the documents on file relating to both cases, including a transcript of the testimony taken at the trial, and the two Supreme Court decisions, one in January and one in October, 1926, both by unanimous decision affirming the judgment of the lower court. In addition, six months have been obtained from the district attorney and the judge who tried the case.

I have also read all of the letters submitted in regard to both defendants, many of them addressed to Governor Richardson during 1926, and the remainder addressed to myself since the beginning of the present year. I have talked at length with Mr. Connolly, the attorney for Sayer, and with former Governor Gillett who has associated himself in the case, and have carefully studied their briefs sent to me since our conference. Finally, I have gone over the cases with relatives of the condemned men, with the mother of Sayer and with the brother-in-law of Arnold.

I should have been less than human if I had not given sympathetic attention to the appeals which have been made to me, for I thoroughly appreciate the feelings of those who have appealed. I have earnestly endeavored to give them all the weight to which they are entitled, but after full consideration I have definitely decided that I have no right in either of these cases to interfere with the execution of the law. Having reached this decision, it is only proper that I should end suspense by announcing it now.

In those appeals to me which have attempted to present arguments, the claims were made that the trial was not a fair one; that, even if the defendants' defense of an alibi is insufficient, they are only "technically" guilty, since the murder was actually committed by a third accomplice, who afterwards committed suicide; and, finally, that in the case of Sayer there was a moral deficiency which rendered him irresponsible for his act.

The question of a fair trial has been twice settled by the Supreme Court in most careful and exhaustive decisions. It would appear, indeed, that the trial court was more than fair to the defendants in excluding evidence of five or six other robberies committed by them in their raid of bandits before the final one, which resulted in the unprovoked murder of a Japanese woman, as she was attempting to escape from the scene of the hold-up. The Supreme Court held, in effect at least, that such evidence of previous robberies might very properly have been admissible. The transcript fully makes it evident that the entire defense was most carefully and capably handled.

Furthermore, I can not agree that the law under which these men were convicted of murder in the first degree is in any sense "technical." The law very clearly states that "all persons concerned in the commission of a felony, whether they directly commit the act constituting the offense, or aid and abet in its commission, though not present, shall be prosecuted, tried, and punished as principals." The evidence amply shows that these young men were together engaged in committing a robbery, in the course of which a human being was murdered. Under these circumstances, the court holds that those who do not fire the fatal shot "are considered in law as guilty of the crime which was committed in the death of the deceased as though they had actually slain the deceased with their own hands"; and also that "murder committed in the attempt to perpetrate robbery is murder of the first degree." This law is a very well established and very necessary one, for without it the law-abiding public would never be safe from attacks of banditry. This law is not peculiar to California. I am advised that a similar law is in effect today, either by statute or common law, in every state in the Union and in every civilized nation.

Finally, the claim is made that the defendant Sayer is morally irresponsible for his acts, and has never been morally responsible, though nowhere is any insanity alleged. Three doctors examined Sayer after the trial and all reported that he was perfectly sane. In fact one alienist, though calling Sayer a "moral moron," in the same sentence states that he is "intellectually acute"; while another physician who also claims that he lacks "moral sense" also states that "intellectually he is up to normal." These are the two medical men who make the strongest plea as to his lack of responsibility. Though his weakness is alleged to be of long standing, no attempt was made at the trial to show either mental or moral incapacity. As a matter of fact, I suspect that any one who commits a felony must be morally weak, but, if society is to be protected, I feel that the penalty of his act must nevertheless be paid.

I need not say that the necessity of upholding the law and of refusing pleas for clemency is the most painful duty a governor is called upon to perform. In the case of Sayer, for instance, I am forced to disregard the wishes of many friends of this very respected Colorado family. In his behalf letters have been written by a cabinet member, by governors, past and present, by members of Congress, by judges, and similar high officials, as well as by some of my own personal friends. Yet, as one sworn to uphold the law, despite these pleas, and, hardest of all, despite the plea of his good mother, I can only respect the results of a fair and impartial trial and let the law take its course, in his case as well as in that of Arnold.

In the future I shall continue carefully to consider every similar case upon its merits, though I shall not attempt to discuss other cases as fully as I have done in this instance. I have felt that it was only proper just now to make my attitude perfectly clear—that, while I entirely realize the meaning of a governor's power in exercising executive clemency, unless there is some extraordinary circumstance to cause me to honestly doubt the correctness of a verdict, I shall never misuse my power by attempting to overturn the results of fair and impartial trials in our courts of justice. While sympathy for those affected has its proper place, it can not be permitted to outweigh the necessity of maintaining a stern and consistent respect for law.

2. MILLAN VUKICH:

For the past several weeks I have had before me the case of Millan Vukich, convicted in Placer County of murder in the first degree, and sentenced to be hanged at San Quentin Prison on Friday, October 7. I have, with more than usual care, read all of the very lengthy transcript of this case, together with all of the communications I have received concerning it.

Vukich was convicted of murdering a man named R. T. Stone on September 27, 1925. Stone had been the employer of Vukich at a Placer County saw-mill somewhat over two years before, or during the months of July and August, 1923. On August 5, Vukich received wages amounting to $118, but, on September 1, when he quit his job after a personal encounter with Stone, there was still owing him $161.

Vukich spent the next two years, partly working at temporary jobs, partly in jail where he was sent for six months for assaulting and nearly killing another former employer over a wage dispute, but largely in endeavoring, through the help of various attorneys and state officials, to collect the money due him from Stone. There is no doubt that to collect this money became an obsession with him, that he became constantly more and more bitter towards the one who owed the debt, and that thoughts of killing him often entered his mind.

Late in September, 1925, he journeyed to Reno, Nevada, purchased a take-down rifle, a pistol, a dirk knife, and several rounds of ammunition; then traveled back, mostly by night, to Placer County; arrived at Stone's place at 2 o'clock in the morning; hid in an outhouse until 10 o'clock that forenoon; from his hiding place shot Stone through the heart as, in company with his wife, he was walking towards the outhouse; and escaped, traveling at night and across country, until finally, after entering Mexico and returning, he was arrested in Arizona near the international border.

At his trial an attempt was made to prove insanity. The judge gave a very long and careful charge to the jury, consisting of seventy-five separate instructions, about half of them requested by the defense; the jury promptly brought in a verdict of guilty without recommendation, which verdict required the court, under the law, to impose the death sentence. And the Supreme Court, by a unanimous decision, affirmed this judgment.

A plea is now being made to the Governor for a commutation of sentence to life imprisonment—a plea which clearly can not be granted for the following reasons:

First, the murder was as deliberate and premeditated as any that has ever come to my attention. There is no doubt that Vinchek had become greatly incensed over the nonpayment of his wages two years before, but, as the court pointed out, "Grievances which have been committed against an accused will not justify the aggrieved party in taking the law into his own hands and destroying human life." The murder was "truly premeditated, he was 'lying in wait,'" and gave the victim no chance for his life.

Second, the only possible defense would have been insanity, which, according to our law, must be more than a mere aberration and must amount to an inability to distinguish right from wrong in relation to the act charged. A long and careful trial failed to establish such insanity. No sane failure nor since the murder does the evidence show that Vinchek is the possessor of more than average mental acuteness. At my request, within the past few days, two physicians have examined the prisoner, and both, separately and while the attitude towards him is distinctly sympathetic, their reports have had him sane.

Third, there has not been a single fact brought to light since the trial which was not in possession of the jury when the verdict was rendered. If any new fact had been discovered it would have been given the greatest consideration; but, in the absence of such new evidence, to ask the retraction of a jury's verdict after that jury had not throughout the trial, hearing of the testimony, weighing the evidence, and forming their conscientious judgment, is to confess the failure of our jury system.

Fourth, the penalty in this State for first degree murder is, by special statute, fixed by the jury. It is the jury's function, not only to measure the question of guilt or innocence as in other crimes, but also to take into consideration extenuating circumstances and to recommend life imprisonment if any such circumstances are found to exist. The jury must believe that every particle of evidence as to Vinchek's mental condition that is before me now, Vinchek did and, finding nothing therein to justify mitigation of the punishment, made no recommendation a verdict which automatically carries with it the death penalty. Am I now to substitute my individual opinion for the collective judgment of the twelve members of the jury? To do so would be effect in to usurp the function of the jury and to deny by a committee not the legislative enactment which expressly imposes this duty upon the jury. I have never had occasion to remark that, while I certainly reserve the meaning of a governor's power in exercising executive clemency, unless there is some extraordinary circumstance to cause me honestly to doubt the instructions of a court, I must not misuse my power by attempting to overturn the results of fair and impartial trials in our courts of justice.

For these reasons, despite the human sympathy which attaches to every condemned man and which naturally stirs a passion in the public to appeal on his behalf, and with a responsibility to the State as a whole due to its law-abiding citizens, I am again compelled to discharge the most unpleasant duty entrusted with my office by declaring my inability, in this case, to interfere conscientiously with the due process of law.

3. CLARENCE ("BUCK") KELLY:

I have declined to interfere with the execution of Clarence Kelly, sentenced to be hanged at San Quentin on Friday, May 11, 1928. A last minute appeal for a commutation of the death sentence to life imprisonment has been made to me by Kelly's attorney, Mr. Milton T. U'Ren of San Francisco, who contends that Kelly did not actually do the killing in any of the three separate murders of which he was convicted; or, if he did, that his mind was so deranged from the use of liquor as to render him incapable of forming a criminal intent. It is not contended that Kelly was not present during the orgy of crime that resulted in eight holdups, the fatal shooting of three men and the shooting of three others on the evening of October 11, 1926, between the hours of 5 and 7.

I have read carefully from the transcript of testimony, the instructions of the trial court, the unanimous decision of the Supreme Court affirming the judgment, and all other documents relating to the case. I find nothing in the record that leaves the slightest doubt in my mind as to the correctness of the jury's verdict. I find nothing whatever of mitigating character that would lead me to believe that the extreme penalty of the law should not be applied in this case. Even though the contention of Mr. U'Ren were accepted at full value—that the fatal shots were fired by another—it is an admitted fact that Kelly was present at the scene of the crimes and associated with those claimed to have been the perpetrators thereof, rendering him equally culpable both legally and morally. His illegal state of intoxication, voluntarily produced, was before the court, and the jury was given full instructions as to the law governing such matters. All of this was ably argued at the trial and considered by the jury who gave it such weight as I think it deserved.

An affidavit has been filed that, had the affiant been available at the time of the trial, would have made no difference in the result. Its contents are wholly hearsay and affiant could not have testified as a witness.

I am, therefore, constrained to let the law take its course in the belief that, if ever there was a case deserving of the death penalty, this is one.

CASE OF THOMAS J. MOONEY.

Of all the cases that have come into the office during my incumbency, there is one, bequeathed me by my predecessor, that has received a great deal of publicity, and in which I have deferred consideration, due to pressure of other business. I refer to the case of Thomas J. Mooney, who once before asked for and received executive clemency at the hands of former Governor Stephens, the death sentence being commuted to life imprisonment on November 28, 1918. Due to considerable agitation on the part of Mooney and his friends, I have recently received hundreds of letters and resolutions from various persons and organizations all over the United States, demanding a full pardon. Several months ago I took occasion to outline the present status of the matter in a letter to Mr. Paul Scharrenberg, who had interviewed me regarding this case, and still more recently to Judge Griffin, who presided at Mooney's trial. Certainly, I have no desire to avoid responsibility in this or any other case, and I shall proceed to a thorough study of the voluminous record as soon as I am relieved of the duties incident to the present legislative session.

In order to make clear my attitude, I am incorporating herein the letters referred to above:

Letter to Mr. Paul Scharrenberg.

September 19, 1928.

Mr. Paul Scharrenberg,
Secretary State Federation of Labor,
525 Market St., San Francisco, Calif.

Dear Mr. Scharrenberg:

When you called upon me at my office last Saturday morning I promised to write you a letter relative to the case of Thomas J. Mooney, now in San Quentin Prison, and an applicant for pardon. During the past few months I have received many copies of resolutions on this subject from eastern states and from various locals connected with your State Federation. Inasmuch as I have not been able to answer these individually, I am hereby acknowledging them through this communication to yourself.

In this instance, as in any similar case, there are just three alternatives as to facts, and just three possible courses of action on the basis of those respective facts. I think I may fairly state these as follows:

1. If the prisoner is guilty he certainly ought not to be released. I think that every one of your members would agree with me in this. Whatever our sympathy may be for any individual, it would manifestly be bad for society as a whole to show lenience to one whose act has destroyed many innocent lives.

2. If the prisoner is innocent he ought unconditionally to be set free. He is being punished for one particular crime, and if not guilty of that crime it would be intolerable to continue his punishment simply because some one may think him capable of committing other crimes.

3. If the prisoner is probably guilty, but with a possibility of innocence, exactly the same course ought to be followed as in every other case. In our ordinary California procedure, this would normally mean parole whenever the Prison Board may feel such parole to be wise, with full pardon and restoration to citizenship if innocence were ever definitely established.

I fully realize the fact that there are numbers of people fairly well acquainted with this case who sincerely believe that Thomas J. Mooney is innocent, just as there are other numbers, similarly acquainted, who are equally certain that he is guilty. While fully respecting the beliefs of the former group, and honoring the earnest and high-minded spirit of those who hold those beliefs, I must confess that I have never been able to share their opinion. I was in San Francisco on the day of the tragedy, followed the case as carefully as I could, and have read much upon it, including evidence, subsequent disclosures, and similar documents. While, like many other people, I have been dissatisfied with some of the aspects of the trial, I have never been able to bring myself to a belief of the innocence of the accused.

However, as you know, some two or three weeks ago I promised a number of citizens interested in this case that I would give an earnest and careful rereading to every particle of the material bearing upon it. In view of the vast quantity of this material, and other duties which necessarily occupy most of my time, such a study, pursued during spare hours, will take a very considerable number of months. Nevertheless I am more than glad to put forth this effort, rather than feel the slightest possibility that failure on my part to act can be due to carelessness or inattention.

Before concluding this letter, may I, in the friendliest possible spirit, say just one word to yourself and other members of your organization? I have already referred to petitions and resolutions which have been coming in to me from this and other states. I think that upon reflection you will realize that these communications do far more harm than good. Manifestly, the individuals who sign such petitions or who vote for such resolutions can not have made a first-hand study of all the material bearing upon the case. I am certain, also, that there is not one of them who would ask that a prisoner be pardoned solely because he had belonged to a labor union.

However, when the case is presented to the members of the local, together with the fact that the prisoner was a union member, and even some one giving the assurance that he is innocent, it would be natural human nature for those thus appealed to not to vote in the resolution. But when these resolutions come in to a governor, it looks very much like a drive from those who necessarily can not have first-hand knowledge as to the case and realizing that he is expected to make up his mind as to the innocence of a prisoner merely on the basis of the numbers who appeal to him. I think you would agree that this would be no more probable on his part than if he should continue to keep an innocent prisoner confined, providing a suitably extensive number of petitions urge that he do so.

I have been told that in the past large sums of money have been raised for a Mooney defense. I am concerned that this may have been necessary and valuable during the time of the actual trial. Now I am not sure of any purpose of such a fund now except to finance drives such as I have mentioned above. And although I do not question the true motives of those who take part in these drives, I would say again that I think that a great mistake. No self-respecting governor would relish appearing to be pushed into an action which he may decide to be right, and no honest governor could permit himself to be pushed into an action which he may decide to be wrong.

Finally, I wish to say just one word more. I have heard the term expressed that in instances such as the Mooney case men have been punished for their political or social beliefs rather than for any actual crime. I want to express as strongly as I know how my endorsement of any such action. I have never heard of a belief that executive clemency extends to the rich and powerful rather than to the poor and friendless. I believe that just the opposite is the case. Thus far I have commuted those sentences from the death penalty in life imprisonment, because a careful reading of the transcript of the trial which convinced me that there was just that shadow of doubt as to guilt which would make it wrong to permit the condemned man to be hanged. Yet in each case the prisoner was so poor that the court had to appoint the lawyer to defend him, and so far as I know had no friends whatever.

I have written frankly and at length on this case, Mr. Scharrerberg, because I feel that you and your associates are entitled to know just where I stand. The easiest course would always be the granting of such pleas made by the friends of a prisoner as have been presented in this case, yet I do not believe you would ask me to take that course unless I felt it to be the right one. I trust that you will understand my feeling regarding any movement in the nature of a drive which I have referred to above, and orders and further that, although I do not wish to give false encouragement by the promise, at the same time I shall carry out my agreement to go into the case again with an open mind and with great care.

Yours very sincerely,

C. C. YOUNG, Governor

Letter to Judge Franklin A. Griffin.

December 8, 1928.

Honorable Franklin A. Griffin,
Judge of the Superior Court,
San Francisco, California.

Dear Judge Griffin:

I am in receipt of your letter, signed by yourself and others, relative to the case of Thomas J. Mooney.

When I met with you and others in Berkeley a few weeks ago, I told you that at my earliest opportunity I would repeat every word of the Mooney transcript as well as every document bearing upon subsequent developments of the case. From my own experience in the Governor's office, I think you can realize how impossible it is to find time for continuous work on a task of this magnitude, except in a period of vacation. Especially is this so at the present season of the biennial messages, budgets, departmental legislation, and a score of other duties preparatory to a legislative session. The same thing, of course, will apply to the actual session itself and the bill signing period which follows.

I also told you at our Berkeley conference that if, as a result of this conscientious study of the case, I found myself able to agree with you in your evidently sincere belief in Mooney's entire innocence, there would naturally be only one thing for me to do, but that I was at present unable to share that belief. I repeated the same thing in my letter to Mr. Scharrenberg; and now, as a result of these statements, you ask me to disclose what information or evidence I have of Mooney's guilt, not disclosed at the trial, and not known to yourself.

This question on your part is of course purely a rhetorical one. You know that I have never claimed to have additional evidence, and you can not for a moment believe that I assume to have any. I know that there was a long and well defended trial before an able and conscientious judge, and a jury of twelve, each sworn to give the defendant the benefit of every reasonable doubt. I know that those at the trial had the benefit of scrutinizing the witnesses as to their reliability, of observing the defendant, and of hearing the whole story developed in an orderly way, both from the standpoint of the prosecution and of the defense. I know that, as compared with this opportunity, the mere reading of transcripts and documents is at best unsatisfactory; but that is all which can be before me now.

You say that the transcript of testimony at the trial "no longer exists"; by which I assume you mean that it has been contradicted and proven false by statements subsequently made, either by those who testified or by others. I can only make a careful review of this transcript and these outside and subsequent statements, weighing the one against the other. Unless this differs from every other case I have ever known, I must assume that the burden of proof rests with these later revelations if the evidence at the trial is thus to be nullified. I gave this question careful thought in considering the case of Scott C. Stone, and in my order of commutation enunciated the following principle:

"It is contended that, if there is a 'reasonable doubt' regarding the guilt of a condemned man, a full pardon should be granted. This argument is not sound. Presumption of innocence follows one accused of crime only throughout the trial, and such presumption is negatived by conviction. Thereafter the guilt of the defendant must be assumed as an established fact, an assumption that can be overcome only by proof, beyond a reasonable doubt, that the defendant is innocent. In other words, to justify a full pardon, the burden is upon the convicted defendant Stone to convince the Governor of his innocence beyond a reasonable doubt. No such overwhelming proof of innocence has been produced in this case."

I am earnestly solicitous to uphold the judgments of our courts and the verdicts of our juries. I must assume them to be honest and capable and correct in their findings, and I consider it a very grave matter to presume to set these findings aside, however much my personal sympathies might impel me to do so. To be sure, there are cases when capital punishment is involved—I have had two such—where subsequent doubts as to the reliability of witnesses made it manifestly wrong to go through with the death penalty, since even the bare possibility of mistake is enough to prevent such an irretrievable act.

Evidently with this possibility in mind, Governor Stephens very properly commuted the sentence of Thomas J. Mooney and resolved all doubts in his favor to the extent of saving him from the gallows. I feel certain that, had I been Governor, I should have done the same thing, just as I did in the two capital cases which came before me. In these cases, however, I specified in my order of commutation that there should be no future possibility of parole—a restriction which was not imposed in the case of Mooney. I did not pardon the condemned men, for, while there was that possibility of innocence which properly prevented their execution, there was not the certainty, or even the probability of innocence which would have justified a pardon.

Since I have been in office I have received literally scores of petitions for pardon where the relatives or friends of the prisoner have urged his entire innocence as the reason for executive clemency. These cases have not been as conspicuous as the Mooney case, but I have no doubt that the great majority of those who have presented their pleas are as sincerely convinced of the justice of their cause as are those in the case of Mooney. However, after presumably fair trials, the courts decided otherwise; and, except in one case where the real perpetrator of the crime afterwards confessed, led the officers to his hidden loot, and demonstrated the entire innocence of the prisoner, I have been unwilling to overturn the judgments of the courts. To do so, as has been done wholesale in two or three other states, would be the undermining of confidence in our own courts, and, I feel certain, would be a very great disservice to the State.

There are two distinct classes of people advocating a pardon in this case. The first class is composed of those like yourself, the members of the jury, and others, who actually know something about the case at first hand. These are entitled to much consideration; though, if there is any doubt at all as to the correctness of the verdict, I can imagine that a feeling of responsibility for the original conviction might make them over zealous to see that verdict nullified. There is scarcely a case for clemency which comes before me in which one or more jurymen—sometimes a clear majority, if not all twelve, of the jury—do not urge that their former verdict be set aside by a pardon. In other words, though any one of them by his single vote would have prevented conviction, after their responsibility has ceased they urge an action which they themselves would not take when responsible.

The second and by far the largest class asking for this pardon manifestly know nothing about the case except what they have read or been told by others. As the result of very extensive propaganda, but with perfect candor, members of certain labor organizations, for instance, are deeply interested in Mooney as one of their number. They have been informed that "an innocent man has been left to rot within prison walls," and they are rightfully indignant at this, without the slightest personal knowledge as to whether there are facts underlying these assumptions. I can not help admiring the loyalty of these friends, but obviously I should not be swayed by them, except where they may have first-hand knowledge of the case.

There is in addition a small third class of possibly very excellent people, who are also for the most part with no personal knowledge as to this particular matter, but whose psychology seems to make them more susceptible for the law-breakers within our prisons than for the law-abiding public outside. Presumably it is one of these who has written in a recent issue of an excellent magazine that "Mooney and Billings are not criminals, but are the respectable people of California are"; and who graciously offers to me as a politician, who will not act for their release until it is obviously to his political interest to let them out." However, he is generous enough to say that the people of California have for me merely "a mood of pitying contempt as towards a weak rather than an intentionally ill-minded man." For that I suppose I should at least be thankful.

There was one incident at the Berkeley conference, Judge Griffin to whom I could not help taking exception. You indicated that former associates who had failed to pardon Mooney were actuated by political considerations. If you thought this true of them you must have had a sourish feeling as regards myself. I trust that upon second thought you will give the same treatment to a Governor's honesty and sincerity of purpose which you would properly expect him to accord to your own. However, if a Governor should so make to a "drive," or to the pressure of his friends, as to act contrary to his own sincere beliefs and convictions, I agree that he would deserve the charge of cowardice. Although I do not believe I am either cowardly or cold-blooded, and although I have never refused fairly to discuss this or any other case, it is true that I have granted very few pardons since becoming Governor, and, except in the one case I have mentioned, all of those were given to those who had proved their worth after having received their parole. The reasons for this attitude on my part I have tried to express above and in my executive orders.

As I have said, I intend at my earliest opportunity to study very thoroughly into this case. If I conclude beyond doubt that Mooney is innocent, he certainly should be punished because of any indirect tendencies on his part or possible offenses extraneous to this particular case; if he is guilty, I believe that all would agree that no punishment could be too severe, if there is merely a doubt as to his guilt, I can not see where his case could be treated differently from that of many other prisoners of whom the same thing can be said. In the meantime I trust you will realize that I have not the slightest feeling against Tom Mooney, nor the slightest desire except to carry out my oath of office, and to do that which I believe both fair to the individual and, at the same time, for the best interests of the State in the maintenance of respect for law and the administration of justice.

Yours very sincerely,

C. C. YOUNG, Governor.

PRINCIPLES UNDERLYING EXECUTIVE CLEMENCY

In this communication to you I have tried to set forth the principles which have actuated me in the consideration of the many applications for executive clemency that are continually coming before me. A mental of these principles will be found in the various executive orders printed in the appendix, in the letter of my Executive Secretary to the Advisory Pardon Board, in my letters relative to the case of Thomas J. Mooney, and in my statements to the press upon the denial of clemency in certain capital cases.

A few of the principles which must guide in matters of this kind may possibly be summed up as follows:

First. In consideration of any case, it is necessary to keep in mind not only the prisons hundreds of individuals who have transgressed our laws, but who happily possess so many pleasing traits and appealing qualities that it would be very easy to wish to exercise clemency in their behalf. On the other hand, I believe that we must always keep in mind the inevitable effect upon society as a whole if it should appear an easy thing to avoid the penalty of the law through excess of sympathy for the individual on the part of a governor. Too great exercise of the pardon-power has been tried in a few states, with very disastrous results.

Second. In a number of cases I have had occasion to stress the point that, in the absence of new facts not brought to light at the trial, I should be extremely loath to overturn the verdicts of our juries and the judgment of our courts. If any new evidence is discovered that was not available to the jury, it is of course entitled to great consideration. But I do not believe a governor should sit as a thirteenth juror, as it were, since he obviously can not have the advantages and opportunities of the twelve members of the panel who weighed the evidence and who saw and heard the living, speaking witnesses. A jury's verdict, therefore, must be normally regarded as conclusive, and to justify subsequent pardon in advance of parole, either innocence should be proven beyond all reasonable doubt, or it must be very clear that further punishment would involve a serious miscarriage of justice.

Third. The views expressed in the last paragraph apply in all classes of cases with the one exception that, where the death penalty has been imposed, I believe that extreme care should be taken lest an irretrievable error be committed. In such cases, if a doubt exists in a governor's mind after a painstaking study of the trial transcript, the court decisions, and all the papers and documents relating to the crime and its perpetrator, the benefit of that doubt should be given to the condemned man to the extent of saving him from the gallows.

Fourth. It is of course absolutely necessary that no undue influence of any kind in behalf of a prisoner must ever be allowed to creep into any case. I recall two instances which occurred while as Lieutenant Governor I was a member of the Advisory Pardon Board, and which will illustrate my point. The first was of a man convicted of assault, in whose behalf the board received hundreds of letters from politicians, from business men, from county officials, and others, none of whom could have known anything about the merits of the case, but who had been urged that this procedure might help the prisoner. This case was turned down, almost without a hearing, since it was discredited by the very nature of the "drive." The second case, also of assault, was that of a Chinaman, over sixty years of age and apparently without a friend in the world. He had, however, been convicted solely on circumstantial evidence, and the board was so fully convinced of his probable innocence, and so very much concerned over what was apparently an injustice, that it finally sent in a recommendation in his favor. Contrary to prevailing opinion, it is the latter type of case which always presents the real appeal.

Fifth. Under the very liberal parole laws which prevail in California, the first clemency to be shown a prisoner should normally be through action of the Parole Board. During the thirty-six years since parole was first established in this State, only about 18 per cent of those paroled have found their way back into the prisons, and the majority of these have gone back, not through the commission of a new crime, but for the breaking of parole regulations. During this period, of somewhat more than 12,000 paroled, over 10,000 have been restored to normal, law-abiding lives. Parole is extended to those unquestionably guilty of the crime for which they were convicted, but whose past history and whose prison behavior makes it probable that they can be rehabilitated, as well as to those concerning whom there is a doubt as to their guilt or the propriety of their conviction, but not a sufficient certainty of innocence to warrant an absolute pardon. It is clearly an erroneous assumption that acceptance of parole implies admission of guilt.

Sixth. During the period of parole the former prisoner is bound to conduct himself properly, for to do so is a condition of the necessarily rather rigid parole regulations. He must be industrious, temperate, law-abiding, and in other ways justify the freedom which has been accorded him. As such as the period of parole has expired, however, and conditions of parole no longer compel him to observe a course of good conduct as the price of freedom from prison restraint, I believe the State should give him assurance that he may look forward to ultimate pardon and restoration to citizenship, provided after a reasonable length of time he can show that he has proved himself worthy of such recognition.

Respectfully submitted this tenth day of January, 1929.

C. C. YOUNG, Governor of California.

APPENDIX.

COMMUTATION.

SCOTT C. STONE was convicted of murder of the first degree by a jury in the superior court of Los Angeles County, and, on December 22, 1925, was sentenced to be hanged. Stone appealed from the judgment of conviction and from the order denying a new trial. In a decision dated November 9, 1926, the Supreme Court affirmed the judgment and order, and later, on December 8, 1926, denied a rehearing. He was resentenced on the twenty-first day of the same month, his execution being set for March 11, 1927. He was received at San Quentin on December 31, 1926, and given number 43045.

On August 23, 1924, Max and Nina Martin, aged 12 and 8, respectively, were last seen alive. About 6.30 on the afternoon of that day they left their home on South

Mansfield street in the southwesterly portion of Los Angeles, and visited their grandmother, who lived some three blocks distant. They remained there but a few moments, and then were seen to enter and leave a milk store next by. For a number of weeks after their disappearance many searching parties were organized, on one occasion several hundred persons being so engaged.

Nearly six months later Julio Martinez, a Mexican youth, discovered what proved to be their remains, badly decomposed and covered with mud, hidden in a shallow ditch traversing a large cultivated field in the same section of the city. The clothing of both children was disarranged, and was perfectly identified as belonging to the two Martin girls. There can be no reasonable doubt that they had both met their death by violence and had been hidden in the ditch where they were found.

Scott C. Stone was, and had been for some time, a night watchman in this neighborhood. It was shown by the evidence that he was acquainted with many of the children in the vicinity, including these two girls. In October, 1924, he was arrested for taking indecent liberties with a young girl, but was soon afterwards dismissed for lack of evidence. However, on February 7, 1925, he was again arrested for the same offense, pleaded guilty to a lesser charge, and was sentenced to six months in the county jail.

As will be noted, this second arrest was made just after the bodies of the Martin children had been discovered. The real motive for this arrest was, certainly, not so much to prosecute the charge upon which he was arrested, as to hold him in custody where he could be grilled concerning some possible connection with the disappearance of the Martin children. Evidence implicating him in this case was secured, and as a result he was finally indicted by the grand jury, and on December 1, 1925, was brought to trial. Public sentiment had been aroused because of the atrocious nature of the crime, and, I think, it fair to state, because of the fact and of sensational newspaper articles which added to the popular clamor, there was unusual eagerness to secure a conviction.

The chief witness against Stone was a neighbor, Mrs. William F. McIntosh, who testified that she had seen the Martin girls shortly after 4 o'clock in the evening of their disappearance riding with the defendant on his motorcycle. She was the only witness who connected Stone as being with the girls on that day. The very most important witness was Aiva H. Elford, a young and respectable girl, formerly now serving a long term in San Quentin. I need not say, in the county jail, and was allowed in the same tank with Stone, warmed himself with his confidence, and in various private conversations from day to day purported to have secured certain damaging statements from him, but no admission as to guilt in this particular case.

This, in brief, constitutes the essential part of the testimony connecting Scott C. Stone with the murder of the Martin children. After a most thorough study of the transcript of this testimony, as well as a careful reading of all the recommendations made to me by the arresting officer, prosecuting attorneys, chief witnesses, jurors, judge, and relatives of the murdered children, I have concluded that there is but one thing I can conscientiously do, and that is to commute this sentence from death to life imprisonment without possibility of parole.

I am doing this in spite of the fact that I believe more strongly every day that it is a governor's duty to uphold the law and to insist on attempts to weaken it or break it down, in spite of the fact that to permit this conviction would be the easy course, since, so far as I know, not a single person has found or released a prisoner has interested for him, in spite of the fact that Stone himself is very evidently of low moral calibre and a vicious element in society, in spite of the fact that the murder of which he was convicted was undoubtedly heinous, and, if there were absolute certainty of the murderer's identity, would be richly deserving of the death penalty.

I am commuting this sentence simply because I am convinced, and believe that practically all others connected with the trial are now convinced, that the identity of the one who murdered these children has not been absolutely proved. Although I believe that in all probability Stone was the one who committed the crime, there is just enough doubt about the case to preclude the hanging of a man solely upon circumstantial evidence, produced many months after the murder and supported almost wholly by two witnesses of very doubtful credibility to say the least.

While not opposed to the death penalty I am convinced that, when it is inflicted in a case of purely circumstantial evidence, such evidence should be very strong indeed, and should with practical certainty point to the identity of the murderer. I do not believe the people of this State want to see a man hanged simply because of a probability of his guilt or because he is the type of man who might have committed the crime. Neither do I believe that such a man under such circumstances, when once convicted of a murder, should ever be permitted to go free, unless at some future time it should be clearly demonstrated that he is innocent. In short, while there is sufficient presumption of guilt in this case to warrant life imprisonment without parole, I feel that this presumption is not sufficiently conclusive to justify the penalty of death.

That others share this feeling is evident from the letters and recommendations I have received. By this I do not mean the hundreds of letters from those who know nothing whatever about the case, but are writing through an excess of sentimentalism or emotional impulse. Such letters and petitions are always present at times like this, and, of course, must not be allowed to weigh at all in the final decision. What I refer to is not to these, but to letters and affidavits of those who were closely identified with the trial, and had most to do with the prosecution. Excerpts from each of these letters will, I think, demonstrate the uncertainty of mind which now prevails among those who took part in this case.

In a recent letter from Deputy Sheriff Norris G. Stensland, one of the officers who arrested Stone, he states that, during numerous conversations with Mrs. McIntosh between the months of October, 1924, and February, 1925, she would ask him "how the Martin case was getting along." He then continues:

"I informed Mrs. McIntosh that deputies were canvassing the district to see if anyone could be found who had ever seen Stone with the Martin girls. At no time did Mrs. McIntosh tell me that she recognized Stone as being with the Martin girls, and it was months later that she gave a perfect description of the girls, and said she knew they were the Martin girls that were with Stone the Saturday afternoon they disappeared.

As an investigating officer and arresting officer in this case, without malice, fear, or prejudice, and bearing in mind the brutal attack and murder of Nina and May Martin, I feel justified in saying that to hang Stone would be a travesty upon justice and the name of the State, the people and officers involved."

H. H. Cline, chief of detectives of the Los Angeles police department, under date of March 4, writes to me in these words:

"Officers of this department were assigned to the case and not only spent days and weeks, but, I would state, were continually in the neighborhood of the children's home for a period of about three months. Every cellar, every vacant house and every occupied house where the children could have been hidden away or trapped, was searched. Meetings were held and the matter was taken up by different societies and churches in the neighborhood, the case receiving more notoriety than any other case in this city. In fact, one certain day was set aside and people from all over the city, Boy Scouts, as well as practically the entire police department, met near the scene of the disappearance and a thorough search was made of the vicinity and the surrounding territory, without success.

My reason for making this statement is that I wish to call your attention to the fact that I believe this man, Stone, was convicted mostly upon the testimony of one Mrs. Wm. McIntosh of 2918 Rimpau avenue, and her son Ralph McIntosh, who testified, over one year after the disappearance of the girls, in fact, in December, 1925, that they had seen the two children in question get into an automobile with the defendant Stone, on the evening of their disappearance. However, during the entire investigation, not only of the police department but of other organizations, neither Mrs. McIntosh nor her son ever gave any such information to this department, despite the fact that there was a $500 reward offered for any information that would lead to a solution of the mystery surrounding the disappearance of the Martin girls.

While I am absolutely in favor of capital punishment, this being the first time that my department has ever written a letter to the Governor of the State of California asking that clemency be shown, I am going to do so in this case for the reason that I and officers of the police department who were assigned to the investigation at that time, always have and now do doubt very much whether the defendant, Stone, actually committed these murders.

I believe it is a case where executive leniency should be shown."

On February 28, Asa Keyes, district attorney of Los Angeles County, writes in part as follows:

"It may be possible that Mrs. McIntosh and her mother had a strong motive for testifying as they did against the defendant. In my opinion, the verdict of the jury was based almost entirely on the testimony of Mrs. McIntosh. From subsequent developments, I am not at all satisfied of the character of Mrs. McIntosh, and, while I think there is slight probability that she did not tell the truth, nevertheless there is a possibility that she did not testify to the absolute truth.

I therefore feel that in this case executive clemency should be extended to the defendant and that the judgment of death be commuted to that of life imprisonment.

This murder was an extremely atrocious one and if the defendant's guilt were to be absolutely demonstrated beyond a possibility of doubt, I would not so recommend and am only making this recommendation to your excellency by reason of the fact that the character of some of the witnesses produced against the defendant is such as to make me believe that they may not have testified truthfully at the trial.

Mr. Dennison, who tried this case and in whose judgment I have the utmost confidence, joins me in this recommendation."

Deputy District Attorney E. J. Dennison, chief prosecutor at the trial, writes under date of March 3:

"I heartily agree with Mr. Keyes in his recommendation for executive clemency to reduce the sentence of death to that of life imprisonment. I do not feel that the defendant's guilt was demonstrated beyond possibility of doubt, and feel that, had he been represented by experienced counsel, the extreme penalty would not have been inflicted.

To that end I believe that executive clemency should be extended to this man and that the sentence of death should be commuted to that of life imprisonment."

In a letter dated February 25, Judge Edwin F. Holden, who presided nobly and fairly at the trial as to draw comment from the Supreme Court in its decision, writes as follows:

"With regard to the testimony of members of the Pryor and MacIntosh family; this, as I remember it, had to do with the identification of Stone. They were the witnesses who testified to having seen the two girls in the automobile with Stone the evening they disappeared. I rather feel that their testimony was the most important given in the case. As I think I indicated in my previous letter to you, whatever weakness exists in this case is that which is usually inherent in all circumstantial cases, not in the ability of the person charged with the crime. I understand from statements that have come to me since the trial, that Mrs. MacIntosh has since the trial made statements quite inconsistent with her testimony given in the case. I regret that in connection with such reports that not infrequently a witness on the stand will be moved to the use of more exact and positive language than the facts would ordinarily warrant, and then, again, witnesses often are susceptible to influences brought to bear after the testimony, and as a result are inclined to change either their testimony or the language used in court. If I was convinced (and this could only come after I had personally had an extended opportunity of examining Mrs. MacIntosh) that Mrs. MacIntosh belonged to that class who, under the influence of the atmosphere of the court and feeling of importance as a witness, makes positive assertions and after mature consideration changed her statements, then I should feel that Stone would fairly be entitled to clemency at your hands."

On March 4, a very full and convincing letter was written to me by Deputy District Attorney Joseph W. Ryan who assisted Mr. Dennison in prosecuting the case. Mr. Ryan says:

"Ordinarily it is not the province nor the duty of prosecuting bodies or officers to request leniency in criminal cases. There often comes a time when such requests become honorable as well as a duty. I feel that this is such a case and the proper time.

There is now a doubt in my mind whether all of the evidence introduced had its source in the fountain of truth. Several facts and circumstances lead me to this conclusion.

Mrs. Winifred McIntosh testified that she had noted in a book or diary, the fact of her seeing the defendant with the two MacIntosh children, * * * the early evening of August 23, 1924. Yet she refused that information for more than six months, when the whole county was in a turmoil over the disappearance of the children and their probable whereabouts. In fact, this information was never disclosed until after the bodies were recovered on February 4, 1925, although she had been interviewed many times by officers of the Los Angeles Police Department, as well as members of the Sheriff's office of this county.

Since the trial of Stone, I have become better acquainted with the character of the witness Alva H. Floyd, now in San Quentin Penitentiary. I am firmly convinced that a great part of the testimony of Floyd concerning his alleged conversation with Stone while they were incarcerated in the county jail, was given with hope of immunity at our hands. However, no reward or immunity was ever held out to him by our office.

Floyd has had occasion to appear before our last grand jury to accuse various citizens of Calver City with embezzlement, and other crimes, yet, when traced to their source such statements, accusations and charges proved groundless and without merit. Can we honorably, conscientiously and justly take the God-given life of a man when such a witness played a greater or lesser part in the final outcome?

There are many other small details, all of which, when taken together, are sufficient to create a doubt in my mind as to the quality of the evidence.

I believe that the 'extreme penalty' should never be exacted except in those cases where the evidence is overwhelming against the accused. Are we prepared to say that this is such a case?

It is not freedom I ask, but that your Honor grant the defendant clemency and reduce his sentence to life imprisonment."

Further concerning the unreliability of the testimony of Mrs. McIntosh, Mrs. C. B. Lovelace, grandmother of the Martin children, on February 23d, makes the following statement:

"This is to certify that I know that almost every day after the Martin children were missing in the Baldwin Hills, and between then and the trial of Mr. Scott C. Stone, that some of the McIntosh family visited my daughter to enquire of news of the lost children or the well being of the mother. Yet all this time never said they had seen them in Mr. Stone's car the night they were lost. If they saw the Martin children as testified at trial why did they not mention it in all the sympathetic visits to my daughter?"

Along the same lines is a letter, dated February 23d, from Mrs. Paul Buus, the mother of the murdered children:

"Mrs. MacIntosh, who was probably the chief witness on whose evidence Mr. Stone was convicted, said on the witness stand that she knew my children well and recognized them in Mr. Stone's automobile the night they disappeared. Yet, before that, before the undersigned witnesses, in my own home, stated that she did not know my children. She said she was going on the witness stand because of her sympathy for me in my trouble. Yet it seems very strange to me that when first my children disappeared and the Baldwin Hills were being searched, and all the residents of the Glen Airy district were anxious to help in every way to restore my lost children to me, that this same woman who declared she knew my children so well, and declared on the witness stand that she had seen them in Mr. Stone's car the night of their disappearance, did not come to me and say she had seen them. It would not have been much trouble, for she lives only a few blocks from me. Why did she have to wait so many months, even until the bodies were found, before she came forward with her evidence?"

The witnesses to whom Mrs. Buus refers were neighbors, Mrs. C. H. Hedley and Mrs. Nellie D. Wilson. They both sign the following statement at the end of the foregoing letter:

"We, the undersigned, were present in the home of Mrs. Buus, the mother of the murdered children, when Mrs. MacIntosh stated that she did not know May and Nina Martin."

While it is true that it is a function of the jury to weigh the evidence and determine the credibility of witnesses, it is equally true that it is the manifest duty of a governor to review most carefully this evidence upon which the jury based their verdict, when everyone connected with the trial of the case now expresses at least some doubt. In reading the transcript I was deeply impressed with the testimony of two witnesses for the defense whose testimony absolutely contradicted that of Mrs. McIntosh on the vital question of connecting Stone with the Martin girls the day of their disappearance.

These two witnesses are E. B. Hershberger, advertising manager of the International Harvester Company, and his wife, who was at that time president of the Women's Club of the West Adams district. Both testified positively that they had seen Stone at about 8 o'clock on the evening of August 23, fixing the date in a very definite manner. Mr. and Mrs. Hershberger state that they were looking at the house of Mrs. Rose Gold, which was being offered them for rent, while Stone sat in his car outside with Mrs. Gold's two children, a little boy and girl. This testimony is summed up in a letter to me, dated February 26, and signed by Mrs. Gold and the two Hershbergers, as follows:

"This is to certify that we, the undersigned, know for a certainty that we were in the company of Mr. Scott C. Stone on the night and at the very time which he is accused of having in his car the Martin children for the purpose of murdering them, said time, August 23d, year 1924, on Saturday night between 7 and 9 o'clock.

Mrs. McIntosh, star witness for the prosecution, says she saw the Martin children in Mr. Stone's car drive past her at this particular hour.

Prosecuting attorney says that this statement of Mrs. McIntosh was the principal evidence for the conviction of Mr. Stone. As a matter of fact we, the undersigned, were actually talking with Mr. Stone outside the home of Mrs. Gold in the presence of Mrs. Gold and her two children, at 3025 Hillcrest avenue, at the time he is accused of having the Martin children in his car. And from Hillcrest avenue he took Mrs. Gold, her little son and daughter, to the movies."

Mr. and Mrs. Hershberger qualify the last sentence of the above letter by the following postscript:

"We testify to the truth of all of the above with the exception of the last sentence of the last paragraph. Instead Mr. Stone told Mrs. Hershberger that he was taking Mrs. Gold and children to the movies. Mrs. Gold got in Mr. Stone's car wherein Mr. Stone and Mrs. Gold's two children were already seated. They drove away from 3025 Hillcrest avenue at the same time that we left."

A majority of the jurors have asked for a reconsideration of sentence and two of them have made affidavit that, owing to a misunderstanding or misapprehension of the judge's instructions, the jury did not know that the case happened to recommend a sentence of life imprisonment. One of these jurors says in her affidavit:

"Not only your affiant, but all the other members of the said jury, believed and were under the impression that the jury had nothing whatsoever to do with the imposition of the penalty. Your affiant further states that she feels and has always felt that a term of life imprisonment for the defendant, S. C. Stone, would be the proper punishment in this case, due to the conflicting evidence and the character of the testimony presented during the trial of the case. Your affiant further states that her only reason in voting as she did vote was due solely and only to the fact that she did not know, at the time the said cause was submitted to her and to the other jurors for decision, that she could recommend leniency in a capital case."

The second juror to make affidavit says:

"All of the other jurors, with the exception of the two gentlemen upon the said jury, believed and stated to your affiant that they had nothing whatsoever to do with the penalty in the said case. * * * that the imposition of the penalty in the case was entirely up to the judge, and that the affiant had nothing whatsoever to do with any reconsideration. * * * that she feels, and has always felt, that a term of life imprisonment would be the proper punishment."

However, in the letter from Judge Hahn, dated February 25th, he points out that his instructions to the jury were expressed in the clearest possible manner, while in a subsequent letter of March 4th, he states that after interrogating, at my request, all of the jurors he could secure eight in number, he ascertained that the two jurors quoted above are entirely mistaken in their recollection that the jurors as a whole did not understand that they could recommend life imprisonment, and that these ideas have developed in the minds of these two jurors since the trial. In this same letter he further declares that the present attitude of the jurors on the question of clemency is as follows:

"In addition to the discussion I had with the jurors as to what occurred in the jury room, I also went into a discussion as to how they felt on the question of the exercising of clemency on your part. One juror * * * hesitated to express a feeling favorable to such clemency. The others all felt favorable toward it. * * * I think that I can truthfully say that if you should decide to exercise mercy clemency that there will be no feeling on the part of any of the jurors that the lack of exercise have not been fully met, provided that Stone is not subsequently paroled. That possibility was suggested by several of the jurors when I discussed this question with them. They generally felt that he should not be released based on society, and that if life imprisonment really meant that he would be incarcerated for the rest of his life, they were rather disposed to feel that this was a case for such action."

In the first of my three letters from Judge Hahn dated February 17th, he clearly indicates that there is sufficient doubt surrounding this case to justify executive clemency. In part, he says in this letter:

"There is, of course, this element in the case which could not help but make its impression on the jury and that is, that the crime was a diabolical act. There was no possible excuse for the taking of the lives of these two girls. In fact, to my mind it seems so diabolical that it could have been done only by a degenerate or by someone who at the time must have been bereft of reason or judgment."

There was evidence in the case that Stone had begged of mistreatment of girls and that he was of a moral degenerate mind. I think the evidence showing him to be a man of this character and the unquestioned fact that whoever committed the crime was a man of that type had a good deal to do with the jury's verdict.

On the whole, it was a type of case that honest minds may have well entertained a reasonable doubt. It was not a type of circumstantial evidence that inevitably led to but one conclusion.

Since the trial of the case, I have been advised that at least one or two of the witnesses who testified that they saw the girls in the automobile with Stone on the evening they disappeared had weakened in their assurance that Stone was the man in the automobile. The identification made by these witnesses was not surrounded with such circumstances and facts as to make one feel they may not have been mistaken."

Stone, himself, has never weakened in maintaining his innocence. In a letter from the prison chaplain, who has of late been most closely in touch with him, Rev. Frederick H. Menzel, reads as follows:

"For about a month Mr. Scott C. Stone (No. 43045, San Quentin), to be executed next Friday, has been in my spiritual care. I understand that his case has been submitted to you for review, coupled with the appeal that you extend executive clemency to him by reducing his death sentence to that of life imprisonment. Permit me to join my voice to the many voices which are appealing to you in behalf of this man.

If my information is correct, this man has been convicted purely upon circumstantial evidence. Furthermore, while I have again and again urged the man to confess his guilt to me, his pastor, he continued to claim innocence. Finally, I do not get the impression that this man is guilty."

Next, I come to letters of the four women most closely connected with this case. Mrs. McIntosh, under date of March 4th, and her mother, Mrs. Pryor, under date of March 6th, both urge me to commute the sentence, in view of expressed doubt as to the guilt of Stone. Somewhat different in character, though very significant, are letters from Mrs. Lovelace, the grandmother of the murdered children, and from Mrs. Buus, their mother. The grandmother says, in one of her communications:

"I wish to state, as the grandmother of the murdered Martin children, that if Mr. Scott C. Stone is hanged for the murder of my grandchildren, it will make my daughter, their mother, exceedingly unhappy, and she will never feel that the right man was arrested and convicted. I also believe, myself, that there is a very, very strong probability in favor of Mr. Stone's innocence, and trust that the sentence will be commuted."

And, on her part, the mother writes to me under date of February 23d:

"Because I am anxious to be relieved of a lifetime of misery which it will bring to me if Mr. Scott C. Stone is hanged for the murder of my two children, I am making a last minute appeal to you. You are my only hope now to save one whom I feel sure has something on his side which makes his guilt very uncertain * * * I beg of you—Oh! I plead with you, relieve a bereaved mother of unnecessary and continuous heartache by commuting Mr. Stone's sentence."

A last minute telegram has been received from Mrs. Buus today:

"I understand you are making your decision this morning in the Stone case. As the mother of the murdered children I wish to say that unless you commute the sentence you will make me very unhappy for the rest of my life."

Thus I have quoted at length from practically all of those who were engaged in prosecuting the case of Scott C. Stone. As has been seen, they all unite in strong recommendation that the penalty shall be reduced from death to life imprisonment. These are the ones who were present at the trial, who know intimately all the circumstances and who are in the best position to form a proper judgment.

When we take into consideration the diabolical nature of the crime, and couple with it the fact that Stone himself is of unattractive personality, without money, influence or friends, it is evident that there can be but one explanation of this desire for leniency. It is clear that while nearly all still hold a strong probability of Stone's guilt, they also believe that there is just enough possibility of his innocence to make them unwilling that the death penalty should be exacted. They seem unanimously to have made up their minds that there is sufficient doubt about this case, and sufficient reason for distrusting the reliability of the chief witnesses, to render it unsafe to hang this man, lest subsequent evidence may at some future time show another to have been the actual murderer.

The Supreme Court had no alternative other than to sustain the verdict. Under the law they must not perform the jury's function to weigh the evidence and pass upon the credibility of the witnesses. There was ample testimony, taken at face value, upon which to base a conviction. And, as said by the court:

"The record in this case is singularly free from any ruling that might be claimed to be error."

But I do not occupy the same position in relation to the trial as that of the Supreme Court. In my capacity as Chief Executive, I must, to some extent, exercise the prerogative of both court and jury in the administration of law and justice under the constitution.

It is contended that, if there is a "reasonable doubt" regarding the guilt of a condemned man, a full pardon should be granted. This argument is not sound. Presumption of innocence follows one accused of crime only throughout the trial and such presumption is negated by conviction. Thereafter the guilt of the defendant must be assumed as an established fact, an assumption that can be overcome only by proof, beyond a reasonable doubt, that the defendant is innocent. In other words, to justify a full pardon, the burden is upon the convicted defendant State to convince the Governor of his innocence beyond a reasonable doubt. No such overwhelming proof of innocence has been produced in this case. On the contrary the probability of guilt is so strong that I do not feel justified in extending clemency even to the degree of commuting to life imprisonment, with the possibility of parole after serving seven years of his sentence, and thus turning loose upon society a man who is presumably a vicious degenerate to become a menace to the children of the community.

Now, therefore, I, C. C. Young, Governor of the State of California, do hereby commute the sentence of death imposed upon Scott C. Stone in the superior court of the State of California, in and for the county of Los Angeles, upon condition that he be imprisoned during the term of his natural life in the State Prison at San Quentin without parole.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and cause the Great Seal of the State of California to be applied this ninth day of March, 1927.

[SEAL]

C. C. YOUNG, Governor

Attest: FRANK C. JORDAN, Secretary of State.

By ROBERT V. JORDAN, Deputy.

PARDON

There has been presented to me an application for the pardon of Charlotte Anna Whitney, who, on January 27, 1920, was tried in the superior court in Alameda County, before Superior Judge James G. Quinn, on a charge of violating the so-called Criminal Syndicalism Act. The information comprised five counts, first, that she had helped to organize, and had acted as an association prohibited by the Criminal Syndicalism Act; second, that she had conspired, written or printed matter teaching and advocating violence as prohibited by that act; third, that by spoken and written words she had taught and advocated violence; fourth, that by spoken and written words she had justified the commission of violence; and fifth, that she herself had committed acts of violence.

Miss Whitney pled not guilty to these five charges, and on February 20, 1920, was found guilty on the first count, membership in an association believed by the jury to be prohibited by the act; but the jury refused to convict on the other four counts. She was sentenced to San Quentin Prison for a term of from one to fourteen years. The case was taken to the First District Court of Appeal, presided over by Justices Tyler, Kernan and Richards, and on April 22, 1922, the judgment of the lower court was affirmed. A hearing before the State Supreme Court was denied, and the case was taken to the United States Supreme Court to test the constitutionality of the California Criminal Syndicalism Act. On May 16th of this year the court declared the law constitutional though two of the justices in a separate opinion expressed regret that in the original trial there had not been raised the issue of danger or lack of danger from the particular organization with which the defendant had joined.

I must confess that, when this application for pardon was first presented to me, I was very doubtful as to whether it could properly be granted. In the two places, I felt strongly that the ordinary processes of our courts should not be interfered with, and that their verdicts should be upheld. Secondly, I felt, even though some of Miss Whitney's adherents questioned the wisdom or necessity of the law under which she was convicted, that after the constitutionality of that law had been upheld by our highest court, its penalties must be executed. I also felt that although, in the present case, a term in prison might seem harsh as applied to the particular individual concerned, on the other hand a pardon might seem a letting down of the bars designed for the protection of society.

To grant a pardon in advance of a parole, or even before any portion of a prison term is served, would seem a very unusual procedure, and I felt that such a practice could not be forthcoming under anything like ordinary circumstances. However, I have since devoted several weeks to a study of the case, have read and re-read all of its thousand pages of transcript, have sought whatever light I could from the judges participating in the case, and from those possessing intimate and unbiased knowledge of the defendant and her activities. In short, I have made the most complete investigation of which I was capable, in order to determine whether, notwithstanding the decisions of the courts, there was reason for exercising that power of pardon which, under our form of government, is constitutionally placed in the hands of a chief executive.

I have now completed my investigation and study of this case, and have become completely convinced that, under all the circumstances involved, a pardon for Miss Whitney must issue. I am aware that many may not agree with me in this decision, but I would only suggest my belief that an equally thorough study would inevitably bring a similar conclusion on the part of practically every doubter. Unfortunately, lack of space prevents the extended review of the case which would be desirable, but I may perhaps at least present a few of its salient points.

On November 9, 1919, there was held in the city of Oakland a State convention of an organization known as the Communist Labor Party of California. This was an offshoot from the Socialist Party and comprised the radical wing of that party. The State convention in question was held openly; reporters were present, and the story of the convention was told in the news columns of that afternoon and the next day. About one hundred delegates were present, Anita Whitney being one. The Oakland Socialist Local, to which she had belonged, went over to the new party and she went along with the others.

In the convention Miss Whitney was placed upon the committee of credentials and the committee of resolutions. As a member of the latter committee she argued for a resolution, the adoption of which she had secured in the committee. The resolution in question sought to pledge the new party to the ballot as a means of carrying out its aims. It read, in part:

"The Communist Labor Party of California fully recognizes the value of political action as a means of spreading communist propaganda; it insists that in proportion to the development of the economic strength of the working class, it, the working class, must also develop its political power. . . . Therefore, we again urge the workers who are possessed of the right of franchise to cast their votes for the party which represents their immediate and final interest."

After a considerable controversy this resolution was voted down, and instead there was adopted in toto the platform of the national organization, the Communist Labor Party of America. Notwithstanding her defeat Miss Whitney, as was perhaps natural, remained throughout the day of the convention, and, in fact, attended one or two committee meetings during the subsequent month. This, as far as the evidence discloses, marks the extent of her association with the Communist Labor Party, for membership in which she was subsequently convicted.

This autumn of 1919 was a period of much unrest and nervous tension as an aftermath of the Great War. Industries had to be reorganized, unemployment was rife, labor was extremely fearful of its future, new political theories and philosophies were everywhere projected. In this panic-stricken frame of mind which prevailed at the time, civic authorities were naturally suspicious and were prone to regard new political or social movements as revolutionary in tendency. Nevertheless, there were no arrests as a result of this Communist Labor Convention for nearly three weeks. Then as Miss Whitney was leaving a meeting of Oakland clubwomen where she had been speaking on the condition of the American negro, she was placed under arrest on November 28, 1919. This action was taken at the direction of Fenton Thompson, inspector of police, under the authority of the Oakland Police Commission.

The Oakland chief of police at that time was Walter J. Peterson, a firm enemy to radical propaganda of every kind, and a staunch supporter of the Criminal Syndicalism Act. He has recently been quoted as having made the following statement with reference to Miss Whitney's arrest:

"I investigated Anita Whitney's record in 1919. I found that she had always done an enormous amount of good in the community. I wasn't in sympathy with her pacifist ideas and a lot of her other notions. But I recognized that it wasn't in her nature to commit violence nor to encourage it. She was one of those idealists who want to make the world better for every one."

So I ordered Fenton Thompson not to arrest her. But he was so zealous that he went over my head to Commissioner F. F. Morse and the arrest was made. No constructive good can come from making a martyr of Anita Whitney. She should never have been held in the first place."

Having been arrested, Miss Whitney was speedily brought to trial. The prosecution was conducted by two exceedingly able deputies from the district attorney's office. For the defense there was a rather elderly man with evidently little taste for court practice, and Thomas O'Connor, a brilliant attorney, who assumed entire charge of the case. This was in the midst of an epidemic of influenza, and during the trial one of the jurors contracted the malady and died, her place being taken by a thirteenth juror, who had been unopposed for fear of such an occurrence. Another juror and Miss Whitney herself were for a time seriously ill. And, finally, Thomas O'Connor, the mainstay of the defense, was himself stricken.

For several days O'Connor, in spite of a raging fever, stuck to his post. At length he was forced to give up, and a two days continuance was granted. On the expiration of this period the attorney was reported as very ill and delirious. The court decided that the case could not safely await his recovery, and ordered the trial to go on without him. A remark made during the colloquy by the assistant defense counsel, as to what might happen should the case proceed, seems strangely prophetic:

"It probably will mean Mr. O'Connor's life, and it may mean a miscarriage of justice to this defendant."

Nevertheless, after her request granted for consultation, the case went on. Two days later Mr. O'Connor died, taking with him to the grave all plans which he had made for the defense. Another lawyer, hastily summoned and of necessity unprepared, continued in the trial until the end, but with the result already noted.

Thus I have tried to outline the nature of the charge upon which Miss Whitney was convicted, as well as some of the extraordinary circumstances attending her trial. It is true that we have the advantage of considering this in the calm light of our present knowledge, rather than in the excited days of 1919 and 1920. I do not believe it conceivable that today such a trial would take place, or a conviction be demanded even by the strongest adherents of the Criminal Syndicalism Act. The trial having been held, however, and a conviction having been secured, it remains to be considered whether pardon at this time would be a proper action. On this point, I should like to quote one of the ablest and most conservative legal minds in California, Orrin Kip McMurray, head of the School of Law in the University of California. In a recent letter, Professor McMurray says:

"If Miss Whitney were to be tried today it is very improbable that a conviction could be had; indeed, it is scarcely possible that a district attorney would urge her prosecution. The testimony in her case is by no means strong and * * * should, I submit, hardly convince a California jury in 1927 that Miss Whitney is a dangerous person at the present time. The union of act and intent, though technically established, is rather faint. The Supreme Court of the United States, both in the majority and the minority opinion, review the facts sufficiently to indicate the conflict of testimony, concerning which the appellate courts had no power to judge. The constitution has put this power of review in the Executive. As Chief Justice Taft remarks: 'Executive clemency exists to afford relief from undue harshness or evident mistake in the operation or enforcement of the criminal law. The administration of justice by the courts is not necessarily always wise or certainly considerate of the circumstances which may properly mitigate guilt.'"

And then Dean McMurray goes on to show that conviction by a trial court under due process of law should be no bar to pardon, since the pardoning power of the Executive was established for the sole purpose of affording to a convicted defendant, where extraordinary circumstances exist, that clemency which, under their limited powers of review, appellate courts can not furnish.

Supplementing this very comprehensive review by Professor McMurray, I should like to point out a few additional facts which must, I believe, convince any one who makes a thorough study of the transcript of the trial. First, as has already been shown, there was the illness and death of Thomas O'Connor, the brilliant counsel for the defense, in the midst of the trial, under such distressing circumstances that not a single note of any kind was handed on to his hastily summoned and totally unprepared successor. From that time on the defense seems all at sea. The evidence offered in the case, for instance, was almost entirely confined to witnesses for the prosecution. As against more than twenty such witnesses, with the exception of one prosecution witness recalled, Miss Whitney herself was the only witness for the defense, and her direct testimony occupies only three pages of the thousand-page transcript.

Moreover, a very large part of the testimony, and that which undoubtedly had most effect upon the jury, had to do, not with the Communist Labor Party which Miss Whitney had joined, but with the I. W. W., with which she was never connected. This testimony was largely composed of a recital of atrocities committed in California by the I. W. W. from 1913 to 1918, the narrating of I. W. W. policies of lawlessness, sabotage, and crime, and the reading of incendiary and blasphemous I. W. W. songs. This evidence was admitted on the showing that a brief endorsement of the I. W. W. had been made in a special report on labor organization in the Communist Labor Party—not the Communist Labor Party of California with which Miss Whitney was connected in Oakland, but the National party at Chicago, whose platform the California party had formally adopted. I can not help believing that the conviction of Miss Whitney was largely due to the recital of these actions by the I. W. W., actions with which she had nothing to do, and occurring years before the offense for which she was indicted—the joining of a distinct and very different organization. I also can not help believing that, had Thomas O'Connor lived, this apparently extraneous testimony would never have been permitted to come before the jury, at least, with the effect it actually had.

I furthermore believe that Justice Brandeis in his opinion has pointed out the chief weakness in this case. The law defines criminal syndicalism as involving "the commission of crime, sabotage, or unlawful acts of force and violence or unlawful methods of terrorism as a means of accomplishing a change of industrial ownership or control, or effecting any political change." The Communist Labor Party has practically disappeared, not only in California, but also in other states where no criminal syndicalism law existed. It was a visionary attempt to plant a European radicalism upon an American soil, where it simply could not thrive. I am unable to learn of any activities of this party, in California at least, or possibly in America, which ever rendered it a danger to the State or a menace to our institutions. I am satisfied that, in the light of our present knowledge, no charge of criminal syndicalism would be now brought against its members.

Justice Brandeis in his able review of the case expresses himself as follows:

"Whenever the fundamental rights of free speech and assembly are alleged to be invaded, it must remain open to a defendant to present the issue whether there actually did exist at the time a clear danger; whether the danger, if any, was imminent; and whether the evil apprehended was one so substantial as to justify the stringent restriction interposed by the Legislature. * * * Whether in 1919, when Miss Whitney did the things complained of, there was in California such clear and present danger of serious evil, might have been made the important issue in the case. She might have required that the issue be determined either by the court or by the jury."

In a word, although the Supreme Court in its decision was forced to confine itself solely to the constitutionality of the law, the distinguished justice feels impelled to point out an essential element which was lacking at the original trial, and which, in my opinion, if employed as it should have been, would never have permitted conviction for mere membership in the Communist Labor Party—a party with which probably none of us would have any sympathy, but which was organized in an open public meeting, and in joining which Miss Whitney undoubtedly had no thought of breaking any law. In saying this, however, I am not unmindful of the fact that the jury at that time conceived the criminal syndicalism statute actually to apply, and that their verdict makes the defendant at least technically guilty.

I have been interested in the receipt of a letter from Superior Judge James G. Quinn, who presided at the trial and imposed the sentence upon Miss Whitney. In this letter Judge Quinn says in part:

"Through the years which have elapsed it has been natural that I should have given a great deal of thought to this case because of its extraordinary features and because the contest involved the validity of the law under which Miss Whitney was tried. The Supreme Court of the United States has upheld the law. The sole question remaining is whether the vindication of the law and the safety of the State require the incarceration of Miss Whitney.

Her trial was held at a most difficult time; not only was it a time of public excitement because of the war conditions, but in addition it was a time of excitement owing to the influenza epidemic. In all my experience at the bar and on the bench, I do not recall having passed through a more trying situation.

A regrettable incident of Miss Whitney's case was the death of Mr. O'Connor in the midst of the trial. His death of course was a great loss to the defendant. His ability as an advocate was universally recognized, and his thorough grasp of her defense was apparent to every one identified with the trial.

During the course of the trial I studied Miss Whitney. She is a lady of culture and refinement, and I can well imagine the suffering she has undergone during more than seven years which have elapsed since her conviction. The strain upon her mentally undoubtedly has been far greater punishment than would have been incarceration in the case of a person of a different nature.

Reviewing the entire matter, I believe that justice and the welfare of the State would be subserved in this case if she was granted a pardon."

It will be recalled that the Whitney case was passed upon, not by the State Supreme Court, but by the District Court of Appeal, presided over by Justices Tyler, Kerrigan and Richards. Accordingly I have requested the judges who were then members of this court to furnish me their recommendations. I found that I was not able to get into communication with Judge Richards, since he had left the State and was on his way to Europe, but I have received letters from both Judges Kerrigan and Tyler.

Judge Kerrigan, who is now a United States District Judge for the Northern District of California, has written me as follows:

"As you may know, I was one of the judges of the District Court of Appeal which decided the case of Miss Anita Whitney when it was appealed from the trial court. I am persuaded that from the technical point of view no other result could have been arrived at by the various courts which have had her case before them.

Without going into extensive discussion of my reasons, I have come to believe that no purpose useful to the State can be served by imprisoning a woman of her type in the State penitentiary. Accordingly, I wish most earnestly to recommend the granting of executive clemency in this case."

From Justice John F. Tyler, presiding justice of the First District Court of Appeal, a position he also held when the Whitney case was before that court, I have received a letter from which I quote the following concluding paragraphs:

"The psychology of the situation has doubtless changed since Miss Whitney's conviction, and considering the long period of time she has been compelled to wait pending a final determination of her case, and the anxiety and mental pain she must have suffered in consequence, and considering further that the crime of which she stands convicted is political in character, I am of the opinion that she has already been sufficiently punished, and that the granting to this aged little woman a pardon would be an act of mercy. You will recall that this was the attitude of our government, in this class of cases, at the close of the Civil War. Then again, the history of Miss Whitney's life, as revealed by the facts of the case, shows that both before and subsequent to her trial she simply allowed herself to be mis-guided by listening to the vicious principles of that class which is primarily responsible for her unfortunate situation.

The record further discloses that she is by nature and heritage endowed with a kindly and peaceful character. Considering all the foregoing matters, and the facts of her particular case, together with the additional fact that she is a woman well advanced in years, it would seem that to deny absolution to her in a State penitentiary would serve no useful purpose to society. For the reasons stated I believe that the humane thing to do is to grant her a pardon."

It will be noted that Justice Tyler has much to say regarding the personal attributes of Miss Whitney, and, indeed, I believe that her personal character may properly have great weight in the solution of the problem before me. During the past few weeks I have received scores of letters from prominent men and women who have known her for very many years. These letters are almost uniformly in their origin, but they all say practically the same thing—namely, that while Miss Whitney is very firm and courageous where she believes a principle to be involved, at the same time she is essentially gentle in nature and disposition—a woman to whom violence in any form is utterly repulsive.

Miss Whitney was born in 1867 and is consequently about exactly sixty years old. She came of an eminent family, received a fine education and inherited just sufficient fortune to enable her to live in a modest way and at the same time devote her life to public service. She was for a long time secretary of the Associated Charities in Oakland, and probation officer for girls in Alameda County. I have been informed by one of her fellow workers in this service:

"I know from months of daily association with her how deep-seated she was to that type of work. She worked long hours at $85 a month, took no suits, economized on her luncheons, and gave more generously than she could afford from her own funds to alleviate distress that could not otherwise be cared for through regular official channels. She was free, unselfish, unpretentious, of shrewd, firm, decent, and defray in action of public affairs, but she was very more of poverty, crime, and distress than some people have seen. There is a wonderful record to her credit of unselfish effort to better the world a little."

I have quoted the above paragraph partly because it comes from a conservative, well-balanced woman, who has for many years known Miss Whitney intimately, but more particularly because it sums up in a few words the picture of all her acquaintances. As she grew older in her social work, she did what others in her sphere of life would never do and can never understand. Instead of working only for these people she began to work with them. This led to her joining the Socialist Party, and more and more to her taking part in those political activities culminating in the convention of November 9, 1919. However, as I have been informed by a special agent of the federal government who examined her entire correspondence:

"Neither in all of the letters from and to her, and about her, nor in the investigations covering her activities, does there appear a single line or word tending to show that she ever advocated a violation of any law."

In a newspaper which reached my desk this morning I read the headlines, "Proposed Pardon of the I. W. W. Leader, Anna Whitney." I quote this because I believe it expresses a very common misconception. There is not the slightest evidence to show that Miss Whitney was either ever a member of the I. W. W., or ever subscribed to its principles or practices. In fact, it was clearly demonstrated in the trial that Miss Whitney had no connection with the I. W. W., although she belonged to the Communist Labor Party. I think it is an acknowledged fact, abundantly proved, that the I. W. W. has advocated and practiced violence, terrorism, and sabotage in California. If anything like this is true of the Communist Labor Party, I have never heard of it, and this trial certainly did not disclose it. Accordingly, while it might easily be shown that merely to belong to the I. W. W. constitutes criminal radicalism, the charge would be certainly far more remote as applied to the Communist Labor Party. In order to save Miss Whitney's own conception of this party, it is only necessary to quote a page from the transcript of her testimony:

Question: "And now then what did you understand to be, or know to be, the meaning of that organization that occurred on November 9, at Loring Hall?"

Answer by Miss Whitney: "It was a convention to formulate the principles and to put into existence the Communist Labor Party, a political party for California, to be a branch of the National Communist Labor Party."

Q. "Was it to be, or did you intend that it should be an instrument of terrorism or of violence?"

A. "No, sir."

Q. "Did you, or did you not, know whether or not it was the purpose of that meeting to violate any known law?"

A. "I knew it was not. The meeting was an open convention, and would not of course have been an open convention if we were deliberately planning to break the laws of the State in which we live."

This sworn testimony on the part of Miss Whitney would seem to establish her own conception of the organization which she had joined, and would also seem to affect what Justice Brandeis calls "the issue whether there actually did exist at the time a clear danger; whether the danger, if any, was imminent; and whether the evil apprehended was so substantial as to justify the stringent restriction imposed by the Legislature."

During the past month I have received many hundreds of communications urging pardon for Anita Whitney. Some of the petitions, it is true, are evidently instigated by the Civil Liberties Union and similar organizations, which have been for years staunch opponents of the Criminal Syndicalism Act, and whose attitude is consequently easy to explain. But aside from these petitions, by far the largest number of communications I have received come from those who favor a law of this kind; who are pleased that its constitutionality has been upheld by the federal courts; but who express themselves as convinced that no good end can be attained by sending Miss Whitney to prison.

Among others, I have heard from bankers, from corporation lawyers, from newspaper publishers, from mayors of cities, from judges and ex-judges, from educators, from former service men, from agricultural leaders, from men of large business affairs, from social workers, from members of women's organizations, from churches of every denomination—all urging this pardon. For instance, I have a letter from a prominent San Francisco attorney who actually wrote the Criminal Syndicalism Act, and has been busy defending it before committees at subsequent legislative sessions, who says:

"I feel that a pardon in the case of Miss Whitney would be entirely justified, and indeed most proper; not because she is a woman, not because of any station in life which she has held or may now hold, but merely because in the individual case I am convinced that there was an element lacking in the facts shown in the case which would have, in my opinion, warranted an acquittal, and which, in my opinion, warrants a pardon."

Not only this attorney who wrote the Criminal Syndicalism Act, but also the State Senator who introduced it into the Legislature and secured its passage, has written to me. He says:

"I desire to join with the many other California citizens who are asking for a pardon for Miss Anita Whitney. Imprisonment can make a martyr of her, but it can not make her a criminal in the eyes of the public. Her charitable and humane acts are too numerous and too well known for that. I have read the reporter's transcript in her case and am at a loss to understand how a verdict of guilty was secured."

Punishment of offenders has several purposes: to reform the offender, to deter others from committing crimes, and to create a wholesome respect for law. Not one of these can be accomplished by the imprisonment of Miss Whitney. No one who knows her will contend that she will be improved by a term in prison. If she is incarcerated, many of our very best and leading citizens will feel that a gross injustice has been done. That is not a feeling that is conducive to respect for law and government, or that deters from committing crime.

I sincerely trust that you may see your way clear to grant the requested pardon, and right, so far as possible, the damage already done."

The last two quotations are from men who believe in the Criminal Syndicalism Act, and who also believe that any miscarriage of justice under that act must be corrected by executive pardon in order to preserve the act itself. But there are others, lovers of liberty and free speech, who believe that any act like this must be so carefully applied as not to throttle that which must ever serve as the most indispensable birthright of every free American. These would quote the words of Justice Brandeis as the finest expression of the kind produced during the present generation:

"Those who won our independence believed that the final end of the State was to make men free to develop their faculties; and that in its government the deliberative forces should prevail over the arbitrary. They valued liberty both as an end and as a means. They believed liberty to be the secret of happiness and courage to be the secret of liberty. They believed that freedom to think as you will and to speak as you think are means indispensable to the discovery and spread of political truth; that without free speech and assembly discussion would be futile; that with them, discussion affords ordinarily adequate protection against the dissemination of noxious doctrine; that the greatest menace to freedom is an inert people; that public discussion is a political duty; and that this should be a fundamental principle of the American government."

Some who have written to me in opposition to the action I am taking have insisted that if a pardon is granted to Miss Whitney, it must also be granted to all who have been convicted under the Criminal Syndicalism Act. With this assumption I can not agree. I am not pardoning Miss Whitney on the ground that any punishment under the act is unjustifiable. No governor, sworn to uphold the law, has any right to set aside or nullify a law, especially a law which has been declared constitutional by the highest court of the land. Neither am I pardoning her because, according to a common misconception, she is a wealthy woman who has been using her money to keep out of prison, thus making "one law for the poor and another for the rich." According to everything I can learn, Miss Whitney is in very moderate circumstances, and has been enabled to prosecute her appeal only through the generous interest taken in her case on the part of her friends and counsel.

I believe that a careful reading of what I have here written will make my position plain. Once again I will say that I feel absolutely convinced that any one who studies the transcript and records of this case, as I have studied them, will agree that there is no possible alternative to this pardon which I am granting. Of the hundred or more who helped organize the Communist Labor Party in California, only two besides Miss Whitney were convicted, and in these cases the jury found them guilty, not only of membership in the party, but on other counts involving the actual advocacy, aiding, teaching, or plotting of violence, on the part of the defendants themselves. These two, by the way, are not now in prison. So far as I can ascertain, there never was a conviction in any case in the State of California, other than Miss Whitney's, solely on account of membership in the Communist Labor Party—a conviction which has been well expressed as falling "within the outside limits of a technical violation of the law." Accordingly, her case can not be construed as representative of other and different convictions under the Criminal Syndicalism Act.

Let us very briefly sum up a few of the things I have tried to say above. I am issuing a pardon for Charlotte Anita Whitney in spite of the fact that under all ordinary circumstances the verdicts of our courts must be upheld, in spite of the undoubted constitutionality of the law under which she was convicted, in spite of the fact that the courts have adjudged that in issuing the Communist Labor Party she violated the Criminal Syndicalism Act, in spite of my belief that nothing is more necessary than to instill into our people a healthy respect for the dignity and majesty of law.

I am issuing this pardon because I do not believe that under ordinary circumstances this case would ever have been brought to trial, because the abnormal conditions attending the trial go a long way toward explaining the verdict of the jury, because I feel that the Criminal Syndicalism Act was primarily intended to apply to organizations actually known as advocates of violence, terrorism, or sabotage, rather than to such organizations as a Communist Labor Party, because the police who have been connected with the case, as well as the authors and some of the strongest advocates of the law under which Miss Whitney was convicted, made an urging that a pardon be granted, because not only the evidence at the trial, but also the testimony of all Miss Whitney's acquaintances, show her to have the utmost respect for law and to be averse to violence in any form, because her unflinching might easily serve a harmful purpose by leaving the winning sports of radicals, through making her their martyr, because, whatever may be thought as to "the folly of her misdirected sympathies," Miss Whitney, lifelong friend of the unfortunate, is not in any true sense a "criminal," and to condemn her, at sixty years of age, to a felon's cell is an action which is absolutely unthinkable.

Now, therefore, I, C. C. Young, Governor of the State of California, do hereby pardon Charlotte Anita Whitney.

In witness whereof, I have heretofore set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State of California to be affixed this twentieth day of June, 1927.

PARDON

There has been presented to me an application for the pardon of James S. Willis, who, on April 12, 1927, was convicted in the superior court of Sacramento County of the crimes of first degree robbery and assault with intent to commit murder. On the same date Hon. J. P. Pullen, judge of said court, sentenced him to the State Prison at San Quentin for an indeterminate term of from five years to life for the first offense, and from one to fourteen years for the other, the sentences to run consecutively. He was taken to San Quentin and given prison number 43503.

The offenses with which Willis was charged consisted in the robbery of the attendant of one oil service station and the attempted murder of the proprietor of another. The man who committed these crimes first held up a boy by the name of Robert Richardson on the streets of Sacramento about three o'clock in the afternoon of March 19, 1927. At the point of a revolver, Richardson was forced into his automobile and compelled to drive the same, a Buick coach, about the city for more than an hour, during which time the bandit took several drinks from a bottle. Richardson was finally put out of his car on the outskirts of the city, and the bandit drove off. A short time thereafter, this man drove Richardson's Buick coach to a Union oil station on the corner of Tenth and P streets, and held up the operator, Paul Winstead, taking thirty-odd dollars in cash from the register, as well as Winstead's watch and fob. He proceeded, about five o'clock, to a service station at 1417 Twenty-third street, owned by Oscar G. Jones. After a little preliminary argument over money, he shot Jones three times in the arm and once in the back. The bullets taken from Jones' body were of .22 caliber. After the shooting, the bandit drove away immediately without taking anything, or having got out of the Buick coach, which was subsequently found parked a short distance from the police station in Sacramento.

It appears from the record that James S. Willis, now a young man 27 years old, had already been convicted on December 17, 1921, of the crime of grand larceny, and sentenced to the State Reformatory at Monroe, in the state of Washington. He was discharged in 1922 and, in 1924, was convicted of a violation of the Harrison Narcotic Act at Seattle, Washington, and sentenced to the federal penitentiary at McNeill Island to a term of two years.

Willis was identified by the two victims of the robbery and the attempted murder as the man who committed the crimes. On April 8 he was indicted by the grand jury on both charges, and four days later, on April 12, pleaded guilty to each indictment and was convicted and sentenced as recited above. The district attorney of Sacramento County, Neil R. McAllister, in a letter dated July 19, 1927, has given me the following account of the events leading up to this conviction:

"Shortly prior to the time of the commission of the offenses in Sacramento, for which Willis was sentenced on his plea of guilty, he was charged in Stockton with the crime of burglarizing his father's office. His father is a prominent physician at that place. Among the things taken from Dr. Willis' office were two guns and several flasks of whisky. The fact that one of the guns taken from his office was supposed to be of the same caliber as the one with which Jones was shot, and also that the man who did the shooting had a flask of whisky, led the local police to suspect Willis of crimes committed here. He was apprehended and charged with robbing Winstead and shooting Jones.

The first thing done here by the man who committed the two above described offenses, was to hold up a boy by the name of Robert Richardson, and force the boy to drive him about the city for some time. He afterwards put the boy out of the machine and proceeded alone on his way. Upon his arrest, Robert Richardson would not identify him as the man who held him up. Jones, who was in the Sutter Hospital, said he was the man, as did Winstead. Neither the gun used nor any of the property taken from Winstead was found on Willis. Willis repeatedly denied that he had anything to do with the commission of either offense, and never made any confession other than that implied by his plea of guilty.

At the time of his arraignment before Hon. J. F. Pullen he was represented by Mr. Coale, an attorney of Stockton, engaged by Dr. Willis, the father of the defendant. Dr. Willis was also present at the time of the arraignment. To his attorney and his father he maintained his innocence, but stated that he was going to enter a plea of guilty, and this he did.

Inasmuch as it is quite a common practice for defendants charged with crime to deny the fact right up to the time of entering a plea of guilty, no particular significance was attached by me to the denial by Willis."

The case, as narrated up to this point, would seem to have been a very ordinary one. The further facts that Willis was a confirmed drug addict and that he had twice before been convicted of felonies committed in the state of Washington, as well as facts leading to the recent charge of burglary in Stockton, would have marked him as one who might have committed these Sacramento crimes, even had he not pleaded guilty to their commission. Yet it is now clearly evident, despite his plea of guilty and his identification by the two victims, that he was absolutely innocent of the crimes, that he knew nothing at all concerning them, and that they were committed by another whom he did not know and of whom he had never heard.

This plea of guilty on the part of Willis to crimes which he could not have committed, together with a confession in another state made by the real perpetrator of the crimes—a confession prompted solely by a guilty conscience, and with no knowledge that another was being punished in his stead, presents one of the strangest stories in all criminal annals. It has appeared to me so unusual that I have given a very careful study to the transcripts and all the documents bearing upon the case, and especially to the very remarkable and detailed confession of the one who has since been convicted and sentenced for these crimes to which Willis had previously pleaded guilty.

At almost the very date of the conviction and sentencing of Willis, a youth of 23, named Vincent Bohac, walked into a police station of Detroit, Michigan, and stated that he had shot a man the month before in Sacramento, California; that he did not know whether the man had died or not, but that he wanted to go back and pay the penalty, whatever it might be. The Sacramento authorities were informed of the incident and Bohac was sent for and brought to California, arriving in Sacramento on May 7.

On the day of his arrival a very lengthy statement or confession was made in the office of the district attorney. In this confession Bohac told how he had left the east about the middle of February of this year in company with another boy; how various holdups were committed in several states until he reached Salt Lake, where he parted from his companion; how he had been drinking very heavily for about a month, and how his protracted spree culminated in the Sacramento crimes. He then told how he had gone east, had visited his mother and brothers, and had decided to ease his conscience by giving himself up.

Bohac then went out with the Sacramento officers and showed them where he had hidden his pistol and some of his stolen loot, all being found where he indicated. This, and other circumstances surrounding the case, definitely fixed the guilt upon him rather than upon Willis. Both Winstead and Jones agreed that they had been mistaken in their former identification of Willis, and that Bohac, who was of the same general appearance as Willis, was really the man who had committed the crimes.

On May 21, 1927, Vincent Bohac pleaded guilty to a charge of assault with intent to commit murder and was sentenced by Hon. J. F. Pullen, judge of the superior court of Sacramento County, to the State Prison at San Quentin for an indeterminate term of from one to fourteen years. Two days later, on May 23, 1927, in another department of the superior court of Sacramento County, before Hon. J. R. Hughes, Bohac entered a plea of guilty to a charge of robbery, determined to be first degree, and was sentenced to the State Prison at San Quentin for an indeterminate term of from five years to life.

Accordingly Bohac is now serving sentence for the same offenses to which Willis had previously pleaded guilty, and for which he is now serving similar sentences. In the continuation of his letter from which I have already partially quoted, District Attorney McAllister discusses the matter as follows:

"Willis is a drug addict, one of the worst I have ever seen. This, coupled with the fact that he had been convicted of crime twice before, and the further fact that there was a charge of burglary pending against him at Stockton, no doubt prompted him to enter a plea of guilty and get it over with. He, no doubt, figured that if he was not convicted of the charges here that he probably would be on the charge at Stockton. Regardless of what the reasons were, which prompted him to plead guilty, the fact remains that he was innocent of the crimes for which he was sentenced.

After he was sentenced, one Vincent Bohac voluntarily surrendered himself to the police at Detroit, Michigan, and confessed that he had committed the crimes. Upon his return here a thorough investigation was made by the police department and my office to determine which one was guilty.

Our investigation showed beyond any question of a doubt that Bohac was the man who had committed the crimes. This I submit is conclusively shown by the transcripts submitted with the formal application, and will not be repeated here. Bohac, being a stranger in Sacramento prior to the time of the commission of the offenses, took us to the place where he had hidden the gun and also different articles which had been taken from Winstead. In addition to this, he repeated certain parts of the conversations he had had with Winstead and Jones, which had not been previously testified to by anyone, and which would have been impossible for anyone else to know. The boy, Robert Richardson, immediately and positively identified him as the man who had taken his car.

It would be impossible to give you in detail the different steps taken by us in this case to determine the true facts, but I submit that the record filed with the formal application conclusively shows that Vincent Bohac is the man who is guilty. His confession has been proved in every particular, and there is absolutely no chance for a mistake.

"I submit that a thorough study of the record filed in support of the formal application can not fail to convince you that Willis is innocent of the crimes for which he was sentenced, regardless of the motives which may have prompted him to plead guilty.

As a law enforcement officer, I consider it as much my duty to see that justice is done to a man who is wrongfully imprisoned, as it is to prosecute those guilty of committing crimes."

Inasmuch as Willis had been convicted of previous crimes, before any pardon could issue it was necessary that such pardon should be recommended by the State Supreme Court. I am in receipt of the following recommendation from a majority of the members of the court:

"An application for executive clemency has been presented to this court by Neil R. McAllister, Esq., district attorney of the county of Sacramento, on behalf of James S. Willis, sentenced to the State Prison at San Quentin, and now confined as a prisoner therein, after a plea of 'guilty' to the charge of robbery and assault with intent to commit murder, and assault with a deadly weapon with intent to commit murder, committed in the county of Sacramento on the 19th day of March, 1927.

It now appears from the averments of the application, that, subsequent to the above events, it has been determined that it was not the prisoner, James S. Willis, but one Vincent Bohac who committed the crimes for which Willis is now serving sentence.

We have examined the petition of the district attorney in behalf of said Willis, and the reporter's transcript of the proceedings had, and other matters submitted to this court for its consideration, and are satisfied from such record that the action of the district attorney in asking executive clemency at your hands in behalf of said Willis is fully justified.

Inasmuch as it appears that James S. Willis has standing against him the record of two prior convictions on felony charges in the state of Washington, and it is necessary that you have the recommendation of a majority of the justices of the Supreme Court of the State of California before you may act in this case, the undersigned justices of the Supreme Court, being all those present in the State, hereby join in recommending that due consideration be given by you to the application in behalf of said James S. Willis, and that you extend to him such executive clemency as in your judgment the case warrants.

WILLIAM H. WASTE, Chief Justice.

EMMET SEAWELL,

JOHN W. SHENK,

JESSE W. CURTIS,

JOHN W. PRESTON,

W. H. LANGDON,

Associate Justices.

In the light of the foregoing, having carefully read Bohac's confession and the transcript of the proceedings in his case, as well as that of Willis, I am convinced that the former is guilty and the latter innocent of the two crimes for which both are now serving sentence. The finding of the police officers, in the exact spots he had previously described in his confession, together with his recollection of various fragments of conversation and incidents which occurred during his ride about the city with Richardson and the holdups of Winstead and Jones, corroborated by these three, is conclusive. Moreover, the identification by these same three witnesses of Willis as the man who committed these crimes was unsatisfactory, particularly so with reference to Richardson, who was never certain, and Jones, then in the hospital. Their subsequent identification of Bohac was positive and complete.

Willis, realizing that, in general, he answered the description of the man who committed the offenses charged against him, confronted with his previous criminal record, faced with a burglary charge pending against him in Stockton, and being unable to satisfactorily account for his whereabouts, evidently pleaded guilty in the hope of obtaining some consideration, although maintaining his innocence at all times to his father, his attorney, and the prosecuting and investigating officers.

It is to be hoped that as a result of this case, both of these young men may be rehabilitated and restored to useful citizenship. I am told that Willis, through the restraints of prison life, is in much better physical condition than when he had ready access to narcotics, and I also understand that his father, who is a well-known and respected physician, proposes to place him in some institution where a permanent cure from his unfortunate habits may finally be effected. As to Bohac, despite his early experience in crime, there seems to be sufficient good in him to warrant the belief that when the Prison Board ultimately grants him a possible parole he will have expiated his misdeeds just as he had planned, and will thereafter live such a life as shows that he has profited by this severe but necessary lesson. Just at present, however, Bohac is in prison as the one but unquestionably responsible for these particular crimes, while Willis, also in prison, unquestionably did not commit them.

Now, therefore, I, C. C. Young, Governor of the State of California, do hereby pardon James S. Willis of the crimes of robbery, first degree, and assault with intent to commit murder.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State of California to be affixed this eighteenth day of August, 1927.

COMMUTATION.

I have before me the case of Joseph Sandoval, who, on August 13, 1926, was found guilty of murder in the first degree by a jury in the superior court of Ventura County, and who, on August 16 following, was sentenced to death by Judge Merle J. Rogers of that court. A motion for new trial was subsequently denied, and the case was appealed to the Supreme Court, which, on March 29, 1927, affirmed the judgment of the trial court. He was received at San Quentin on August 25, 1926, and given number 42586.

Within the present month I have received a petition for executive clemency in this case, and have been giving to it very careful consideration. I have studied the transcripts, both of the preliminary examination and of the trial in the superior court. I have read the charge to the jury, the transcript on appeal, the decision of the Supreme Court, and all the other documents bearing upon the case. I have also given careful consideration to such letters, telegrams, and the like as are pertinent, discarding such as come from those who are apparently merely actuated by natural sympathy for a condemned man, but who obviously know nothing regarding this particular case.

As a result of these investigations I am constrained to commute the sentence of Joseph Sandoval from the death penalty to life imprisonment. In doing this I am acceding to the earnest solicitation of most of those who had to do with the original conviction. By this I refer to the judge who tried the case, to eleven of the twelve jurors (the twelfth having moved away), to the sheriff of the county and his deputies, to the chief of police of the city, to the committing magistrate, to the clerk of the court, to various county officials, members of the bar, and other officials. Every one of these has entered the most urgent plea that consideration of the sentence be granted.

I feel that only under the most extraordinary circumstances is a governor justified in modifying the verdicts of our courts by executive clemency. Practically every case brought to him will be one which afflicts its holder severely, as far as the individual prisoner is concerned, for almost no man being so unacquainted that he has not some traits which appeal to sympathy and fellow feeling. However, a governor has the welfare of the whole state to consider. A handful of law-abiding citizens who must be protected by insisting into the hearts of potential malefactors a wholesome respect for law, and can not permit sympathy for the moment to outweigh regard for the state's welfare.

Accordingly, it has been my task to determine what there is about the case of Sandoval which has caused practically everyone connected with his conviction to unite in a plea for clemency, and render his case different from the large majority of cases in which the original verdict must be allowed to stand.

Joseph Sandoval is about 47 years of age, of Mexican parentage, but born in Ventura County, where he has resided all his life. He is a man of no unusual advantages, having gone to work at eight or nine years of age after finishing the second grade of school, but he has taught himself hardy to read and write both in English and Spanish. He has always been a common day laborer, but appears to be regarded in the county as hard working, trustworthy, honest and dependable. A prominent attorney of Ventura writes concerning him as follows:

"The defendant has resided virtually all his life in this county. He is well known to many of the old timers, and has enjoyed the reputation of being a steady, thoroughly dependable man, much more capable than the average laborer, polite, courteous, and considerate."

For some years prior to his arrest, Sandoval had been living with a Mexican woman, Julia Lopez, who was his "common-law wife." I am told that this relationship is quite frequent among Mexicans in that part of the State, and is entered into in many instances with the promissory of a legal wedding, as though joined by the law or the church. He was bringing up two children, one, his own by a former marriage, three older children of his common-law wife and one—a baby of two—the child of this later union.

It appears that this woman had become enamoured of a Filipino, a bootlegger and owner of a still in the neighborhood, and this intimacy led to quarrels between herself and Sandoval. On Sunday, June 27, 1926, Sandoval had been drinking rather heavily with a companion. After supper of that day he was alone in the house with Julia Lopez. Her brother, Jose Lopez, who was working in the back yard, heard a sound of quarreling, and coming in found the two engaged in a struggle. During this struggle the woman was shot three times and died next morning in the county hospital. Sandoval persists that his mind was a blank from supper time until he found himself in jail, although he admits that he probably did the shooting, and in fact admitted it to the officers on being arrested.

The trial was a very prompt and brief one. Sandoval, was utterly without funds, and the judge appointed as his attorney a young lawyer with no experience in criminal practice, and who ten a dozen years after his graduation had followed the occupation of farming rather than that of law. The result was a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree without fixing the penalty, which gave the judge no other alternative than to pronounce a sentence of death. A motion for a new trial was denied, the case was appealed to the Supreme Court, and the verdict was sustained as a matter of course on the basis of the evidence adduced in the trial court. In fact, the attorney for the defense has agreed that "under the rules which bind the Supreme Court of this State, that body could hardly have reversed this case."

After the trial, certain facts were brought out of which the jury had no knowledge in arriving at their verdict. It was shown, for instance, that Sandoval had intended from the first to plead guilty and to throw himself on the mercy of the court without the holding of any trial. He had gone to the court room with that intention, when the judge, without consulting Sandoval's desires, appointed counsel for the defense, and this counsel, in turn, apparently against the wishes of the defendant, entered a plea of not guilty, and put the case to trial. Concerning this, Honorable Edward Henderson, now superior judge of Ventura County, and district attorney at the time of the trial, writes to me as follows under date of September 13th:

"It has always been the custom in the superior court of this county to impose a life sentence upon a defendant pleading guilty to murder in the first degree. It is said that the defendant, Sandoval, so desired to plead, but neither he, nor his attorneys, communicated this fact either to the court or to any officer. Undoubtedly, if this had been done, he would have been treated in a manner similar to those who have heretofore entered pleas of guilty to like information."

Also Honorable Merle J. Rogers, who was the judge at the time of the trial, writes to me on September 16th:

"Supplementing my letter of the fourteenth instant, I will say that if Sandoval had pleaded guilty I am quite sure that as judge of the superior court I would have imposed a judgment of life imprisonment. Personally I believe that the ends of justice will be now subserved if executive clemency is extended and life imprisonment imposed under all the circumstances of this case."

That the defendant had no other thought than to plead guilty is now shown by county and court officials to whom he freely talked before the trial, although it was not brought out at the trial itself. For instance, I have just received the following telegram from Mr. L. C. Hallowell, county clerk of Ventura County:

"At the time Sandoval was in court for arraignment on a charge of murder, it was his desire that he be permitted to plead guilty. After his conviction many of the jurors told me personally that had they known this, their verdict would have been with the recommendation for life imprisonment. I have known Sandoval for a great many years and know he is not a criminal at heart; on the contrary he has a most lovable disposition. Commute this man's sentence is my earnest plea."

F. A. Shipley, foreman of the jury which brought in the verdict, has recently wired me as follows:

"I was a member of the jury in the case of Joe Sandoval, and was the foreman of the jury. I believe the verdict of the jury should be set aside and the sentence commuted to life imprisonment. I have learned that there was other evidence which was not adduced at the trial. An investigation of this evidence makes me sincerely believe he should not be hung. I also know he wanted to plead guilty to the charge and that it was not his intention to stand trial. I believe you should consider these matters, and I earnestly request that you commute his sentence to life imprisonment and stop the execution which is set for next Friday."

Ten other jurors have wired similar pleas, some of them at greater length and even more forcibly. The messages are all different, however, and show that they were independently prepared. I am told that the twelfth juror has moved out of the county and that his whereabouts are unknown.

Yesterday I received a telegram from David J. Reese, for many years a citizen of Ventura and editor of the Ventura Free Press, and for the past ten years head of the Civil Service Commission of California. This telegram from Mr. Reese reads as follows:

"Feeling is general here that Joe Sandoval should not hang. This is not mere sentiment for a condemned man, but a genuine disapproval of a verdict that could bring nothing else but a death sentence. * * * I am unalterably opposed to intervention in such cases, but in this particular case I appeal to you for clemency. I fully believe that justice would be had and the law satisfied if Sandoval gets life imprisonment."

Jose Lopez, brother of the murdered woman and chief witness for the prosecution, has sent me the following letter:

"I am Jose Lopez. I am the brother of Julia Lopez. Julia Lopez was the woman slain by Jose Sandoval, and for which slaying Sandoval is now under sentence of death.

Preceding the quarrel which resulted in the shooting, Sandoval had treated my sister as his wife, and had treated her very well. Before the shooting my sister informed Sandoval that she wanted him to leave the house as she was through with him. Sandoval replied that it was his house and that she would be the one to leave, not him. She insisted that he should leave as she was tired of him, and that was the cause of the quarrel which resulted in the shooting. I have given this matter much thought. I am willing to have Sandoval receive life imprisonment rather than the death penalty. I ask you to grant his application for commutation of sentence."

A second letter from Judge Rogers, who presided at the trial as well as letters from the chief of police of Ventura, from the deputy sheriff who made the arrest, from the auditor and recorder of the county, and from scores of business and professional men of Ventura, all speak in the highest terms of Sandoval's character and unblemished reputation before this trouble and all urge that the circumstances of the case warrant executive clemency. But the most enlightening letter I have received comes from Sheriff R. E. Clark, and from it I shall quote at length. Sheriff Clark shows that Sandoval had sought his help in straightening out the trouble with the woman he regarded as his wife, and further shows that had he, the sheriff, been able to keep an engagement he had made with Sandoval, the killing would undoubtedly not have taken place. This letter reads, in part, as follows:

"As sometimes happens, there are certain facts in the case which did not appear at the time of the trial. Had they appeared I doubt very much if the jury would have brought in a verdict without a recommendation, and possibly would not have convicted him of anything greater than manslaughter.

I earnestly believe that you should exercise your executive power in this case and commute the sentence to life imprisonment. The following are some of the facts which were not brought out at the trial which I believe you should consider:

What is not generally known is that some time prior to the crime Sandoval came to my office and advised me that a man was breaking up his home and requested the assistance of the office. Our office was not, of course, in a position to render any assistance upon that matter, but an investigation of the character of the man of whom he had made complaint showed that he was running a still and engaging in the manufacture of bootleg liquor. Our investigation having led to securing sufficient evidence to warrant a conviction, we arrested him, catching him in the act with a still and mash and he was sentenced to the county jail.

It thereafter turned out that the woman who was living with Sandoval as his wife had secured a pass from my office and was visiting this man in jail. When this matter was brought to my attention I immediately revoked the pass.

Thereupon Sandoval came to me and advised me that his wife had come to the conclusion he had been instrumental in having the pass revoked and in furnishing information which led to the arrest of this man. I found from an investigation that she was exceedingly bitter in her charges against him and that she and her brother were making of the matter an occasion for almost continual quarreling.

After talking with Sandoval I thought that I could perhaps straighten out the situation and made an arrangement with him by which he would be present at his home on a certain night when his wife would be there and I would come down and try and straighten things out. The night appointed was the night when the murder was committed. Sandoval was there waiting for me. His wife and her brother were also there. I was intending to make a trip to the house when I received an emergency call from the east end of the county and had to drop everything and go out there. When I returned I found that the Sandoval murder had been committed in the meantime.

Joe Sandoval has lived all of his life in this community. He bears an excellent reputation and has many friends. He has never been a drinking man, but under the strain of his domestic difficulties he had indulged in some drinking on the night of the shooting. From what I know of the case, however, I have every reason to believe that his wife was the aggressor, and the continued aggressor in whatever argument or quarrel preceded the shooting. I also believe that had I been present as Sandoval expected the matter would have been fixed up and there never would have been any killing.

All in all, it is one of those cases where a man's passions were inflamed by continued quarreling, domestic troubles and bad whiskey. Sandoval is not of the criminal type, has been a steady, law-abiding character, and I believe that it would be a miscarriage of justice to allow the death sentence to be carried out.

My office talked with Sandoval immediately following the crime and Sandoval intended to and had arrangements completed to plead guilty and place himself upon the mercy of the court, in which event I had no doubt that he would have received a life imprisonment. However, he was confused by the procedure in the court room and mistakenly understood that the court would require an attorney to present his plea, and the court appointed Pearce & Gould. Tom Gould did the active representation at the time of presenting the plea, and instructed the defendant to enter a plea of not guilty 'for the present.'

I feel that it is imperative that you should know the facts of this case which did not appear in evidence and the true situation concerning Joe Sandoval. I have no hesitancy whatever, as the sheriff of this county, in asking you to commute the sentence to life imprisonment, and I feel that infinitely more harm than good would be done from allowing the sentence of death to be carried out."

This letter from Sheriff Clark throws such a new light upon the case that I can not help feeling the hanging of Joseph Sandoval would be a blot upon the good name of California. I am fully aware of the fact that it would be much easier, and possibly would be regarded with much more favor, if I could let the law take its course and should refuse to intervene. In most cases this would be my attitude, for it is my strongest desire to help build up a wholesome respect for law. In this case, however, the poverty and helplessness of the man, and his bewilderment at the trial, have an irresistible appeal.

Nevertheless, the crime which Sandoval committed must not be condoned and must be punished. Those connected with the trial, however, now seem to question whether the verdict should have been first degree murder, especially when carrying the death penalty. It takes a unanimous jury vote to fix the penalty of death, but although this unanimous vote was cast at the trial, these same jurors now, by another practically unanimous vote, urge upon me that their former action was a mistaken one, and ask that the penalty be modified.

It has even been suggested that this particular killing was typically a second degree murder and, in fact, that it does not go far beyond the limits of "voluntary manslaughter," which the code defines as "the unlawful killing of a human being, without malice, upon a sudden quarrel or heat of passion," for neither of which latter crimes can a court or jury impose the death penalty.

With these suggestions, I can not fully agree. It was no light thing for Joseph Sandoval to have snuffed out a human life, especially the life of the one to whom he considered himself married, and who was the mother of his child. First degree murder, in law, has a very wide latitude, and does not require the act to be necessarily the result of any long and deliberate premeditation. While the jury, at the time of the trial, apparently believed that there was sufficient evidence of premeditation to justify a verdict of first degree murder, they seem to be now of a contrary opinion and the transcript discloses but little, if any, evidence tending to show the premeditation ordinarily found in a case of first degree murder. I am satisfied, therefore, with the facts as they are now known, I have no other alternative than to reduce the penalty to life imprisonment.

Now, therefore, I, C. C. Young, Governor of the State of California, do hereby commute the sentence of death imposed upon Joseph Sandoval in the superior court of the State of California in and for the county of Ventura, to confinement in the State prison for life.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State of California to be affixed this twenty-second day of September, 1927.

C. C. YOUNG, Governor.

Attest: FRANK C. JORDAN, Secretary of State.

REPRIEVE.

In order that an investigation may be made of representations submitted to me in behalf of the condemned man, I hereby reprieve George Watters, under sentence to be hanged in the State Prison at San Quentin on the twentieth day of January, 1928, until and to Friday, February 3, 1928.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State of California to be affixed this nineteenth day of January, 1928.

C. C. YOUNG, Governor.

Attest: FRANK C. JORDAN, Secretary of State.

By FRANK H. CORY, Deputy.

REPRIEVE.

Since the reprieve of George Watters on January 19, 1928, for the purpose of investigating representations submitted to me in behalf of the condemned man, the investigation has led into six different counties of the State and is not yet concluded.

While ordinarily extensive investigations of this nature will not be undertaken, since they have begun, I feel that they should be carried on to a conclusion in this instance.

Therefore, in order that a further investigation be made of representations submitted in his behalf, I do hereby reprieve George Watters under sentence to be hanged in the State Prison at San Quentin on the third day of February, 1928, until and to Friday, February 24, 1928.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State of California to be affixed this first day of February, 1928.

[SEAL]

C. C. YOUNG, Governor.

Attest: FRANK C. JORDAN, Secretary of State.

REPRIEVE.

I am today granting one week additional reprieve to George Watters, the date of whose present reprieve expires this coming Friday, February 24th. It is with considerable reluctance that I am again delaying my decision in this case, for I realize fully the value of prompt and decisive action in a matter of this kind.

However, the investigations which were set in motion as a result of the first reprieve have developed such a mass of apparently conflicting results that the only safe course would be to subject them to a very careful analysis. Circumstances beyond my control have delayed my receipt of some of the reports which will be necessary in reaching an ultimate conclusion.

I now find that certain persons whom I wish to see will be unavailable before Thursday, the 23d, and my final balancing of facts which have been disclosed would have to wait until after that time, and possibly might not be concluded until almost the very hour fixed for the execution of the prescribed penalty. Thus, I am sure, would be indefensible, and must be avoided at all hazards.

Accordingly, I feel impelled to grant a reprieve in this case for one more week, or until Friday, March second.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and seal of the Great Seal of the State of California to be affixed this twenty first day of February, 1928.

COMMUTATION.

During the past six weeks I have been carefully considering an appeal for executive clemency in behalf of George Watters. This man, a negro, was convicted of murder of the first degree by a jury in the superior court of Sacramento County, and, on September 21, 1926, was sentenced to be hanged. Watters appealed from the judgment of conviction and from the order denying a new trial. In a decision which was concurred in by all the justices, the Supreme Court, on September 22, 1927, affirmed the judgment and order. Watters was resentenced and taken to San Quentin and given number 12672. His execution was set for January 20, 1928.

Three times I have granted a reprieve, in order that new evidence submitted to me might be thoroughly investigated. The first reprieve on January 19, 1928, was for two weeks, the second on February 2, 1928, for three weeks, and the third on February 21, 1928, for one week, thus postponing the day of execution until March 2, 1928.

The case is wholly without precedent in American jurisprudence owing to the fact no trace of the body of the alleged deceased has ever been found, and, except for the testimony of a nine year old girl, no evidence whatever of a homicide was adduced.

Never before in the history of California has the death penalty been imposed for the murder of a human being without production of the body of the victim. Only twice before in this State has a verdict of guilty been rendered and in both instances the defendants were sentenced to life imprisonment. Less than a dozen such cases are reported in all the states of the Union, and in none of these so far as the reported cases disclosed, did a child testify.

While I am fully aware that the law permits a conviction without production of the body of the victim, and while I am entirely mindful of the distinction between the "body of the deceased" and "body or substance of the crime," corpus delicti, I am also fully sensible that many eminent jurists and distinguished lawyers of long and varied experience, while believers in capital punishment, are strongly of the opinion that the extreme penalty should not be imposed in such cases. Texas, and possibly other states, by statute provide that no conviction may be had without production of the body.

I also take cognizance that some of them, and many other members of the bench and bar, feel as strongly against the death penalty where the verdict is based entirely upon the jury's belief in the testimony of a child. Such opinions are by no means confined to the legal profession and, though not a lawyer myself, I am rather inclined to the belief that the law might well be amended in either or both respects to accord with these views.

However, as long as the law remains as it is, and does not require either the production of the body of the deceased, or the corroboration of a child's testimony to the fact of homicide, it is my duty to sustain the jury's verdict in such cases and to see that the sentence of the court is executed, unless, first, new evidence is discovered that raises an honest doubt as to whether a murder has been committed or that the condemned man committed it; or, second, the credibility of the child is doubtful; or, third, due to some other factor, a miscarriage of justice is likely to result.

Two or three days before the date set for the execution the attorney for the defense came to me asking commutation, at the same time admitting that no new evidence of any kind had been found, and that nothing was before me then which was not before the jury at the trial. On this showing I refused to interfere, since I have always held that a jury and a judge at the actual trial are in a far better position to weigh evidence than is a governor months or years after from a mere reading of the transcript.

The next day there appeared Mr. J. J. Henderson, who at the time of the trial was district attorney of Sacramento County, and who as such prosecuted the case. He suggested that he thought I might easily be justified in commuting the sentence of Watters, owing to the fact that at his trial he was very inadequately defended, and that the verdict carrying a death penalty astonished everyone, including the prosecution itself. Mr. Henderson assured me, however, that he still believed the defendant guilty; and I again refused to interfere, for the reason that weakness of defense counsel at a trial could not properly be taken into account unless by reason thereof the defendant had been deprived of a fair and impartial trial—and in this case the Supreme Court has decided that the trial was fair.

The mere fact that the Supreme Court sustains a verdict, however, does not necessarily imply that there may not be grounds for clemency on the part of a governor. In this, as in many other cases, the members of the Supreme Court had no other alternative. Under the law they must not perform the jury's function of weighing the evidence and passing upon the credibility of the witnesses. A governor, on the other hand, does not occupy the same position in relation to the trial as that of the Supreme Court. In his capacity as chief executive he must, to some extent, exercise the prerogatives of both court and jury in the administration of law and justice under the constitution. In a word, the functions of a governor and the Supreme Court in considering a case are essentially different.

Up to the very day before the date set for Watters' execution not a scintilla of new evidence had been presented to me, and, to quote from the decision of the Supreme Court, "the story which the child told of the homicide and of the actions and conduct of the defendant in disposing of his wife's dead body seemed consistent in its every detail." I purposely delayed a decision until the last moment in the expectation that, if any new evidence were uncovered, however slight, it would probably be sufficient, in view of the unprecedented circumstances, to warrant a stay of execution pending investigation. Finally, no new evidence having appeared, I gave to the afternoon papers on January 19th a statement declining to intervene. Later that same afternoon a hitherto unheard-of witness, Nathan Goldfaden, proprietor of the Liberal Junk and Bottle Yard in Oak Park, appeared with a story, which, if true, tended to corroborate Watters' story of his wife's disappearance.

The new witness, Nathan Goldfaden, proved to be a junk dealer, who asserted that at least twice before the disappearance of Mrs. Watters she had told him that the family was intending to move to San Diego, and that on a third visit to the house the nine-year-old daughter, Genevieve, had told him that her mother had gone there. Goldfaden insisted that he had not realized the importance of this testimony at the time of the trial, and was reminded of it only when he read in the papers that Watters was to be hanged the next day. This statement of Goldfaden, had it been submitted to the jury and believed by them, would have negated the theory of the prosecution that Watters had shown consciousness of guilt through a precipitate flight from Sacramento. It also corroborated the story which Watters had told as to his wife's disappearance—namely, that he had given her $50 and a railroad ticket to go to his mother in San Diego. For these reasons, the production of this new witness warranted an investigation, which I accordingly began immediately after granting my first reprieve.

Before I follow the course of this investigation and arrive at the conclusions reached as a result, it is pertinent at this point to set forth briefly the undisputed facts. On January 27, 1926, and for some time prior thereto, George Watters lived with his three children, Genevieve, aged 9; George, aged 7, and Nadine, aged 3, and their mother, Myrtle, nee Allaman, in a one-story, four-room frame bungalow at 3030 First avenue, in the city of Sacramento. The whole family slept in the back room adjoining the kitchen. The murder of Myrtle Watters occurred on the morning of January 28th, around 7 o'clock, according to the story told by Genevieve for the first time on May 20th in San Diego, nearly four months later. Watters and the three children left Sacramento at 4.30 p.m., February 1, 1926, arriving in San Diego about noon the following day. January 28, 29, 30, 31 and February 1 Watters spent in Sacramento disposing of his furniture and household effects and making arrangements to move. The nights of the first three days were spent at 3030 First avenue, the fourth night at a neighbor's home, and the fifth on the train.

Genevieve testified that her father shot her mother while she and her mother were dressing and the other two children slept. Watters was undressed and in bed when he fired the shot. Words had passed between father and mother, but no violent quarreling immediately preceded the killing. Shortly afterward, according to Genevieve, he carried the body into one of the front rooms, locking the door between himself and the children. She heard sounds of chopping, sawing and cutting emanating from the front room during the day, and her father passed in and out. Finally he brought out a basin containing bloody water, and some knives, including a meat cleaver, which were cleaned and put away. About 6 o'clock that evening she saw him carry two heavy sacks out doors past the kitchen window. She and the other two children were kept in the kitchen and bedroom all day and were never permitted to go outside or to enter the front, or "spare" room. There are other details testified to by Genevieve which I do not mention here for the reason that they are contradicted by other statements made by her on various other occasions.

Except for the finding of knives and a cleaver in Watters' trunk in San Diego, and a gun such as Genevieve states was used to fire the fatal shot, there is no corroboration whatever of Genevieve's testimony. At the trial not a witness was called in the defendant's behalf, though it later appeared that numerous character witnesses would have been glad to testify. Watters was not put on the stand in his own defense, his counsel apparently expecting a favorable verdict on the theory that a murder could not be proved where the body of the victim had not been found. The defense rested solely upon the statement Watters made to officers in San Diego at the time of his arrest, which statement was read in evidence by the prosecution. While some of the details of this statement are contradictory, improbable, and obviously false, none amount to admissions of guilt, and he asserted his innocence throughout.

The case against Watters, aside from Genevieve's testimony, consists of three factors—the disappearance of his wife, his hurried departure for San Diego, and his obviously false statements. No suggestion is made by any one as to why he should have sought the life of Myrtle Watters. Any adequate motive for such a brutal murder as Genevieve describes is as much shrouded in mystery as is the whereabouts of Myrtle or of her mortal remains.

Watters told the arresting officers that his wife had left Sacramento on the afternoon of January 28th for San Diego. His mother, Mrs. Morgan, and Dorothy, a daughter by a former wife, had moved to San Diego some six months prior to that date. Dorothy, a girl of 19 years, had become involved in a love affair with some negro in San Diego, and had left Mr. Morgan alone after robbing her of a sum of money. Mrs. Morgan had written of this state of affairs, Watters said, and he had sent Myrtle to San Diego ahead of him and the children in order that she might keep his aged mother company while he disposed of their belongings in Sacramento. It appears that Dorothy had returned to Mrs. Morgan's house in San Diego a few hours prior to Watters' arrival from Sacramento with the three children. According to Watters, and according also to Mrs. Morgan and Dorothy, who were not placed on the witness stand, Watters' first words upon entering the house in San Diego were, "Where is Myrtle?"

Both Genevieve and her father substantiated the milk dealer's statement to a sufficient extent to render it probable that he did visit the Watters home just before the family removed to San Diego. The publicity attendant upon the Goldfisher statement opened up certain other sources of information both favorable and unfavorable to Watters. For instance, a sister of Myrtle wrote to me from Valhalla, saying that she had received letters from her sister shortly before her disappearance, in which no mention of an intended removal to San Diego was made. The Los Angeles police located a red-cap porter, Lee Baker, who could not be found at the time of the trial, and obtained from him a statement that he had seen the Watters family take the train for San Diego, but that he knew nothing of an earlier departure of the wife.

Many new sources of possible information were then disclosed and a more intensive investigation had to be pursued. A former husband of Myrtle Watters, a convict named Jones, was found in Folsom prison. A brother, Charles Allmon, by name, was located in San Quentin. Another brother, Lehard Allmon, was shown to have been killed in an attempted prison break from Folsom, where he had been sent for murdering his own father. Watters' first wife, Nellie Johnson Petersen, who had also disappeared and was not heard of for many years, was found in Oakland in very miserable circumstances. Thus it developed that almost all the family had borne a very unsavory reputation. From these relatives, however, and from Watters' sister Ethel and others, it was learned that the wife, Myrtle, had for years been in ill health and was of an unhappy disposition, saying frequently that she "wished she were dead," "wished she could get away from it all," and other things of the same nature. At least three separate persons, one of them Dorothy, who is hostile to her father, agree on hearing her say, "I would like to walk out of this house some day and never come back again," and on another occasion that she was "so disgusted with the children she wished she could leave and get away off where she would never see them again."

I am aware that investigations of this kind can not under ordinary circumstances be undertaken by the Governor's office. However, inasmuch as in certain respects this case is without parallel in the legal annals of this county, I felt that after they had once begun they should be made as thorough as possible. To this end I have exhausted every possible source from which additional light might be obtained. These investigations were chiefly carried on by my executive secretary, Mr. Keith Carlin, and by Dr. Anita M. Mühl, M.D., head of the Division of Special Education of the State Department of Education, who has had wide experience with children, and who, it seemed to me, could get closer to the truth in questioning Genevieve Watters and her younger brother George, who was also present in the room where the murder was supposed to have occurred, than could a district attorney or any other man. As a result of these examinations the following facts have come to light.

Records of Genevieve's story have been kept as she told it on six different occasions. The first time the story was told it was under circumstances calculated to produce marked emotional excitement. She has at all times adhered to her original insistence upon the murder, although in certain important details the story has been entirely changed from time to time. On the whole Dr. Mühl is of the opinion that Genevieve believes her own story, although records are common where children of that age persistently adhere to assertions which could only be a figment of the imagination.

The case of her brother George is even a more puzzling one. I examined this boy myself and found him a very bright little fellow. Dr. Mühl reports him of more than average intelligence. At the time of the mother's disappearance George was about 7½ years old. Genevieve testified at the trial that he was in the room asleep at 7 o'clock in the morning when the shooting took place. On some occasions she has declared that he did not wake up until noon; while on other occasions she states that a few minutes after the killing her father sent the children into the kitchen, while he took the body into the spare room and dismembered it.

The boy George assured me, just as he has assured all others, that he knew nothing whatever as to these occurrences, and that he has no idea as to what has become of his mother. It is perhaps possible for a 7½-year-old boy to have slept throughout this excitement, but it seems more than strange that his sister, less than two years older, should not have waked him up when her father had removed her mother's body and locked the door; or that the children should not have discussed the subject during all that day when they were locked in together; or that a boy, 7½ years old and of more than normal intelligence, should have forgotten all about a mother's murder so soon after its occurrence.

Shortly after the first reprieve was granted to Watters, a prisoner at San Quentin named W. O. McElroy reported to the warden that he had seen and talked with Myrtle Watters in June, 1926 (her disappearance was on January 28th of that year), and that he had told his wife of this occurrence. Although statements of this kind under such circumstances are usually to be given little credence, I sent Mr. Carlin to question McElroy, who told a very plausible story.

Speaking of Myrtle Watters, McElroy said:
 "The time I saw her in Los Angeles was June, 1926."

Whereupon the following colloquy took place:

Question by Mr. Carlin: "And you state that you saw her on the Jefferson street car, going west on Jefferson street?"

Answer by McElroy: "Yes."

Q. "Was she on the car with you?"

A. "Yes sir."

Q. "Did you talk to her on the car?"

A. "Yes, I had a short conversation with her, just a few words. At the time I was crippled and taking treatment at the Pantages Hospital."

Q. "What conversation did you have with her?"

A. "Well, no more than looking at her and recognizing her. I didn't call her name at the time. She saw I was on crutches, and asked me if I wanted a seat; and I said, 'No, I hadn't far to go.' She asked if my name was McElroy, and I said, 'Yes.' And she said, 'How is Mrs. Guyton?'—that is my mother-in-law—so I says, 'This is Mrs. Watters?' and she said, 'Yes, but not Mrs. Watters any more,' and I said, 'Where is Mr. Watters?' and she said, 'He is not here.'

I at once warned the warden to censor all mail sent out by McElroy, and asked the Los Angeles police to interview the wife. To two detectives who went around to her house she was noncommunicative; but to Dr. Mühl, who also saw her on the way back from interviewing Genevieve at San Diego, she told a very positive story. Mrs. McElroy fixed the time from the fact that they had just moved into a new house, and corroborated McElroy's statement that he was undergoing hospital treatment at the time by showing hospital bills and receipts. She told Dr. Mühl that she was sick at the time, having slipped from a curb and fallen down. She continues:

"The doctor thought I had injured myself. I could hardly get up. I was in bed when Mac (McElroy) came home. He came over to ask about me. I told him I had fallen down. He said, 'Oh Little Bit, (what he called me) guess who I saw today?' I said, 'Who?' He said, 'You remember the little woman with the children who lived in Ruth's home in Monterey?' I said, 'You mean Mrs. Watters?' and he said, 'Yes.' It made me a little peeved because he talked about some other woman and her children, and I was a little irritable anyway, but I said: 'Instead of worrying about someone else's children, you should be asking me how I feel.' He just asked me how I was and then went right on to saying who he saw."

Dr. Mühl, in reporting upon the results of her investigations, writes me as follows:

"I recommend that George Watters, now in San Quentin, shall not pay the death penalty for the crime for which he was convicted—namely, the alleged murder of Myrtle Watters.

My reasons for so recommending are the following:

1. After ten days spent in thoroughly investigating this case I am not convinced that Myrtle Watters is dead.

2. During that ten-day period of investigation, I have cross-examined twenty people who are directly or indirectly connected with the case, and these cross-examinations have led me to believe that Myrtle Watters may have voluntarily disappeared because.

3. Two witnesses opposed to and one in favor of the prisoner have agreed that the first thing George Watters said when he reached San Diego was, 'Where is Myrtle?' and

4. Two witnesses for and one opposed to the prisoner are agreed that they heard her say that—

a. 'I would like to walk out of this house some day and never come back again.'

b. She was so disgusted with the children she wished she could leave and get away off where she could never see them again.

c. She wished she could die.

5. Some records show that Myrtle did neglect her children and often went off and left them unprotected even when they were very small.

6. The fact that the coat and hat of Myrtle Watters were never mentioned and never seen nor heard of by any one in the family following the disappearance is of significance. Dorothy is sure they were not in the trunk when it was unpacked in San Diego and Genevieve didn't mention them being sold or burned or disposed of in any way. * * *

7. The child on whose uncorroborated testimony the man was convicted, although of average mentality, is not a reliable witness. * * *

8. This child's six different statements are so full of discrepancies, contradictions and fabrications that no reliance should be placed on any statement she has made.

9. The fact that a certain murder at National City was heavily headlined in Sacramento papers the day following the disappearance of her mother, and that the trial was held in San Diego after they moved to San Diego and all the sordid details were aired in the San Diego papers, is of importance considering Genevieve's suggestibility, her tendency to fabricate and to dramatize.

As long as the body of Myrtle Watters has not been found and no corroborative evidence has been found to support the testimony of Genevieve Watters, whose statements can not be considered reliable I reiterate my opinion expressed in a previous report that I feel a very grave injustice will be committed if George Watters is hanged."

Judge John F. Pullen, who presided at the trial, and who has kindly assisted in the recent investigation, has sent me the following letter:

"George Watters was tried and convicted by a jury in the department of the superior court over which I preside. I heard the testimony and was convinced of his guilt.

Within the past few weeks I have discussed this case with your secretary, Mr. Carlin, have read a number of statements given by persons connected with the case, and have heard the statements given by Genevieve Watters, analyzed by Dr. Mühl.

It was largely upon the testimony of Genevieve, the nine year-old daughter of Watters, that the jury, as well as myself, were convinced of his guilt. Dr. Mühl has made a systematic analysis of the six statements made by the little girl, some before and some after the trial, and while I do not agree with all of the deductions made by Dr. Mühl, I do recognize that there are a number of serious discrepancies in the statements given by the girl when compared with her testimony at the trial.

I could refer to a number of instances, such as the position of the gun, the locking of the three children in the kitchen, the blood, water in the room, the bloody socks, the cleaning of the knives, and the position of the mother's body after being shot, etc. These might be explained by a lapse of memory and yielding of her will to that of the cross examiner, or to various other causes, but some are so startling in their differences that, where the life of a human being is at stake, considerable doubt is raised in one's mind, which causes a hesitation as to the imposition of the death penalty.

The responsibility rests upon the Chief Executive to weigh the evidence most carefully, particularly such evidence and statements as were not considered by the trial jury, and there are now before you five statements of Genevieve that were not before the trial jury, besides the statements of a younger brother, and an older half-sister.

I am still of the opinion that Watters is guilty, but in view of the conflicting statements of the little girl, I join in the petition that the death penalty be commuted to life imprisonment without parole."

I must confess that it is with extreme reluctance that I am intervening in this case. The large number of atrocious murders during the past few months, together with the apparently indefensible attitude on the part of certain juries in prescribing something less than the extreme penalty for such crimes, manifestly make it unwise for an executive to perform just now any acts of clemency which might be construed as helping to weaken the operation of the law.

Nevertheless, I find that Dr. Mühl, Mr. Carlin, officials at the prison, and others who have looked into this case are more than half convinced that George Watters is innocent of the crime of which he is charged. As for myself, I still think in all probability that he is guilty. However, all I have learned during the past six weeks convinces me that there is a very real possibility that I am mistaken, and that Myrtle Watters may be alive. I am convinced that the staunchest defender of capital punishment would agree that nothing could have a worse public effect than the hanging of a supposed murderer and the subsequent reappearance of his alleged victim. Hence my conclusion that a commutation should be granted.

In reaching this conclusion I have not been moved by any arguments of defense counsel, for I have not seen him since my first refusal to commute the sentence. I have not been swayed by any public clamor, for outside of Sacramento, where the case was tried, there is a very marked public apathy regarding it. I have received few appeals except from sources such as former employers of Watters, who believed him incapable of the crime, and others who obviously knew little as to the facts of the case. George Watters is penniless and is without friends. Possibly there has never been a convicted murderer whose execution would cause less public notice.

However, after studying the conflicting and contradictory statements of a year-old Genevieve in the light of what other imaginative children of that age frequently do and say; after reflecting on the complete lack of knowledge of 7-year-old George, who was also in the room when the shooting is supposed to have occurred; after reading the statement of Mrs. McElroy confirming her husband's assertion of having seen Mrs. Watters months after her disappearance; after considering the possibilities of her having left home and disappeared from sight just as numberless other men and women have done in the past, I can not bring myself to let George Watters hang as long as there is a chance that his wife is yet alive.

This doubt, however, is by no means sufficient ever to grant Watters his freedom provided he committed a dastardly murder of this kind. While the evidence of guilt is sufficiently convincing to warrant life imprisonment, I do not feel that it is strong enough to justify a penalty of death. Accordingly, I am doing as I have done in one similar case, and am commuting his death sentence to life imprisonment without possibility of parole. If he is guilty, even this punishment is not adequate as a penalty for his crime. Hanging would be more fitting, but hanging is unthinkable when any reasonable possibility exists that Myrtle Watters might be found alive, and thus prove him innocent. If this ever occurs, under the commutation I am giving, a full pardon would then not come too late.

Now, therefore, I, C. C. Young, Governor of the State of California, do hereby commute the sentence of death imposed upon George Watters in the superior court of the State of California, in and for the county of Sacramento, upon condition that he be imprisoned during the term of his natural life in the State Prison at San Quentin, without parole.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State of California to be affixed this twenty-eighth day of February, 1928.

PARDON.

Lucien Ducuing was convicted of the crime of obtaining money under false pretenses, a felony, and was sentenced on the 23d day of July, 1924, by the superior court in and for the county of Sonoma, Honorable Ross Campbell, judge, presiding, to be imprisoned in the State Prison at San Quentin for the term prescribed by law. He was received at San Quentin on the 2d day of August, 1924, and given number 39750. Thereafter, by order of the State Board of Prison Directors, his term of imprisonment was duly fixed and determined at fifteen months, seven days; and, pursuant to said order, with the proper deduction for good time credits, he was duly discharged on the 23d day of August, 1925.

From the information at hand I am strongly impressed by a feeling that this man may not have been guilty of the crime of which he was convicted. The written statements of the Honorable Ross Campbell, presiding judge at the trial, and of Clarendon W. Anderson, former deputy district attorney of Sonoma County, who conducted the prosecution, appear to be of particular significance. Their statements involve a detailed review of the facts established at the trial and subsequently discovered, all of which I have carefully examined. Had these facts, some of which appear to have been known to Ducuing's counsel, been presented to the court and jury at the time of the trial in an intelligent and orderly manner, the result would in all likelihood have been a verdict of acquittal. Moreover, the misconduct of Ducuing's attorney is not alone predicated on what would appear to be a suppression of evidence, but also upon the additional facts that after the rendition of the verdict of guilty, the said attorney neither followed up motions for probation or a new trial, nor sought to take or perfect an appeal.

Deputy District Attorney Anderson writes in part as follows:

"Ducuing was tried and convicted upon a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses from one Thomsen. The pretense charged was that Ducuing sold to Thomsen fifteen acres of land situate in Sonoma County for the price of $6,000.00, Ducuing stating that there was only a $2,500.00 mortgage against this property in favor of the Bank of Italy; whereas, in fact, there was in addition to said mortgage of $2,500, a second mortgage of $2,000.00 against this land in favor of one Rosenberg.

It seems to me that the principal question in the case was whether or not Ducuing realized that the Rosenberg mortgage of $2,000.00 stood against the fifteen-acre parcel of land sold to Thomson. On this point I hold a serious doubt, and for this reason: Duening owned fourteen acres of land adjoining the fifteen-acre tract sold to Thomson. This fourteen-acre tract had been purchased from one Rosenberg at a price of $2,000.00, for which Duening gave Rosenberg a $2,000.00 mortgage on the fourteen-acre tract of land. In addition, Rosenberg presented to Duening another paper, which, in fact, turned out to be a mortgage for $2,000.00 on the fifteen-acre tract of land which was later sold to Thomson. Both of these mortgages were to secure the same $2,000.00.

According to Duening, this latter paper was represented to him by Rosenberg as being merely a copy of the mortgage on the fourteen-acre tract of land, which copy was for him (Rosenberg). This explanation by Duening, which I heard for the first time during the actual trial of the case, seemed to me very reasonable. The fact is that Duening was not properly represented at the trial, and had he been properly represented and the facts of his side of the case been presented to the jury, I have no doubt that the jury would have returned a verdict of acquittal, and very properly."

The following from Judge Campbell's letter quite fully supplements the statement from the district attorney's office:

"Duening's contention that, instead of selling to Thomson but the 15 acres, he sold Thomson the 20 acres subject to the two encumbrances of $2,500.00 and $2,000.00 is substantiated by the testimony of the complaining witness, Thomson, which appears in the transcript of the testimony. From the testimony of Thomson, it is apparent that, prior to the consummation of this deal, Thomson and Duening met in San Francisco and, visiting the office of a Notary Public in that city, had prepared a written contract of sale and purchase for the 20 acres for the total selling price of $8,000.00, subject to the two mortgages of $2,500 and $2,000.00. Thomson on the stand testified that this contract was not correct, and so informed Duening, and thereupon Thomson destroyed this instrument.

It is apparent, in view of the main issue involved in this proceeding, that the question whether the sale was for the 15 acres or 20 acres was the very gist of the matter. Counsel for Duening failed to dispute anything whatsoever as to the reason why this written contract was destroyed by Thomson, other than the reason given therefor by Thomson, a slight exaggeration; and, when Duening was on the stand in his own defense, his counsel failed to mention the important question of this written contract, or to go into any phase of this question whatsoever.

The defense of Duening was not handled in a very efficient manner, and had he been more ably defended I feel the result would have been different. I have gone into all phases of this matter since the conviction of Duening, and have investigated the different statements appearing in the affidavits of the various parties attached to the application, and am convinced that had the evidence available been presented to the jury, that the result would have been an acquittal, and I feel properly so."

Thus it will be noted that both prosecuting attorney and judge state that with any adequate defense the verdict should very properly have been an acquittal. In addition, Peter C. Thomson, the complaining witness, wrote as follows while Duening was still in prison:

"I was the complaining witness in the case against Duening in which he was convicted. I have never been fully satisfied as to whether Duening's statements to me about the title to his ranch were made through ignorance or were wilfully false. Since going to San Quentin, I have been on the whole matter right with me, and has refunded all the money I lost on the transaction. I would be glad to have him receive a pardon."

Roe M. Barrett, the attorney for the complaining witness, Thomson, has, since the trial, written the following:

"Duening's contention was that he did not know that he had executed a second mortgage on the property sold to Thomson, and understood that his promissory note was secured merely by the one mortgage on the other hand. In view of the fact that he does not understand or speak English to any great extent, there is considerable color to this contention. Finally, I have never been satisfied in my own mind that Duening was guilty of the crime charged. I knew that in the criminal case his defense was very poorly handled."

In addition to those already quoted as connected with the trial, several persons have shown by statements under oath that they had personal knowledge of material facts which counsel for Duening either knew or at least could have discovered by the use of ordinary diligence. Not only during the trial, but even after, the defense attorney seems very lax in any endeavors in behalf of his client. For instance, Judge Campbell writes in a second letter:

"No facts were presented when the defendant was arraigned for judgment. A motion for a new trial was made assigning errors of law, but was not argued. I assumed it was made merely as a basis for filing an appeal. A formal motion for probation was made but was not followed by any request to present any facts, so the motion was denied."

Thus it appears very probable that this man, ignorant of the English language to a great extent, and of business procedure, was convicted of a crime which he had never the slightest intention of committing. However, there is another ground on which I believe Ducuing should be pardoned and restored to citizenship, aside from the circumstances so far adduced. My action in this case is influenced in no small degree by the good reputation and character which Ducuing bore in the community in which he lived and worked, and by what is of even more vital importance—his marked disposition to rehabilitate himself to the extent of his ability since his release from prison.

Several men of prominence and standing in the community where he now resides and works have informed me of his extreme sincerity and good character. They have assured me that at all times since his release he has endeavored to earn an honest livelihood for himself and family, and, moreover, that he is also highly appreciative in all respects of the value and significance of the possession of citizenship and civil rights.

It is my view, where a man has fully paid his debt to the State and has subsequently shown a tendency to become a useful member of society, that such voluntary conduct on his part is worthy of the greatest admiration and consideration, and that such a person, in a proper case, should not be required to remain and continually labor under the handicap of loss of citizenship and civil rights. Once a man voluntarily and through his own efforts has fully and conclusively demonstrated and established that he intends to live a peaceful, law abiding, and useful life, he is then entitled to consideration and help, rather than hindrance, from the State. This can be accomplished only by restoring to such person his citizenship and civil rights.

Although nearly three years have elapsed since the completion of Ducuing's prison sentence, and although his conduct is reported to have been most exemplary during this period, neither the freedom which has been his nor his good conduct has served fully to reinstate him to his former place in the social and business world. For instance, Mr. John S. Toulze, manager of the Cooks' Association of the Pacific Coast, of which union Ducuing was formerly a member, has written as follows:

"Mr. Ducuing is not entitled to a reinstatement to membership in our organization because of the stigma attached by his conviction, and on account of being a non-member he is most sincerely hampered in obtaining employment at the going wages in positions which this Association is able to secure for him."

I have received numerous other letters convincing me that, if granted a pardon, Lucien Ducuing will in every way prove a good citizen and worthy of the trust reposed in him. Finally, I have just received a detailed report from the Advisory Pardon Board, to which I had referred this case for investigation and recommendation. From this report I quote the following:

"After a thorough and exhaustive consideration of all the facts and recommendations in the case, the Board respectfully advises that the petitioner, Lucien Ducuing, be pardoned, and that his citizenship be restored.

The petitioner throughout the course of the trial, his period of commitment, in his appearance before the Parole Board and at all times subsequent, has maintained his ignorance of the transaction causing his conviction, and a total lack of intent to defraud. All the evidence and our investigation seems to substantiate the correctness of his position.

The petitioner is by occupation a chef, and during his many years residence in California has been employed by the finest hotels in the State. The loss of his civil rights resulting from his conviction and confinement has caused him considerable hardship in securing a position whereby he is enabled to maintain a livelihood for himself and family.

The serious question as to any presence on his part of an intent to defraud the complaining witness in the transaction, out of which came his conviction, together with his illiteracy and the inadequacy of his defense at the time of his trial, leads the Advisory Pardon Board inescapably to the conviction that substantial justice would be best served by the extension of executive clemency in behalf of the petitioner."

Now, therefore, I, C. C. Young, Governor of the State of California, pursuant to the authority vested in me by the constitution and statutes of said State, in consideration of the facts which have been presented to me which tend to show that the said Ducuing was innocent of the crime for which he was convicted, and of the good reputation and character which he has borne and now bears in the community in which he resides and works, and particularly of the fact that since his release from prison he has voluntarily and through his own efforts conclusively shown that he intends to live a peaceful, law abiding, and industrious life, and is therefore, now entitled to a restoration of his citizenship and civil rights, and in view of the recommendations of the Advisory Pardon Board and others hereunto referred to, do hereby pardon the said Lucien Durning of the said crime of obtaining money under false pretenses.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State of California to be affixed this twenty-sixth day of April, A. D. 1928.

REPRIZE.

Upon a showing of facts presented to me by Warden John R. Holohan of San Quentin prison and by Dr. L. L. Stanley, resident physician of the prison, I am hereby issuing a reprieve of ninety days to Lucien Johnson, whose execution was heretofore set for Friday, May 11, 1928.

On July 8, 1927, Johnson was duly convicted for the murder of his wife. The Supreme Court has affirmed the judgment, and no new facts have been adduced which would justify any executive clemency in his behalf. I have carefully read the transcript of testimony in his case, and have seen no reason to question the justness of the jury's verdict or the court's sentence.

However, the prisoner has been attacked by a malady which renders him bed-ridden, and which threatens to end his life within a very few weeks. His case for some time has been under the close observation of the prison physicians, and I have received reports regarding it each day during the past week. Warden Holohan informs me that if he is executed Friday it will be necessary actually to carry him up the stairs to the gallows.

I believe that the spectacle of a man, not feigning sickness at all, but dangerously ill, who must be carried to his execution, and his subsequent removal to the gallows, is rather more gruesome than anyone would care to contemplate. I am satisfied that even the most zealous advocate of capital punishment would agree that an execution under such conditions must inevitably create a reaction of feeling which would be very unfortunate, to say the least.

Particularly is this so, owing to the fact that this Friday, the 11th, has been set for a double execution, though for crimes in no way related to each other. Even under ordinary circumstances a double execution would be unusual, but when one of the condemned men must be carried from a sickbed to the gallows, the situation becomes almost too spectacular.

I wish two things to be made plain as to the granting of this reprieve. In the first place, it has not been asked either by the prisoner or his counsel, or by anyone appealing in his behalf. It is granted solely upon the recommendation of the warden and prison physician, who are amply able to insure that no one, either now or in the future, can secure such a reprieve through malaguering or feigning an illness which is not a very real and critical one.

In the second place, Johnson's case is not one which calls for sentimental sympathy of any kind. His crime can not be condoned, and is not one which would justify commutation. I have fixed the reprieve at ninety days, owing to the fact that his present condition is apparently such that practically this length of time must elapse before he is able to leave his bed, if indeed he is ever able to do so. If at the expiration of this period the present critical stage of his malady has passed, the penalty of the law and the judgment of the court must be carried out.

Following are the letters regarding Johnson, just received from Warden Holohan and Dr. Stanley:

"May 9, 1928.

Hon. C. C. Young,
Governor of California,
Sacramento, California.

MY DEAR GOVERNOR: I herewith enclose you a report made today by Dr. L. L. Stanley, our resident physician, in the case of Lucien Johnson, No. 43859, who is sentenced to be executed here on Friday, May 11th. I have visited this man at his cot in the hospital on several occasions, and I am thoroughly satisfied that he is physically very weak and his health is rapidly failing. There is no doubt in my mind that, if he must be executed on next Friday, he will have to be carried from the hospital up the stairs to the execution chamber, which is on the top floor of a large four-story building here, and, further, he would have to be lifted up the thirteen steps from the floor of the execution chamber to the scaffold.

In view of the above observations in the case, and in consideration of Dr. Stanley's report, I earnestly recommend that you grant a reprieve to this prisoner of ninety days, there being every indication at this time that the prisoner will succumb from natural causes before the ninety days expire.

I sincerely trust that you can see your way clear to grant this reprieve. Under the circumstances I believe it to be the wise and humanitarian thing to do.

Yours very respectfully,

JAS. B. HOLOHAN, Warden."

"May 9, 1928.

Hon. Jas. B. Holohan, Warden.

DEAR SIR: Replying to your request regarding prisoner No. 43859, Lonnie Johnson, have to say that when this man was admitted to the hospital on April 1st, his weight was 141 pounds. His weight today, thirty-one days later, is 126 pounds. His temperature during the first week in the hospital was between normal and 100 degrees, but in the past week it has been over 100 degrees both morning and night. His blood count on April 24th showed 3,200,000 red cells, the normal is about 4,500,000. On May 7th his blood count had reduced to 2,730,000, showing great impoverishment of the blood. The hemoglobin, or color of the blood, is 50 per cent of normal.

Johnson has developed a slight tingling of the right fingers and has shown symptoms of nervous degeneration of his left foot.

These findings are suggestive of pernicious anemia.

Johnson's heart rate has increased from 84 in the first of April up to 120 at the present time. This is due to the blood impoverishment.

He is able to walk across the room but is gradually getting much weaker. He would be unable to go up any flight of steps because of his weakness.

If this case progresses as it has during the past month, it is my opinion, shared by my two assistants, that he will not survive more than 60 days. Of course no one can ever predict the outcome of a disease like this, but all indications now point to a fairly early termination of it.

Yours very truly,

L. L. STANLEY, Resident Physician."

Accordingly, I do hereby reprieve Lonnie Johnson under sentence to be hanged in the State Prison at San Quentin on the eleventh day of May, 1928, until and to Friday, August 19, 1928.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State of California to be affixed this tenth day of May A. D. 1928.

NOTE.—Johnson died in the hospital at San Quentin, July 5, 1928.

PARDON.

Peter Derichs was convicted of the crime of burglary, second degree, and was sentenced on the 4th day of February, 1913, by the superior court in and for the county of Contra Costa, Honorable R. H. Latimer, judge, presiding, to be imprisoned at the State Prison at San Quentin for the term of five years. He was duly received at the State Prison at San Quentin and given number 26286. Thereafter, on the 2d day of December, 1915, by order of the State Board of Prison Directors, he was placed on parole and so remained until the expiration of his sentence on the 4th day of February, 1918.

It thus appears that over twelve years have now elapsed since Derichs was placed on parole, and over ten years since his final discharge. During those periods of time, I am informed by men who have been in close contact and association with him, and whose judgment and opinions are entitled to the greatest consideration and weight, that he has not only led a peaceful and law-abiding life, but has also endeavored to secure, and in fact in no small degree has succeeded, in gaining for himself a creditable standing and position in the communities in which he has resided and worked since his release on parole and his final discharge.

State Parole Officer Ed. H. Whyte, under whose surveillance he was during the period of his parole, and who has watched his course of conduct and efforts since, has written me as follows:

"Peter Derichs was formerly under our charge for approximately 16 months. His conduct while on parole was at all times excellent, and his record while confined in the State institution was all that could be desired. His parole expired on February 4th, 1918.

I have been in touch with him constantly and know personally that he has been living a clean, honest and law-abiding life to the extent of attending college, graduated with honors, is now a licensed pharmacist in the state of Arkansas, and is employed in a college as an instructor, and has letters to this effect verifying same.

From the period I have known him, I have no hesitance in recommending him for any position of trust or confidence he may apply for."

The letter of the State parole officer is fully substantiated by the statements contained in letters from numerous other persons with whom Derichs has been associated in his line of work since the expiration of his parole, during which time his good conduct and advancement has, of course, been wholly voluntary on his part.

For nearly three years after the expiration of his parole he was employed as infirmarian at the Infirmary of St. Francis Grammar School, which is a boarding school for boys located at Watsonville, California. The director of this school, and several physicians under whose immediate supervision and direction Derichs worked during this time, have joined in their praise of his work and of his exemplary conduct and good character. The director of the school, F. Burelbach, has written in part as follows:

"I can conscientiously testify that the work of Mr. Derichs was not only satisfactory but merited unstinted praise on the part of experts in that line of work who had occasion to come in contact with it. * * * No sacrifice was too great for him and no hour too inconvenient when the call of duty was heard."

One of the physicians connected with this institution, Dr. S. C. Rodgers, has written in part as follows:

"I am intimately acquainted with Mr. Derichs and his fine work.

He is a very fine young man and popular with all with whom he becomes associated.

He is intelligent, alert, industrious and polite. * * *

Since the removal of Derichs from this State to Arkansas, some seven years ago, it appears that he has not only continued in that state to lead the same peaceful, quiet, and law-abiding life, but has continued his professional and social advancement as well, having become a registered pharmacist of that state and having been employed for the past five years as infirmarian and nurse of Subiaco College, located at Subiaco, Arkansas.

The president of this college, the Right Reverend Edward Bergert, has written as follows:

"He has proved himself as trustworthy in every way, upright and honest, faithful and diligent in his work, of a good moral character, and thoroughly American in thought and sentiment. He is to be recommended both as a sterling Christian and a loyal and peaceful citizen."

Other men of prominence and standing in the community where he now lives and works, but not in any way connected with his employment, have written letters of a similar nature.

Honorable Ray Blair, judge of the county and probate court of Logan County, Arkansas, has written in part as follows:

"Personally I know that Mr. Derichs is an honest, upright citizen, has been a loyal citizen to the cause of the progress of our community, as well as to the school with which he has been connected."

A letter written by Honorable S. H. Kincannon, sheriff of Logan County, Arkansas, reads in part as follows:

"I, Sam H. Kincannon, Sheriff of Logan County, City of Paris, State of Arkansas, hereby wish to state that I have personally known Peter H. Derichs for approximately seven years, and that I know the said Peter H. Derichs to be a man of the highest integrity and of a reliable disposition, and a man of firm and steadfast character. I, furthermore, state that said person is known in our community as a good and respectable citizen."

Honorable Conrad Elsken, mayor of Subiaco, Arkansas, has also written a letter to the same effect.

These letters, as well as others which have come to my attention would seem clearly to establish that Derichs' life during the past ten years has been all one could ask or desire, and one which might well serve as an example to all ex-convicts. In such a case where a man has served his time on parole and been finally discharged, and has thereafter, with the restrictions and conditions of parole no longer obligatory upon him, shown a voluntary disposition to lead a good and useful life over a sufficient period of time to warrant the belief that such traits, characteristics, and conduct will be permanent in their nature, and that he will be worthy of any trust or confidence which may be placed in him, it is my view that such a man is entitled to recognition and help from society, and should be permitted to participate in the privilege ordinarily extended by the State and society to its citizens or members. The modern and more enlightened theory of punishment for crime is not, it is now generally conceded, to be revenge by the State against the individual, but for the purpose, if possible, of making such person conform to the accepted standards of the State and society, so that he may subsequently become a useful and productive member of that society, as well as to serve as an example which may deter others from committing crimes.

If, therefore, after his sentence has been served and his debt to the State fully paid such a man conclusively demonstrates over a sufficient period of time that he is willing, able and endeavoring to lead a good, sincere and honest life, not only for the purpose of escaping new entanglements with the criminal law, but with the view of conforming to all of the accepted social rules of conduct, it would seem clearly to accord with the modern theory of reformation of criminals that the State and society should recognize the worth of the man as evidenced by such conduct, and should remove, in such a case, the disabilities incident to the conviction of a felony. Under our present system this can be effectuated only by an exercise of executive clemency, restoring the privileges of citizenship and civil rights which such person may have lost.

I am also impressed in this case by the fact that the applicant for this pardon has stated many times that he desired the same to aid him in becoming a naturalized citizen of the United States, he being of Bavarian nativity and at present unnaturalized. This desire to become a citizen and subject of the United States leads me further to believe that he will be worthy of any trust or confidence which will be reposed in him by this pardon.

Lastly, I have just received a detailed report from the Advisory Pardon Board to whom I had referred this case for investigation and recommendation. From this report I quote the following:

"After a thorough and exhaustive consideration of all the facts and recommendations in the case the board respectfully advises that the petitioner, Peter Derichs, be pardoned and that his citizenship be restored. * * *

The evidence considered indicates that petitioner bears a good reputation and character in the communities in which he has resided and worked. In view of the fact that since his release from prison he has voluntarily and through his own efforts educated himself, and conclusively shown that he has lived and intends to live a peaceful, law-abiding, useful life, this board unqualifiedly recommends petitioner as worthy of executive clemency."

Now, therefore, I, C. C. Young, Governor of the State of California, pursuant to the authority vested in me by the constitution and statutes of the said State, in view of the fact that, since the expiration of his sentence, said Derichs has voluntarily and through his own efforts conclusively shown that he intends to live a peaceful, law-abiding, and industrious life, and is, therefore, now entitled to such recognition and help from the State as may be given him by the granting of this pardon, and in view of the recommendations of the Advisory Pardon Board and the others hereinbefore referred to, do hereby pardon the said Peter Derichs of the said crime of burglary, second degree.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State of California to be affixed this twenty-first day of May, A. D. 1928.

PARDON.

JOHN CARONI was convicted of the crime of manslaughter, a felony, and was sentenced on the 10th day of August, 1912, but the superior court in and for the city and county of San Francisco, Honorable J. J. Trabucco, judge, presiding, to be imprisoned in the State Prison at Folsom for a term of eight years. He was received at the State Prison at Folsom on the 13th day of August, 1912, and given number 8433. Thereafter, on the 10th day of February, 1915, he was released on parole and, on the 10th day of December, 1917, he was given his final discharge.

I have received numerous letters and requests which tend clearly to show that there were at least extenuating and mitigating circumstances surrounding the commission of the crime for which Caroni was convicted and that he has never been and is not now an habitual criminal or of a criminal or vicious nature or tendency, and which unquestionably both establish his good and law-abiding character and industry and show his endeavor to the greatest extent of his ability to rehabilitate himself as a useful and worthy member of society since his release on parole and particularly since his final discharge, during which latter period of time his conduct and advancement has, of course, been wholly voluntary.

The written statements of the Honorable J. J. Trabucco, presiding judge at the trial, and of Maxwell McNutt, former assistant district attorney of the city and county of San Francisco, who investigated the circumstances of the case for the district attorney's office, appear to be of particular significance in that they clearly recognize that there were extenuating circumstances under which the crime was committed, thus substantiating the numerous letters and documents which have come to my attention and set out in detail the facts of the killing, which facts may be summarized as follows:

Caroni was assaulted by an Italian gang in the Italian quarter of San Francisco, apparently without reason or provocation, and a severe beating was administered to him. He then went to his room and, arming himself, was returning to a local drug store for treatment of his injuries when he was again set upon by several members of the gang, at which time, fearing further great bodily injury, he fired the fatal shot resulting in the death of one of the gangsters, a man who bore a bad reputation for disorder and had a long criminal record.

In a letter addressed to me Hon. J. J. Trainor, presiding judge at the trial, states as follows:

"I shall be very happy if you can see your way clear to extend executive clemency to him, and restore him to the privilege of becoming a citizen. As I understand the case, there were extenuating and mitigating circumstances, and I recommend that executive clemency be extended him."

An excerpt from a letter of former Assistant District Attorney McNutt reads as follows:

"When the case of Caroni was called for trial I examined the record from the Police Court, investigated the circumstances of the homicide, discussed the same with the police officers, and concluded that Caroni should not have been held for murder, and gravely doubted that should he go to trial that a plea of self-defense might not be successfully interposed. His attorney, however, desired to interpose a plea of guilty to manslaughter. The same was accepted upon my recommendation, and I requested that the Judge extend clemency."

From my recollection of the facts, the shooting resulted from a quarrel precipitated by persons who attacked Caroni. I did not then believe, and I do not now, but for the attack made upon Caroni there would have been any shooting, and I heartily recommend that the pending pardon be granted."

Besides these mitigating circumstances which thus appear to have surrounded the commission of the crime, I am also greatly influenced by the fact that Caroni, before and since his conviction, bore and now bears a good reputation in the community in which he lives and works, and has always been considered by those associated with him as a good, clean, law-abiding person. I have been particularly struck by the fact that since his final discharge, during which time his behavior and conduct has been uninfluenced by any legal restraint such as one in prison while serving time on parole, he has endeavored at all times to be a useful and productive member of society; has taken unto himself a wife and assumed and fully discharged the obligations and duties of a husband and parent; and, lastly, has evidenced a desire to become a citizen of the United States, he being at present an unaturalized Italian.

As regards Caroni's reputation and conduct before his conviction, we have the statements of both the judge who presided at the trial and the former assistant district attorney who handled the prosecution, that Caroni had neither a previous criminal record nor was there any evidence whatsoever of a criminal or vicious nature or tendency.

In a letter bearing date May 24, 1914, Judge Trainor states as follows:

"My recollection of the evidence is that Caroni bore a good reputation for peace and quietness and that the deceased was the aggressor."

A similar statement was made by Mr. McNutt in a letter dated October 4, 1912, as follows:

"Caroni's record previous to the commission of this crime was excellent."

He has always been a hard working man."

As regards Caroni's behavior and conduct since his conviction, it is worthy of note that, reviewing in historical sequence the several events which have transpired, his prison record was clean and all one could desire or ask, that there is not an iota of unfavorable evidence as regards his behavior and movements while serving time on parole; and, what is of even greater significance, that his life, considered as a whole since his final discharge, has been one which might well serve as an example even for those who are not ex-convicts.

His several employers during the last eight years, including representatives of the following well known construction companies in San Francisco, namely: Dinwiddie Construction Company, G. Weissbaum & Co., J. N. J. Froberg Company, and Montgomery Sutter Building Co., all speak very highly of his trustworthiness and industry and fail to record a single instance which might cast doubt on his character or his reputation as a law-abiding person. The following quotations from letters of two such employers are typical of a number of others which I have examined.

Mr. E. M. Walters, general superintendent of the Dinwiddie Construction Company, has written as follows:

"This is to certify that Mr. John Caroni has been in my employ at different times for the past eight years."

During this time I have always found him to be a good clean-cut man and a conscientious worker."

Mr. George Weissbaum, of G. Weissbaum & Co., has written as follows:

"This is to certify that Mr. John Caroni was in my employ for approximately four years. During this time he was entrusted with the handling of payrolls amounting to several thousand dollars and I have always found him to be faithful and trustworthy."

Rabbi Rudolph I. Coffee of Temple Sinai, First Hebrew Congregation of Oakland, has written numerous letters stressing the extreme sincerity, good character and law-abiding qualities of this man. The following excerpt from one of his letters is typical of a number of others which I have received from him, and from other persons as well, all being of the same general import:

"From my examination of the prison record, his conduct was at all times exemplary. It was his first and last offense. Since his release, his life has been beyond criticism. He has been a good, respectable, honest, law-abiding resident."

The unbroken continuity of the good behavior and conduct of this man, except for the commission of the one crime under great provocation, and especially his earnest endeavors since his final discharge to rehabilitate himself and adopt and follow all the recognized and approved rules of social conduct, lead me to believe that a proper showing has been made, and that this man is now worthy of consideration and aid from society and the people of this State with whom he has made his home for a number of years and with whom he desires to continue to reside and work. Where, as here, a first offender has fully paid his debt to the State and conclusively demonstrates over a sufficient period of time that he is able and anxious to lead a good, clean, and honest life, not only for the purpose of escaping new entanglements with the criminal law but with a view of conforming to all the accepted social rules of conduct, it would seem clearly to accord with the modern theory of reformation of criminals for the State and society to recognize the worth of the man as evidenced by such conduct and to remove, in such cases, the disabilities incident to conviction of a felony.

I am informed that one of the incidents attendant upon conviction of a felony is even now about to be felt by Caroni and that he is shortly to be deported to Italy under the immigration laws and regulations of the United States. It appears that this deportation is about to take place because of the fact that after his final discharge Caroni returned to Italy, where he married and then reentered the United States. Recently, when applying for final citizenship papers, it was discovered that he had thus technically violated the law and became subject to deportation.

It is my belief that Caroni, in view of the above facts and circumstances, and his exceptionally good showing since his final discharge, is entitled to recognition from society and the people of this State and a removal of the disabilities incident to a conviction of a felony.

Under our present system this can only be effected by a pardon which will remove such disabilities, restore civil rights, make possible the acquisition of United States citizenship, which he has evidenced a desire to secure, and obviate the necessity of deportation, involving a separation and severance of family ties. The proven upright character of this man has, in my opinion, properly won for him a just right to continue to reside in this country and in this State, and to partake of all the advantages of a free man in society. I feel that there are the most reasonable grounds in this case upon which to base an expectation that the confidence to be reposed in him by the granting of this pardon will not be violated by him at any time in the future.

Lastly, I have just received a report from the members of the Advisory Pardon Board, to whom I had referred this case for investigation and recommendation. From these reports I quote the following excerpts. Warden Jas. B. Holohan of San Quentin State Prison has written as follows:

"In view of the mitigating circumstances set forth in the evidence, and the fact that his life prior to his conviction was beyond reproach, and since his release from prison has shown by his industry and conduct that it is his intention to become a useful citizen, and the further fact that his deportation would penalize not only himself, but his wife and children as well, I respectfully recommend that John Caroni be granted a pardon."

Warden Court Smith of Folsom State Prison has written as follows:

"I have carefully considered this case as shown by the records and am of the opinion that John Caroni should be recommended to our Governor for a pardon."

Attorney General U. S. Webb has written as follows:

"I think the ends of justice would be best subserved by his pardon and restoration to citizenship, and therefore favor recommendation to the Governor that such be the action."

Finally, Lieutenant Governor Byron Fitts, chairman of the board, sums up its action as follows:

"It is, therefore, respectfully recommended that, by reason of the facts and circumstances in the case of the applicant, executive clemency be extended John Caroni, and that a pardon be granted."

Now, therefore, I, C. C. Young, Governor of the State of California, pursuant to the authority vested in me by the constitution and statutes of the said State, in view of the extenuating and mitigating circumstances surrounding the commission of the crime, and of the good repute and character which he has borne and now bears in the community in which he resides and works, and particularly of the fact that since his final discharge he has voluntarily and through his own efforts conclusively shown that he intends to live a peaceful, law-abiding and industrious life, and is, therefore, now entitled to a removal of the disabilities and incidents which follow conviction of a felony, including the restoration of civil rights, the making possible of the acquisition of United States citizenship, and the obviating of the necessity for deportation, and in view of the recommendations of the members of the Advisory Pardon Board and the other recommendations above referred to, do hereby pardon the said John Caroni of the said crime of manslaughter.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State of California to be affixed this twenty ninth day of June, A. D. 1928

AYES—Senators Allen, Baker, Boggs, Breed, Carter, Cassidy, Cobb, Crowley, Duval, Edwards, Evans, Fellom, Garrison, Handy, Hurley, Lyon, McCormack, McKinley, Merriam, Mueller, Pedrotti, Sharkey, Slater, Swing, Waggy, Weller, West, and Young—28.

NOES—None.

By Senator Carter:

WHEREAS, The State of California, its counties and municipalities have under way improvements requiring large expenditures of money, and in order that not too heavy tax burden be put upon the people to meet these expenditures, it is imperative that the supplies and material entering into such improvements shall be obtained at the lowest cost possible, and

WHEREAS, Experience of many years has shown that free competitive bidding upon public as well as private work is the best means of obtaining the lowest cost, and in recognition of this fact, the law of California has provided that all supplies for public improvements shall be purchased only upon competitive bids, and from the lowest bidder, and

WHEREAS, That this policy may be carried out, and the law made effective, it is necessary that monopolies, trusts and conspiracies in restraint of trade, affecting the prices of commodities, if any exist, be regulated, and the Attorney General of the State requested to take steps to dissolve the same, and prosecute all guilty parties thereto, to the end that the people may have the benefit of lower prices of material by free competitive bidding, and

WHEREAS, In modern construction of highways, dams, bridges and other structures, cement is one of the elements most used, and the most important factor in cost, and

WHEREAS, The State of California has announced a program for highway construction for the next biennium of one hundred and six and a half millions; the county of Los Angeles is constructing a flood control dam at a cost of over twenty-five millions, in which 3,200,000 barrels of cement will be used; the city of Los Angeles, with a program of street improvement, which it is estimated will equal in cost the 1928 expenditures, approximating twenty-seven million dollars, and other municipalities in proportion, and

WHEREAS, There is a reputed cement trust in this State, composed of manufacturers and dealers in cement forming a combination to control and maintain high and uniform prices, by stifling free competition thereby increasing the costs of all improvements in which cement is used, which is evidenced by reports from the State Purchasing Department, showing bids of all manufacturers bidding to be the same, thereby depriving the department of the benefit of advantageous prices through free competition, and the same conditions are reported in municipal purchases and by private contractors, now therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate of the State of California, That a special committee of five members of the Senate be appointed by the President of the Senate to ascertain the fact whether or not an illegal combination or conspiracy exists among manufacturers and dealers in cement, to control the market price of cement in the State of California by limiting production, suppressing free competition or other means, and upon the conclusion of such investigation to report to the Senate the results thereof, together with such recommendations as the committee shall deem proper.

Resolved further, That said committee be, and it hereby is authorized and empowered to do any and all things necessary to make a full and complete investigation of the matters and subjects hereinbefore enumerated, or recited, and to that end to employ all necessary clerical, expert and legal assistants, and said committee is hereby authorized and empowered to summon witnesses, require the production of papers of every kind, to issue subpoenas and to take all necessary means to compel the attendance of witnesses and to procure testimony; and the members of said committee are, and each of them is, hereby authorized to administer oaths; and all the provisions of article VIII of chapter 2, title 1, part III of the Political Code of this State, relative to the attendance and examination of witnesses before the Legislature and committees thereof, shall apply to the committee appointed under this resolution; and the Sergeant-at-Arms of the Senate is hereby authorized and directed to serve any and all subpoenas and orders or other process that may be issued by said committee, when directed so to do by the chairman thereof; that said committee be given leave to sit during the sessions of the Senate and during the recess, at such place or places as the committee may determine; that it report as speedily as possible, the results of its investigation to the Senate, with such recommendations as it may deem proper, relative to abuses or wilful violation of the anti-trust law (Cartwright Act), and the particulars, if any, wherein said law should be strengthened and made more effective to prevent illegal combinations or conspiracies in restraint of trade.

Resolved, That the sum of $2,500 be and the same hereby is made available for the purpose of defraying the expenses of such committee in said investigation, to be paid from the contingent fund of the Senate, and the State Controller is hereby authorized and directed to draw his warrants in favor of the chairman of said committee for such expenditures as may be certified to him from time to time by the chairman of said committee, and the State Treasurer is hereby authorized and directed to pay the same.

SECOND READING OF ASSEMBLY BILL NUMBER FIVE.

Assembly Bill No. 5—An act to validate bonds of school districts, high school districts and junior college districts of every kind and class, and providing for the levy of a tax to pay the same.

URGENCY CLAUSE.

SEC. 4. This act is hereby declared to be an urgency measure necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health and safety within the meaning of section 1 of article IV of the constitution of the State of California, and shall take effect immediately. The following is a statement of the facts constituting such urgency: Many school districts within the State of California are without sufficient money with which to purchase school lots, for building or purchasing one or more school buildings or making alterations or additions to same or restoring or rebuilding school buildings damaged, injured or destroyed by fire or other public calamity, for insuring school buildings, for supplying school buildings with furniture or necessary apparatus, for improving school grounds, for liquidating any indebtedness already incurred for said purposes or refunding any valid out-standing indebtedness of such district evidenced by bonds or warrants thereof. Many school districts have within the last two years voted bonds for raising money for such purposes and the proceedings in many of such bond elections were irregular but complying with all the provisions of this act, and by reason of such minor irregularities and defects in such proceedings, not jurisdictional, such bonds can not now be sold. The population of many of these districts has increased so rapidly that the present school facilities of such districts are unable to meet the needs of the great increase of pupils in such districts and it is necessary and urgent that such bonds and the proceedings thereunder be validated at an early date in order that said school buildings, lots, equipment and facilities may be purchased or built before the opening of the next school year which in many instances would be impossible if this act did not go into effect immediately but were required to wait until ninety days after adjournment of this Legislature.

AYES—Senators Allen, Baker, Boggs, Canapa, Carter, Cassidy, Christman, Cobb, Crowley, Duval, Edwards, Evans, Fellom, Gray, Hanly, Jones, Herbert C. Jones, Ray, Lyon, Maloney, McCormack, McKimley, Merriam, Nelson, Pedrotti, Sharkey, Slater, Swing, Tubbs, Waggy, Weller, West, and Young—32.

Whereupon, the President declared the provisions of section 15 of article IV of the constitution suspended for the purpose of considering at this time Assembly Bill No. 151.

SECOND READING OF ASSEMBLY BILL NUMBER ONE HUNDRED FIFTY ONE.

Assembly Bill No. 151—An act to amend sections 4 and 8 of an act entitled "An act to reserve all minerals in State lands, to provide for examination, classification, and report on the mineral and other character of State lands; to provide for the granting of permits and leases to prospect for and take any such minerals; to provide for the returns and royalties to be paid, and granting certain preference rights; to provide for the making of rules, regulations, and contracts necessary to carry out the purposes of this act; and repealing acts or parts of acts in conflict herewith; providing for an appropriation to defray the cost of administering this act," approved May 25, 1921, as amended, relating to the suspension, withholding or denial of the right or privilege of applying or bidding for, receiving, obtaining or being granted permits or leases to prospect for or take oil, gas or other minerals in, upon or from tide, overflowed or submerged lands of the State.

URGENCY CLAUSE.

SEC. 3. This act is hereby declared to be an urgency measure deemed necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health and safety within the meaning of section 1 of article IV of the constitution of California, and as such it shall take effect immediately.

The following is a statement of the facts constituting such urgency and necessity:

The Surveyor General, since some time in 1927, has refused to file any applications for, or to grant any permits on the tide or submerged lands of the State, and it is believed that but for such refusal a much greater area of tide and submerged lands would have been applied for. There was, during 1927, commenced in the Supreme Court of the State, one or more actions which involved the validity of the act hereby amended, in so far as the same related to tide and submerged lands, and the decision of the Supreme Court in these cases was rendered on the thirty-first day of December, 1928, and in such decision the Supreme Court held such act to be valid in the particulars in which its validity had been challenged. Since such decision was rendered, the Surveyor General has received numerous inquiries in regard to the procedure to be followed in order to obtain permits for tide and submerged lands under the provisions of said act and it is believed that a large number of applications for such lands will soon be made. It is believed that the tide and submerged lands of the State should not be open for exploitation and prospecting or for the production of oil and gas, as provided by the act hereby amended.

The Legislature desires opportunity to consider to what extent, if at all, the provisions tendered by the act hereby amended should be limited or withdrawn, and it is deemed in the interests of public policy that no rights under the act hereby amended should be initiated during the time given by the Legislature to the consideration of the subject, nor until such legislation as may be adopted in furtherance of the legislative purpose shall go into effect. If such provisions be not suspended during the period indicated the tide and submerged lands may be so far covered by applications and leases that such legislation as may be adopted would fail to secure that protection of tide and submerged lands which was by the Legislature intended.

The question being on the adoption of the urgency clause.

NOES—None.

Bill read third time.

The question being on the passage of the bill.

The roll was called, and Assembly Bill No. 151 passed by the following vote:

ON CONTINGENT EXPENSES.

SENATE CHAMBER, SACRAMENTO, January 17, 1929.

MR. PRESIDENT: Your Committee on Contingent Expenses, to which was referred Senate resolution printed on page 2 of the Senate Journal of January 14, relative to appointment of a committee to investigate the so-called cement trust and to make an appropriation therefor, has had the same under consideration, and respectfully reports the same back without recommendation.

CARTER, Chairman.

CONSIDERATION OF RESOLUTION OFFERED BY SENATOR CARTER.

Senator Carter moved that the following resolution offered by him be considered by the Senate at this time:

WHEREAS, The State of California, its counties and municipalities have under way improvements requiring large expenditures of money, and in order that not too heavy tax burden be put upon the people to meet these expenditures, it is imperative that the supplies and material entering into such improvements shall be obtained at the lowest cost possible; and

WHEREAS, Experience of many years has shown that free competitive bidding upon public as well as private work is the best means of obtaining the lowest cost, and in recognition of this fact, the law of California has provided that all supplies for public improvements shall be purchased only upon competitive bids, and from the lowest bidder; and

WHEREAS, That this policy may be carried out, and the law made effective, it is necessary that monopolies, trusts and conspiracies in restraint of trade, affecting the prices of commodities, if any exist, be regulated, and the Attorney General of the State requested to take steps to dissolve the same, and prosecute all guilty parties thereto, to the end that the people may have the benefit of lower prices of material by free competitive bidding; and

WHEREAS, In modern construction of highways, dams, bridges and other structures, cement is one of the elements most used, and the most important factor in cost; and

WHEREAS, The State of California has announced a program for highway construction for the next biennium of $106,500,000; the county of Los Angeles is constructing a flood control dam at a cost of over $25,000,000, in which 3,200,000 barrels of cement will be used; the city of Los Angeles, with a program of street improvement, which it is estimated will equal in cost the 1928 expenditures, approximating $27,000,000, and other municipalities in proportion; and

WHEREAS, There is a reputed cement trust in this State, composed of manufacturers and dealers in cement forming a combination to control and maintain high and uniform prices, by stifling free competition thereby increasing the costs of all improvements in which cement is used, which is evidenced by reports from the State Purchasing Department, showing bids of all manufacturers bidding to be the same, thereby depriving the department of the benefit of advantageous prices through free competition, and the same conditions are reported in municipal purchases and by private contractors; now therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate of the State of California, That a special committee of five members of the Senate be appointed by the President of the Senate to ascertain the fact whether or not an illegal combination or conspiracy exists among manufacturers and dealers in cement, to control the market price of cement in the State of California by limiting production, suppressing free competition or other means, and upon the conclusion of such investigation to report to the Senate the results thereof, together with such recommendations as the committee shall deem proper.

Resolved further, That said committee be, and it hereby is authorized and empowered to do any and all things necessary to make a full and complete investigation of the matters and subjects hereinbefore enumerated, or recited, and to that end to employ all necessary clerical, expert and legal assistants, and said committee is hereby authorized and empowered to summon witnesses, require the production of persons, books, accounts, agreements, minutes of meetings, documents, records and papers of every kind, to issue subpoenas and to take all necessary means to compel the attendance of witnesses and to procure testimony; and the members of said committee are, and each of them is, hereby authorized to administer oaths; and all the provisions of article VIII of chapter 2, title I, part III of the Political Code of this State, relative to the attendance and examination of witnesses before the Legislature and committees thereof, shall apply to the committee appointed under this resolution; and the Sergeant-at-Arms of the Senate is hereby authorized and directed to serve any and all subpoenas and orders or other process that may be issued by said committee, when directed so to do by the chairman thereof; that said committee be given leave to sit during the sessions of the Senate and during the recess, at such place or places as the committee may determine; that it report as speedily as possible, the results of its investigation to the Senate, with such recommendations as it may deem proper, relative to abuses or wilful violation of the anti-trust law (Cartwright Act), and the particulars, if any, wherein said law should be strengthened and made more effective to prevent illegal combinations or conspiracies in restraint of trade.

Resolved, That the sum of $2,500 be and the same hereby is made available for the purpose of defraying the expenses of such committee in said investigation, to be paid from the contingent fund of the Senate, and the State Controller is hereby authorized and directed to draw his warrants in favor of the chairman of said committee for such expenditures as may be certified to him from time to time by the chairman of said committee, and the State Treasurer is hereby authorized and directed to pay the same.

Motion carried.

REPORT.

The following report was presented by Senator Fellom, and ordered printed in the Journal:

DIGEST OF THE REPORT OF THE INVESTIGATION OF THE CALIFORNIA HIGHWAY COMMISSION OF THE CONSTRUCTION AND OPERATION OF TOLL BRIDGES IN CALIFORNIA AS AUTHORIZED AND DIRECTED BY THE STATE LEGISLATURE, PURSUANT TO AN ACT APPROVED MAY 19, 1927, 1927 STATUTES, CHAPTER 636

The cost and operation of the privately owned toll bridge is excessive.

Tolls are far in excess of those necessary to operate and amortize the cost of similar State built and operated structures. The rates of tolls on the Carquinez and Antioch bridges "indicate that the cost of public service on the present bridges is at least 88 per cent higher than it would have been on similar bridges constructed and operated by the State."

The State can not acquire private toll structures after their construction at a value consistent with that for which the State or counties can build or operate them.

As an alternative for the privately owned and operated toll bridges, the report recommends that "necessary steps be taken to permit the State or counties to finance or build toll bridges" by the issuance of bonds payable out of the income of such structures.

The conclusions contained in the report are summarized as follows:

1. The expense of promotion and organization of a privately owned toll bridge is in many cases a major item in its cost. The report states that promotion and organization expenses in the case of the Carquinez and Antioch bridges totaled $1,166,776. Compared with this the organization costs of the same bridges had they been publicly financed and built by the State is estimated at $153,500. Promotion and organization expenses of the San Mateo-Hayward bridge, including some money and stock allotments, are estimated at $785,670 as compared with an organization charge of not to exceed $160,000 for a similar State built structure.

2. Private interests have been quick to recognize the possibility of capitalizing for their own benefit the huge investment made by the public in State and county highways. In the case of the Carquinez bridge it is estimated that private interests anticipated State recognition by at least five years.

3. It is charged that private promoters often build or attempt to build toll bridges on locations where the traffic does not justify them. This is done for the apparent purpose of collecting promotion fees or because the probability of future increase in traffic seems to justify a present investment.

4. The cost of tolls on the San Mateo-Hayward bridge, if the structure had been State financed and built, but operated on a toll basis, is estimated at about 25 per cent of the present authorized toll schedule for the 47-year period that constitutes the life of the franchise.

5. The cost of financing privately owned toll bridges is declared excessive. Thus the report states that the cost of financing the Carquinez and Antioch bridges, owned by the American Toll Bridge Company, includes a stock bonus of 500,000 shares and an item of $673,853 for bond discount. Computing the stock at par value of $1 a share, the discount on a $6,500,000 bond issue totals $1,176,753. The bonds bear 7 per cent on $4,500,000 and 8 per cent on $2,000,000 as compared with 4 1/2 per cent for which State bonds can be sold at par or 6 per cent if bonds secured by the income of the bridge were used. On the San Mateo-Hayward bridge, the interest rate on bond financing, including all charges, is given as 7 1/2 per cent and for the Dumbarton bridge 7 3/4 per cent.

6. As far as the investigators were able to ascertain, no actual money was paid for any of the 120,000 shares of common stock issued by the company building the San Mateo-Hayward bridge. On the lowest traffic estimate the stock will have a present worth of $33 per share with a reasonable possibility that it will go to $79.50 per share. This stock is held by those directly interested in the bridge. The worth ($3,960,000 to $9,540,000) will accrue to the common stock owners without capital investment other than services rendered prior to the opening of the bridge.

7. The reproduction costs by the State of the Carquinez and Antioch bridges is estimated at $7,675,900 as compared with the actual cost for the structures of $9,520,789 to the American Toll Bridge Company. The difference in cost is attributed in part to lack of competitive bidding. In general it is estimated that the cost of constructing a privately owned toll bridge is from 10 per cent to 25 per cent higher than for public structure.

8. The cost of operation of these two bridges is declared excessive as compared with bridges built and operated by the State. The figures are: Combined annual cost of operating Carquinez and Antioch bridges, $1,176,000; estimated cost if built and operated by the State (6 per cent financing), $918,600.

It is deduced that average tolls on the Carquhar bridge until 1948, when the bridge becomes free of toll, and operated by the State, would be 44 cents a vehicle as compared to an average toll of 82 cents under present conditions. It is shown by the State that a $1 per cent basis, the average State toll would be as high as 104 cents a vehicle in 1948, and 115 cents for pleasure cars and 138 cents for commercial vehicles would operate and amortize the cost of the structure during the life of the franchise (1939-1977) as compared with the following authorized tolls for the private enterprise: 1939 to 1950, 92 cents for pleasure cars, $1.75 for commercial cars; 1950-1957, 56 cents for pleasure cars, $1.90 for commercial vehicles; 1957 to 1977, 38 cents for pleasure cars, $1.13 for commercial vehicles.

9. The further construction of all privately owned toll bridges should be prohibited.

In discussing the highway situation generally as it affects toll roads, the report calls attention to the fact that in California 95 per cent of the roads and bridges are owned and operated either by the State or by counties.

"It should not be necessary for special private capital be allowed," the report continues, "the paid and unimproved lands of the highway system and toll bridges or roads that will take profits from the public highway system. . . . The average cost of highway service on the entire public highway system."

"The existing construction and maintenance of the entire highway system should be from a standpoint of the entire State, rather than that of a city or county, or view as a city or county. . . . The argument that a city or county can make money from a toll bridge is fundamentally wrong. It is not economically sound that the expense of one county or city should be met by the roads of any other county or city, and that the State highway system and its toll exact a profit from the State at the expense of those highways and toll bridges and bridges."

"The present conditions threaten the State and its toll roads and toll highways as a State highway system and toll bridges."

Existing laws governing the issuance of franchises for toll bridges, as well as their construction and operation, are analyzed. If it is decided to continue to grant franchises for toll structures to private parties, it is recommended that the right to grant such franchises be vested either in the Carquhar Highway Commission or be made subject to the approval of that body, and that the rates of tolls be fixed by the Railroad Commission. The report also points out that the rates of tolls on toll bridges and the method of granting franchises have varied from 1872 and 1881. The report, continuing from this fact, says: "No amendments have been made since 1881 to change the principle of the operation of these laws. They are based upon the principle of granting toll roads to the counties and therefore are found to be based on a basis inconsistent with the existing law of a State highway system."

It is further recommended that the law vesting authority over franchises in a county on the left bank descending of a stream is amended to grant franchises for privately owned and operated structures are to be continued. This provision is declared unconstitutional in the case of San Francisco Bay.

It is suggested that power be given to the Highway Commission or to the Department of Public Works to "construct, construct and operate" toll bridges and to license the same by issuing tolling bonds, "issuing its tolling bonds, thereby the income from tolls."

If the Legislature has the power to do so, it is recommended that legislation be enacted giving the Highway Commission or the Department of Public Works authority to operate existing privately owned toll bridges by purchase. Methods of operation and toll rates are discussed and the commission is expressed that compensation be the only method of operating toll bridges. It is stated that there is a wide variation in the value placed upon a structure, depending upon the valuation method employed.

It is suggested that the responsibility of all of the privately owned toll bridges in California, under the operation of the State, be operated in California in 1929, will require a capital investment of $20,000,000, if the same toll is based on the cost of bridges to the toll bridge companies. The total cost of reconstruction of all of these bridges by the State is estimated at $16,250,000.

Computed on State traffic projections and a 4 per cent reimbursement basis, the report finds that the price of the Carquhar and Arroyo bridges would be $11,840,400 and of the San Mateo Highway bridge, $14,457,400. Even paying $11,840,400 for the Carquhar and Arroyo bridges and assuming their expenses with a 4 per cent basis, the report declares that the present average toll of 82 cents per vehicle on the Carquhar bridge and $4.20 cents per vehicle on the Arroyo bridge can be reduced to 52 cents and 61 cents, respectively. A substantial reduction can also be made, the report declares, in the tolls that its franchise would permit the San Mateo Highway bridge to charge when that company is opened to toll.

The report calls attention to the fact that not all of the toll bridges on the State are owned and operated by the State, but that all are more or less important links of highway traffic. Their operation would undoubtedly require additional expenditures for maintenance with the State system. The report discusses at some length this phase of the subject, and analyzes the bridge locations both with reference to the service that it affords travel and the service afforded by alternate routes. The same analysis is made of proposed toll bridge projects.

The report is based upon a study and an analysis of the seven privately owned toll bridges in California. These include three bridges owned and operated by the Sears Point Toll Road Company in Solano and Sacramento counties; two bridges over the Sacramento and San Joaquin rivers, owned and operated by the American Bridge Company, one known as the Carquinez bridge, the other as the Antioch bridge; the Dumbarton bridge crossing the southern arm of the San Francisco Bay, owned and operated by the Dumbarton Bridge Company; a bridge owned and operated by the California Arizona Bridge Company, crossing the Colorado River about 3 1/2 miles east of Blythe in Riverside County, and known as the Phoenix bridge; a bridge now being constructed across San Francisco Bay between San Mateo and Hayward by the San Francisco Toll Bridge Company, and which is to be known as the San Mateo-Hayward bridge. A complete report on the proposed, existing type of structure, construction and operation of the structures is made. All these bridges, with the exception of the Ebbensburg bridge, are located in the vicinity of San Francisco Bay.

In addition, proposed toll structures for which franchises have been asked are listed. These include:

Bridge across San Pablo Bay, from a point near Richmond to a point near San Rafael; O. H. Klutt, franchise applicant.

Bridge crossing San Francisco Bay from a point opposite Alameda in Alameda County, to a point near Tiburon, in Marin County; franchise granted to L. A. Tassinari by Alameda County.

Thirty-nine applications to bridge San Francisco Bay from San Francisco to some point in the East Bay cities.

Applications to bridge the Golden Gate.

Effort to secure a franchise for a toll bridge across San Diego Bay from San Diego to Coronado.

The report analyzes these various proposed projects. The recommendation is expressed that the San Francisco Bay bridge from San Francisco to Alameda is feasible, may be publicly financed and constructed.

Preparation and Introduction of Bills. Introduction and First Reading.

21. Any Senator desiring to introduce a bill shall rise in his seat and address the President, and upon being recognized shall present the same. The title shall be announced by the Secretary, the bill shall be read the first time and thereupon referred by the President to a standing committee.

Joint and Concurrent Resolutions and Constitutional Amendments.

22. Joint and concurrent resolutions and constitutional amendments shall be treated the same as bills; provided, that they shall have but one reading, which reading shall occur after they have been reported by committee.

Introduction of Bills by a Committee.

23. Any committee may introduce a bill germane to any subject within the proper consideration of such committee, whereupon the bill shall immediately be read the first time, ordered to print and placed upon the second-reading file.

Introduction of Bills After the Constitutional Recess.

24. The Committee on Rules shall constitute a standing committee on introduction of bills to serve after the constitutional recess. All motions for leave to introduce bills after the constitutional recess shall be sent to the desk in writing, under the order of "Introduction of Bills." The motion shall give the title of the bill and shall be accompanied by the bill. The bill shall thereupon be referred to the Committee on Introduction of Bills.

The committee shall examine bills referred to it with particular reference to the question as to whether there is already any bill in either house of the same character which might be amended to effect the result sought and generally as to the advisability of introducing the measure.

No bill shall be introduced without the consent of three-fourths of the members, after report thereupon by the Committee on Introduction of Bills, nor shall more than two bills be introduced by any one member after the constitutional recess.

No debate shall be allowed on any motion to refer a bill or resolution to a committee.

Order of Reference.

26. When a resolution shall be offered, or a motion made to refer any subject and a different committee shall be proposed, the question shall be taken in the following order:

1. The Committee of the Whole Senate.
2. A Standing Committee.
3. A Select Committee.

Reference with Special Instructions.

27. No amendment shall be received for discussion at the third reading of any bill; but it shall at all times be in order, before the final passage of such bill, to move its reference to a select committee under special instructions to amend. Adoption of amendments to any bill by the Senate prior to third reading, other than the pull bill, shall not preclude subsequent consideration in committee or on the third reading of the bill, of such amendments or any part thereof, by the Senate.

Reference of Assembly Bills.

28. When an Assembly bill has been received by the Senate, with a message announcing that it has passed the Assembly, such bill shall be read the first time and be referred by the President to a standing committee; provided, however, that when an Assembly bill is received, the text of which is stated by a member to be identical with that of the Senate bill which has already been considered and reported by a standing committee of the Senate, such Assembly bill shall be referred to the Committee on Engrossment, Enrollment and Printing for comparison, which committee shall report, without delay, whether or not such bill is identical with the Senate bill. If reported identical, such Assembly bill shall be substituted for the Senate bill, shall take its place on the second reading file and be considered as having received the same committee recommendation as the Senate bill; provided, that the fact that the bills are identical shall be entered in the Journal. Such Senate bill shall thereupon be placed upon the file of unfinished business.

Reference of Appropriation Bills.

29. All bills appropriating money from any fund shall be referred to the Committee on Finance before being read the second time. Concurrent resolutions for adjournment sine die shall in all cases, whether originating in the Senate or coming from the Assembly, be referred to the Committee on Finance.

Notice to Author of Bill.

30. The chairman or clerk of each committee of the Senate shall notify the author of any bill or resolution pending before such committee of the hour and place of hearing or acting upon such bill or proceeding.

Committee Amendments to Bills.

31. When amendments to a bill are reported by a committee, the clerk of such committee shall prepare three copies of each amendment, one to go with the bill to the Superintendent of State Printing, one to the Minute Clerk, and one to the Secretary of the Senate.

Reports of Committees.

32. All committees shall act upon bills referred to them as soon as practicable and when acted upon each bill shall be reported back to the Senate forthwith, and the chairman of each committee is charged with the observance of this rule; provided, that the Senate may at any time, by a majority vote, recall a bill from any committee.

Order of Considering Bills—Order of Making File.

33. When bills are reported from committees they shall be placed upon the General File, to be kept by the Secretary as follows: All bills when reported to the Senate by the committee shall be placed at the foot of the second-reading file, in the order in which the reports are made, and after the second reading they shall be placed at the foot of the third-reading file, in the order of reading, and precedence shall be given in the consideration of bills, in the following order: Second-reading file and third-reading file, unless otherwise ordered by unanimous consent or by a two-thirds vote of the Senate. The bills upon third reading shall be considered in the order in which they appear upon the file, unless otherwise ordered by unanimous consent or by vote of majority of the members present: such vote to be taken by roll call; provided, that if a bill is passed on file for any reason, other than absence of the author by leave of the Senate, note of the fact shall be made in the General File, and when passed on file a second time, the bill shall be ordered at the foot of the file, and notice of the fact of the bill having been passed on file prior to the order placing it at the foot of the file shall be omitted from the General File.

The General File.

34. The General File shall be the special order for each day between such hours as the Senate may determine, unless sooner disposed of; but no bill shall lose its place upon the file by expiration of the time or by adjournment of the Senate while it is under consideration.

Special Order.

35. Any subject may, by vote of a majority of those voting, be made a special order, and when the time fixed for its consideration arrives, the presiding officer shall lay it before the Senate.

Three Readings of Bills.

36. Every bill shall be read on three several days previous to its passage (unless in case of urgency, two-thirds of the membership of the Senate in which it is being considered shall by vote of the ayes and noes dispense with this provision).

Ordering Bills to Third Reading.

37. After being read the second time bills shall be ordered by the President to third reading (or, in the case of Senate bills, to engrossment and third reading). When any member makes objection to any bill thus being ordered to third reading, the final question for such bill shall be, "Shall the bill be ordered to third reading?"

Bills Considered During Last Seven Days.

38. No Senate bill shall be passed by the Senate within seven days of the time set for adjournment sine die of the two houses of the Legislature unless permission to vote on such a bill be granted by a three-fourths vote of the entire membership of the Senate, voting by roll call.

Questions and Motions--Precedence of Motions During Debate

39. When a question is under debate, no motion shall be received but the following privileged questions, which shall have precedence in the following order:

1. To adjourn.
2. For a call of the Senate.
3. To lay on the table.
4. To postpone to a day certain.
5. To commit.
6. To amend.
7. To postpone indefinitely.

Provided, however, that during a call of the Senate, it may consider and transact any matter or business that the Senators then present shall unanimously decide to consider, but no call of the Senate shall be had, during a call of the Senate, on any matter so taken up or considered while the Senate is under call. When a call of the Senate is ordered, pending the completion of a roll call, the pending roll call shall become unfinished business; the consideration of which shall be continued until further proceedings under the call of the Senate are dispensed with, when it will forthwith become the order of business before the Senate.

Amendment or Division of Question

40. An amendment may be laid on the table without prejudice to the bill. When an amendment proposed to any pending measure shall be laid on the table, it shall not carry with it or prejudice such measure.

If the question in debate contains several propositions, any Senator may have the same divided; except a motion to strike out and insert shall not be divided. The rejection of a motion to strike out and insert one proposition shall not prevent a motion to strike out and insert a different proposition, nor shall it prevent a motion to simply strike out, nor shall the rejection of a motion to strike out prevent a motion to strike out and insert; but pending a motion to strike out and insert, the part to be stricken out and the part to be inserted shall each be regarded, for the purpose of amendment, as a question. Motions to amend the part to be stricken out shall have precedence.

Restrictions as to Amendments

41. A substitute or amendment must relate to the same subject as the original bill, resolution or constitutional amendment under consideration.

Vote Required for Amendments.

42. A constitutional amendment or bill requiring a vote of two-thirds of the members elected to the Senate for final adoption or passage may be amended by a majority of those voting.

Procedure of Debate--Seconding and Announcement of Motion

43. No motion shall be debated until the same be seconded and distinctly announced by the President; and it shall be reduced to writing if desired by the President or any Senator, and read by the Secretary before the same shall be debated.

Regulations as to Speaking.

44. 1. When a Senator desires to address the Senate he shall rise in his place, address the President, and when recognized he shall proceed to speak.

2. No Senator shall speak more than twice in any one debate on the same day, and at the same stage of the bill, without leave; and Senators who have once spoken shall not again be entitled to the floor (except for explanation) so long as any Senator who has not spoken desires to speak.

3. No Senator shall be interrupted when speaking, and no question shall be asked him except those through the presiding officer.

4. The author of a bill, motion, or resolution shall have the privilege of closing the debate.

Securing of the Floor.

45. When two or more Senators arise at the same time to address the Senate, the presiding officer shall designate the Senator who is entitled to the floor.

46. When a Senator shall be called to order he shall sit down until the President shall have determined whether he is in order or not; and every question of order shall be decided by the President, subject to an appeal to the Senate by any Senator. If a Senator be called to order for words spoken, the objectionable language shall immediately be taken down in writing by the Secretary of the Senate.

The Previous Question.

47. The previous question shall be put in the following form: "Shall the question be now put?" It shall be admitted only when demanded by a majority of the Senators present upon division; and its effect shall be to put an end to all debate except that the author of the bill or the amendments shall have the right to close, and the question under discussion shall thereupon be immediately put to a vote. On a motion for the previous question prior to a vote being taken by the Senate, a call of the Senate shall be in order.

48. When a motion is adopted to close the doors of the Senate, on the discussion of any business which may, in the opinion of the Senate, require an executive session, the President shall require all persons, except the Senators, President of the Senate, Secretary, Minute Clerk, and Sergeant-at-Arms, to withdraw, and during the discussion of said business the doors shall remain closed. Every Senator and officer present shall keep secret all matters and proceedings concerning which secrecy shall be enjoined by order of the Senate.

Voting by Senate—Calling Ayes and Noes.

49. When the ayes and noes shall be called for by three members present, every member within the bar of the Senate at the time the question was put shall declare openly, and without debate, assent or dissent to the question. In taking the ayes and noes, and upon call of the Senate, the names of the Senators shall be taken alphabetically. When the ayes and noes shall be taken upon any question in pursuance of this rule, no Senator shall be permitted, under any circumstances whatever, to vote after the announcement of the vote by the presiding officer.

Excuse From Voting.

50. When a Senator declines to vote on a call of his name he shall be required to assign his reasons therefor, and having assigned them, the presiding officer shall submit the question to the Senate: "Shall the Senator, for the reasons assigned by him, be excused from voting?" which shall be decided without debate. And these proceedings shall be had after the roll call and before the result is announced, and any further proceedings in reference thereto shall be after such announcement.

Reconsideration of Vote.

51. On the day succeeding that on which a final vote on any bill, concurrent or joint resolution, or constitutional amendment has been taken, said vote may be reconsidered on motion of any Senator: provided, notice of intention to move such reconsideration shall have been given on the day on which such final vote was taken, by a Senator voting with the prevailing side; and it shall not be in order to reconsider on the day on which such final vote was taken. Said motion for reconsideration shall have precedence over every other motion, except a motion to adjourn. It shall require twenty-one votes to carry any motion to reconsider the vote by which any bill, concurrent or joint resolution, has been passed or defeated, fourteen votes to reconsider the vote by which any constitutional amendment has been passed, and twenty-seven votes to carry any motion to reconsider the vote by which any constitutional amendment has been defeated. Debate on Motion to Reconsider.

54. A Senator, after a notice to reconsider is given, as provided in Rule 53, shall, at the reconsideration thereof, present the main question in his argument thereon, and the same shall be debated by the Senate, provided that the subject matter is debatable, and the vote on reconsideration shall be on the merits of the main question.

BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS.

Scope of Word "Bill."

4. Whenever the word "bill" is used in these rules it shall include constitutional amendments, joint and concurrent resolutions.

Joint and Concurrent Resolutions.

5. Joint resolutions are those which relate to matters connected with the federal government. All other resolutions relating to matters to be treated by both houses of the Legislature are concurrent resolutions.

Resolutions Treated as Bills.

6. Joint resolutions, concurrent resolutions and constitutional amendments shall be treated in all respects as bills: except that they shall be read but one time in each house and that they shall not be deemed bills within the meaning of section 2 of article IV of the constitution, and shall not be referred to the Committee on Introduction of Bills, and shall not require a vote to authorize their introduction. As in the case of bills, they shall be engrossed in the house in which they originate before being voted upon.

PREPARATION AND INTRODUCTION OF BILLS.

Title of Bill.

7. The title of every bill introduced shall convey an accurate idea of the contents of the bill and shall be indicative of the scope of the act and the object to be accomplished. In amending a code section, the mere reference to the section by number shall not be deemed sufficient.

Division of Bill Into Sections.

8. Bills amending more than one section of existing laws shall contain a separate section for each section amended.

Bills which are not amendatory of existing laws shall be divided into short sections, where this can be done without destroying the sense of any particular section, to the end that future amendments may be made without the necessity of setting forth and repeating sections of unnecessary length.

Changes in Existing Law to be Marked by Author.

9. In case of a bill amending a code section or a general law, any new matter shall be underlined and any matter to be omitted shall have a single horizontal line through the center. When printed the new matter shall be printed in italics and the matter to be omitted shall be printed in canceled or "strikeout" type.

Committee on Revision and Printing to Examine Bills When Introduced.

10. Unless otherwise ordered by the house in which the bill was introduced, all bills before being printed shall be immediately sent to the Committee on Revision and Printing, which shall examine the bill, with the aid of the Legislative Counsel Bureau. The committee, by and with the written assent of the author filed with it, shall have authority to correct any clerical error such as in orthography, adding or correcting the enacting clause, mistakes in numbering sections and references thereto, errors in grammar, phraseology, or in the form of the bill; provided, that no bill which bears the stamp of the Legislative Counsel Bureau showing that before introduction it has been examined as to form, shall be sent to the Committee on Revision and Printing.

NOTE—The submission of bill copy to Legislative Counsel Bureau for approval of form before introduction will expedite its course.

Bills Introduced to Indicate Changes in Existing Laws.

11. The Committee on Revision and Printing shall see to it that rules 7 and 9 of these joint rules are observed by the author, and that the bill shall not be sent to the printer until the provisions of these rules have been carried out.

Reports of Committee on Revision and Printing.

12. The Committee on Revision and Printing shall return to the Secretary of the Senate or Chief Clerk of the Assembly all bills in the order in which they were sent to it, but shall not retain any bill for longer than three legislative days, unless otherwise ordered.

13. Bills introduced in either house shall be endorsed with the date of introduction.

PRINTING AND DISTRIBUTION OF BILLS.

Manner of Printing Bills, etc.

14. The State Printer shall observe the following directions in printing all bills, constitutional amendments, joint and concurrent resolutions:

(a) The body of such bills and resolutions shall be printed in solid unspaced form so that the same type shall be used both before and after enrollment.

(b) All titles of bills, resolutions, etc., shall be set in italics, statute form, and the length of the lines used in the titles shall not exceed that of the body of the bill.

(c) The lines of all printed bills shall be numbered by page and not by sections, and amendments shall be identified by reference to title, page and line only; provided, however, that concurrent resolutions approving city or county or city and county charters or amendments thereto may be set in smaller type and without line numbers.

(d) Enrolled bills may be inclosed in stock cover.

Printing of Amendments.

15. All bills amended by either house shall be immediately reprinted: in the case new matter is added by the amendment such new matter shall be printed in italics in the printed bill, and in the case of matter being omitted, the matter to be omitted shall be printed in type bearing a horizontal line through the center and commonly known as "strikeout" type. When a bill is amended in either house, the first or previous markings shall be omitted. When a bill amendatory of a code section or general law is engrossed, all figures or symbols shall be removed.

Distribution of Bills During Constitutional Recess.

16. All requests for mailing or distribution by the members shall be filed with the Secretary of the Senate or Chief Clerk of the Assembly, who shall compile the same with the elimination of duplication as a general mailing list. The distribution of bills, constitutional amendments, joint and concurrent resolutions shall be systematized as follows: Members' clerks and legislative officers' files, one hundred fifty full sets; to authors, fifty copies of their own bills; accredited newspaper representatives, twenty-five; to public and law libraries, newspapers, county officials, and other civic, commercial, fraternal or industrial organizations as the Secretary of the Senate and Chief Clerk of the Assembly may compile from the recommendations of the members of both houses, one thousand two hundred copies; to State officers, State Library and Secretary of State, two hundred copies; to legislative committees, bill room files and public requests—confined to single copies of bills designated—one thousand copies. The State Printer shall cause to be printed in the standard form adopted by the Senate and the Assembly as many copies of all bills, constitutional amendments and joint or concurrent resolutions as may be necessary to conform to the provisions of this rule.

A similar number and distribution shall be made of the Semifinal History and Final Calendar.

Distribution of Bills After Constitutional Recess.

17. Following the recess, new bills introduced shall be forwarded to the public libraries and law libraries only, and one copy each of amended bills as may be requested. Weekly Histories and Journals shall be distributed generally following the recess, upon such schedule as the Secretary of the Senate and Chief Clerk of the Assembly may designate.

OTHER LEGISLATIVE PRINTING.

18. The State Printer shall print one thousand copies of the Journal of each day's proceedings of each house; at the end of the session he shall also print a sufficient number of copies, properly paged after being corrected and indexed by the Secretary of the Senate and Chief Clerk of the Assembly, to bind in book form as the Journal of the respective houses of the Legislature as required by law.

What Shall Be Printed in the Journal.

19. The following shall always be printed in the Journal of each house:

(a) Messages from the Governor and messages from the other house, and the titles of all bills, joint and concurrent resolutions and constitutional amendments when introduced in, offered to, or acted upon by the houses, and the title and TEXT of joint and concurrent resolutions and constitutional amendments when adopted by the house; provided, that in the case of a concurrent resolution approving the adoption of a charter or charter amendments of any kind, the text of such charter or charter amendments need not be printed in the Journal.

(b) Every vote taken in the house, and a statement of the contents of each petition, memorial or paper presented to the house.

(c) A true and accurate account of the proceedings of the house, when not acting as a committee of the whole.

20. A daily file of bills ready for consideration shall be printed each day for each house, and copies of the file of each house shall be distributed each day to all of the members of both houses.

Printing of History.

21. Each house shall cause to be printed on Monday of each week during the session, a complete History of all bills, joint or concurrent resolutions and constitutional amendments originating in or acted upon by the respective houses.

Such History shall show the action taken upon each measure up to and including the legislative day preceding its issuance.

For each legislative day intervening there shall be printed a Supplementary History showing the action taken upon any measure since the issuance of the complete History. A regular form shall be prescribed and no other form shall be used.

Immediately following the adjournment for the constitutional recess the History shall be compiled and printed to date of recess.

Authority for Printing Orders.

22. The Superintendent of State Printing shall not print for use of either house any matter other than provided by law or by these rules, except upon a written order signed by the Secretary of the Senate or the Chief Clerk of the Assembly. The Secretary of the Senate and the Chief Clerk of the Assembly may also, when necessity requires it, order certain matter printed in advance of the regular order, by the issuance of a rush order.

RECORD OF BILLS.

Secretary and Chief Clerk to Keep Register.

23. The secretary of the Senate and the Chief Clerk of the Assembly shall keep a register, in which shall be recorded every action taken by the Senate and Assembly on every bill, concurrent or joint resolution or constitutional amendment.

Secretary and Chief Clerk Shall Endorse Bills.

24. The Secretary of the Senate and the Chief Clerk of the Assembly shall endorse on every original bill a statement of any action taken by the Senate and Assembly.

ACTION IN ONE HOUSE ON BILL TRANSMITTED FROM THE OTHER.

Bills Read and Referred to Committee.

25. When a Senate bill has been received by the Assembly or an Assembly bill by the Senate, with a message announcing that the same has passed the Senate or Assembly, such bill shall be read the first time by the Secretary or the Chief Clerk and referred to a standing committee by the presiding officer, unless otherwise ordered by the house.

After a Bill Has Been Passed by the Senate or Assembly.

26. When a bill (if it be a Senate bill) has been received from the Senate by the Assembly, after its passage, or (if it be an Assembly bill) has been received from the Assembly by the Senate after its passage, it shall be taken up by the Senate or Assembly, as the case may be, under the regular order of business ("Senate messages" or "Assembly messages"), read the first time, unless otherwise ordered by the house, and shall then be assigned to the proper committee, unless otherwise ordered, who shall act upon the same as soon as practicable, and report the same back to the Senate or Assembly forthwith, and the chairman of each committee is charged with observance of this rule.

Special File.

27. On the second day after the close of the recess provided for in section 2, article IV of the constitution, the Senate and Assembly shall each adopt and provide a special file upon which shall be placed: In the Senate, only Assembly bills that have passed the Assembly; and in the Assembly, only Senate bills that have passed the Senate. Such special file shall be taken up at two o'clock p.m. of each day in the Assembly and at two o'clock and thirty minutes p.m. of each day in the Senate and be considered at least one hour and a half after being so taken up unless its consideration shall be completed in a lesser period of time. 32. When a message shall be sent from either house it shall be announced at the door by the Sergeant-at-Arms, and shall be respectfully communicated to the presiding officer by the person by whom it may be sent.

PASSAGE AND ENROLLING OF BILLS.

Passage of Bills Taking Effect Immediately.

33. Each house shall act in the usual course upon all bills that may be made to take effect immediately, under the provisions of section 1, article IV of the constitution.

Passage of Urgency Provisions in Bills.

34. Upon the third reading of an act which is an urgency measure within the meaning of section 1, article IV of the State constitution, the presiding officer shall direct that the section of said act setting forth the facts constituting the necessity for such urgency (which shall be known as the urgency section) be then read and put to vote. The question shall be thus stated: "Shall this section, setting forth the urgency features of this bill, be passed?" If upon such final vote two-thirds of all the members elected to the house in which the vote is being taken shall not vote in the affirmative, no further action shall be taken on the bill; but, in case an identical bill without such an emergency clause be again introduced into such house, such bill shall be placed on file without reference to any committee.

Passage of Bills Preceding Final Adjournment.

35. No Senate bill shall be passed by the Senate and no Assembly bill shall be passed by the Assembly within seven days of the time set for adjournment sine die of the two houses of the Legislature, unless permission to vote on such bill shall be granted by a three-fourths vote of the house of its origin after being recommended by the presiding officer thereof.

Enrollment of Bill After Passage.

36. After a bill shall have passed both houses, it shall be duly enrolled after being carefully compared, by the engrossing and enrolling clerk and committee of the house in which it originated, with the engrossed bill, as passed in the two houses. It shall then receive the signatures provided for in joint rule 37, and be presented to the Governor of the State.

Enrolling Committee to Present Bills to Governor

37. After a bill shall have been thus passed in each house, it shall be presented by the engrossing and enrolling committee of the house in which it originated to the Governor of the State for his approval (it being first indorsed by the presiding officers of the two houses, and by the Secretary of the Senate and the Chief Clerk of the Assembly). The said committee shall report the day of presentation to the Governor, which time shall be carefully entered on the Journal of the house in which the bill originated.

AMENDMENTS AND CONFERENCES

Amendments to Amended Bills Must Be Attached

38. Whenever a bill or resolution which shall have been passed in one house shall be amended in the other, it shall immediately be reprinted as amended by the house making such amendment or amendments. Such amendment or amendments shall be attached to the bill or resolution so amended, and indorsed "adopted" and such amendment or amendments, if concurred in by the house in which such bill or resolution originated, shall be indorsed "concurred in," and such indorsement shall be signed by the Secretary or Assistant Secretary of the Senate, or the Chief Clerk or Assistant Clerk of the Assembly, as the case may be, provided, however, that an amendment to the title of a bill adopted after the passage of such bill shall not necessitate reprinting, but such amendment must be concurred in by the house in which such bill originated.

To Concur or Refuse to Concur in Amendments.

39. In case the Senate amend and pass an Assembly bill, or the Assembly amend and pass a Senate bill, the Senate (if it be a Senate bill) or the Assembly (if it be an Assembly bill) must either "concur" or "refuse to concur" in the amendments. If they refuse to recede, the presiding officer shall appoint a committee of three (3) on conference and the Secretary or the Chief Clerk shall immediately notify the other house of the action taken and request the appointment of a like committee. Two of the members comprising such committee from each house shall be selected from those voting with the majority on the point about which the difference has arisen, and the other member from each house of such committee shall be selected from the minority, in the event there is a minority vote. The first Senator named on the free conference committee shall act as chairman of the committee from the Senate, and the first Assemblyman named on such committee shall act as chairman of the committee from the House, and the chairman thus selected shall arrange the time and place of all meetings and prepare or direct the preparation of reports. The Committee on Free Conference shall report to both the Senate and Assembly.

When Conference Committee Report Is in Order.

43. The presentation of the report of a Committee on Free Conference shall always be in order, except when the Journal is being read or a question of order or a motion to adjourn is pending, or during roll call, and, when received, the question of proceeding to the consideration of the report, if raised, shall be immediately passed upon, and shall be determined without debate.

If either house shall violate a joint rule a question of order may be raised in the other house and decided in the same manner as in the case of the violation of the rules of such house; and if it shall be decided that the joint rules have been violated, the bill involving such violation shall be returned to the house in which it originated, without further action. #### MOTION BY SENATOR SLATER.

Senator Slater moved that Senator Inman represent the Senate at the funeral of Judge E. C. Hart, to be held in Sacramento, January 19, 1929.

Motion unanimously carried.

RESOLUTION OF RESPECT.

Mr. President, Gentlemen of the Senate.

In accordance with the duty imposed upon us by a resolution of this Senate, we beg leave to submit the following token of sincere regret at the unexpected passing of the Honorable Elijah C. Hart, Associate Justice of the Third District Appellate Court.

It is not only most appropriate, but a measure of devotion to make a permanent record in the Journal of this body of a life so rich in service, in friendship, and in intellectual endowment.

As journalist, lawyer, judge and patriotic citizen, Justice Hart won his way into the lives and admiration of a legion of friends. He smiled through life and when the end came he closed his life's book with a smile. He died in the service and thus fulfilled his desire.

A "Covered Wagon Baby," his eyes first caught the light of day at the entrance to the State he so long honored and loved so well. He measured up to the heroism of pioneer ancestry. He was born while the chivalry of citizenship was yet in flower. He was well grounded in the basic principles which lengthened out in the after years into a full appreciation of true and sturdy manhood. He believed and lived the "golden rule" which measured out to others what he desired himself in the way of honesty and integrity.

Years ago Justice Hart served as a member of this Senate, and up to the time of his death he retained happy memories of that service. He delighted in after years to counsel the young beginners in legislation, and was ever a friend of youth, and interested in the enrichment and nobility of character. As a jurist he always endeavored to be just, and his motives were never questioned, but always praised. When death called him he was just where he would have been at the coming of the summons—in his office in the courts.

Justice Hart hated sham. He loved actions on the square and strictly upon the level. He had a heart full of kindness, and a genuineness of soul that came from a heart that beat true. His pathway through life reveals many bright inscriptions and shining remembrances that neither time nor death can efface. He has wrapped his garments about him and laid down to pleasant dreams, conscious that in the awakening he would participate in the joys that mingle at the dawn of the perfect day—the recompense of life. Therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate of the State of California, That it joins in the state-wide expression of regret at the passing of this good man, and by this resolution testifies that the State of California in the death of Justice Hart has lost one of her most useful men, a distinguished jurist and a friend of man. Be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be spread upon the minutes of this Senate and that the Secretary be instructed to forward a copy of the same to the family of the deceased.

HERBERT W. SLATER,
J. M. INMAN,
ARTHUR H. BREED, Committee.

Sec. 25. As soon as practicable after the return is filed the commissioner shall examine it and shall determine the correct amount of the tax. If the commissioner determines that the tax disclosed by the original return is less than the tax disclosed by his examination he shall mail notice to the taxpayer at its post-office address (which must appear on its report) of the additional tax proposed to be assessed against it. Such notice shall set forth the details of the proposed additional assessment and of computing said tax.

Within sixty days after the mailing of said notice the taxpayer may file with the commissioner a written protest against the levy of the proposed additional tax, as computed by the commissioner, specifying therein the grounds upon which the protest is based. The protest must be under oath.

If no such protest is so filed the amount of the tax shall be final upon the expiration of said sixty-day period. If a protest is so filed it shall be the duty of the commissioner to reconsider the computation and levy the tax complained of, and if the taxpayer has so requested in his protest, it shall be the duty of the commissioner to grant said taxpayer, or his authorized representatives, an oral hearing. After consideration of the protest and the evidence adduced in the event of such oral hearing, the commissioner's action upon the protest shall be final upon the expiration of the thirty days from the date when he mails to the taxpayer notice of his action, unless within that thirty-day period the taxpayer appeals in writing from the action of the commissioner to the state board of equalization. The appeal must be addressed and mailed to the state board of equalization at Sacramento, and a copy of the appeal addressed and mailed at the same time to the commissioner at Sacramento. The determination by said board upon said appeal of the amount of the tax shall be final unless set aside by a court of competent jurisdiction in an action filed by the taxpayer in the manner hereinafter provided. The controller of the state must be notified by the commissioner or by said board, as the case may be, of the final amount of the tax.

A certificate by the commissioner of the mailing of the notices specified in this section shall be prima facie evidence of the computation and levy of the deficiency in tax and of the giving of said notices."

NOES—Senator Hurley—1.

Bill ordered transmitted to the Assembly.

EXPLANATION OF VOTE BY SENATOR SWING.

The following explanation of vote was presented, and on motion of Senator Swing, ordered printed in the Journal:

In voting in favor of Senate Bill No. 509, I do so with considerable doubt as to the constitutionality of the bill on at least two points.

(a) Paragraph 2 of section 16 of article XIII authorizes an offset of certain taxes paid to the State and "political subdivisions thereof." It is doubtful if a city is a political subdivision of the State, and therefore the offset allowed by Senate Bill 509 for taxes paid to cities is not authorized and the provisions of the bill providing for such an offset may be unconstitutional.

(b) Paragraph 1 of said section 16 does not authorize an offset in favor of bonds for any tax paid upon real property, therefore the attempted offset may be unauthorized and if so can not be made. If this is so it follows that the real property offset in favor of corporations discriminates against bonds to such an extent that the bill may be unconstitutional for that reason.

The chairman of the Committee on Revenue and Taxation of the Senate has assured the Senate that the bill will withstand an attack on the ground of its unconstitutionality. In voting for the bill I am relying upon his assurance that the bill is not unconstitutional for the reasons mentioned. He assures us that his committee has received competent legal advice to that effect. I am therefore deferring my opinion as to the questions above mentioned in favor of that stated by the chairman of the Committee on Revenue and Taxation, and am therefore voting in favor of the bill, but with doubt as to its constitutionality as above stated.

RESOLUTION.

The following resolution was offered:

By Committee on Contingent Expenses:

Resolved, That the Controller be and he is hereby directed to draw his warrant on the contingent fund of the Senate in the sum of $500 in favor of the Secretary of the Senate and the Treasurer is hereby directed to pay the same. The same being for postage for the Senate.

That each and all of the above acts and declarations of the said Carlos S. Hardy, done and made between the first day of May, 1926, and the first day of April, 1927, were committed with the intention of preventing and obstructing a proper and unbiased investigation of the statement of the said Aimee Semple McPherson, that she had been kidnaped and held for ransom, by the said grand jury and the said district attorney, and with the intention of preventing and obstructing a proper, vigorous and diligent prosecution of the said Aimee Semple McPherson, in the event it was determined by the said grand jury or the said district attorney that the said Aimee Semple McPherson had committed a felony under the laws of the State of California.

That each and all of the acts above mentioned, had the effect of and did prevent and obstruct a proper and unbiased investigation of the statement of the said Aimee Semple McPherson, that she had been kidnaped and held for ransom, by the said grand jury and the said district attorney; and each and all of said acts did obstruct the prosecution of the said Aimee Semple McPherson when she was later charged with a felony, and the said complaint charging the said Aimee Semple McPherson with the commission of a felony was dismissed upon motion of the district attorney of Los Angeles County, after preliminary examination and a holding by the committing magistrate that said Aimee Semple McPherson and others be held to answer in the superior court of the State of California, in and for the county of Los Angeles for a felony committed by said Aimee Semple McPherson and the other defendants in said action.

That during all of the times mentioned in this Article of Impeachment, the said Carlos S. Hardy was a judge of the superior court of the State of California, in and for the county of Los Angeles, and that each and all of the acts hereinabove mentioned and set forth, so done and performed by him, were and are misconduct and misdemeanors committed in office by the said Carlos S. Hardy and brought disrepute, obloquy and dishonor to the superior court of the State of California.

ARTICLE III.

Hardy was acting as a judge of the superior court of the State of California in and for the county of Los Angeles, he received from one Minnie Kennedy and one Aimee Semple McPherson, the sum of twenty-five hundred dollars ($2,500.00), by a check bearing date said twelfth day of August, 1926, in the sum of twenty-five hundred dollars ($2,500.00) signed by the Echo Park Evangelistic Association, Incorporated, by Minnie Kennedy, which said check, the said Carlos S. Hardy did cash and receive therefor the sum of twenty-five hundred dollars ($2,500.00), for his own use and benefit; and that prior to the time the said Carlos S. Hardy received said sum of twenty-five hundred dollars, and during the time while he was a judge of the superior court of the State of California in and for the county of Los Angeles, said Aimee Semple McPherson had, during the month of May, 1926, disappeared at a place known as Ocean Park, California, and that subsequently on or about the twenty-second day of June, 1926, reappeared and returned to the city of Los Angeles, claiming that she had been kidnaped and held for ransom, and that subsequent to the time of the reappearance of the said Aimee Semple McPherson, the district attorney of the county of Los Angeles, State of California, claimed to have discovered evidence that said Aimee Semple McPherson had not in truth or in fact been kidnaped, and that, subsequent to the return of the said Aimee Semple McPherson and prior to the time of the receipt of the said sum of twenty-five hundred dollars ($2,500.00) by said Carlos S. Hardy, said Aimee Semple McPherson and said Minnie Kennedy were under investigation by the grand jury of the county of Los Angeles and the district attorney of the county of Los Angeles, to ascertain whether or not a felony had been committed by said Aimee Semple McPherson, or said Minnie Kennedy, or either or both of them, and that from the time of the disappearance of the said Aimee Semple McPherson, up to and including the date of the receipt of said sum of twenty-five hundred dollars ($2,500.00) by said Carlos S. Hardy, the said Carlos S. Hardy had counseled and acted as the attorney for said Aimee Semple McPherson and said Minnie Kennedy in connection with said investigation, and in furtherance of his said services to said Aimee Semple McPherson and Minnie Kennedy, said Carlos S. Hardy advised, counseled, instructed and directed with other attorneys employed in behalf of said Aimee Semple McPherson and Minnie Kennedy and with detectives employed in their behalf by the said Carlos S. Hardy, and with witnesses having knowledge, or alleging that they had knowledge, of the facts material to such disappearance and reappearance of said Aimee Semple McPherson, and with grand jurors, members of the grand jury of Los Angeles County, above mentioned, and with reporters, journalists and publicity men employed on behalf of the said Aimee Semple McPherson and Minnie Kennedy to create favorable public opinion through the press favorable to said Aimee Semple McPherson, and that said Carlos S. Hardy, using his position as judge of the said superior court, also directly for the purpose of creating favorable opinion for the said Aimee Semple McPherson and Minnie Kennedy, delivered public addresses over the radio and on the public platform, which were in character directly designed to create such favorable public opinion; and that the receipt and acceptance by said Carlos S. Hardy of the sum of twenty-five hundred dollars ($2,500.00) from said Minnie Kennedy and Aimee Semple McPherson, while he was a judge of the superior court of the State of California, in and for the county of Los Angeles, was a wrongful act and brought disrepute, obloquy and dishonor to the superior court of the State of California, and that the receipt of said sum of money by the said Carlos S. Hardy, under the circumstances hereinabove set forth, was misconduct and a misdemeanor in office by said Carlos S. Hardy.

ARTICLE IV.

That on or about the fifteenth day of August, 1928, while said Carlos S. Hardy was a judge of the superior court of the State of California in and for the county of Los Angeles, said Carlos S. Hardy interviewed one Wallace Moore, who was subsequently called as a witness in the case of People of the State of California vs. Aimee Semple McPherson et al., and which said Wallace Moore had partially identified a woman in an automobile with one Kenneth G. Ormiston at or near the city of Santa Barbara during the time of the alleged disappearance of said Aimee Semple McPherson, as Aimee Semple McPherson, and that in said interview the said Carlos S. Hardy informed the said Wallace Moore concerning the crime of perjury and the danger of attempting to identify the woman he had seen as Aimee Semple McPherson and the difficulty of being certain of absolute identification, and citing a case that had been tried before him, the said Carlos S. Hardy, wherein the defendant, charged with burglary, had been convicted upon a mistaken identification, and further informed the said Wallace Moore that a person making a mistake in identification would be liable for damages to the person injured thereby, and that ten years thereafter, when he might have accumulated a fair fortune if he had been instrumental in convicting the wrong party he might be sued by such party at any time during his lifetime; all of which conversations on the part of the said Carlos S. Hardy was intended by him, the said Carlos S. Hardy, to intimidate the said Wallace Moore as a witness who might be called in the case of People of the State of California vs. Aimee Semple McPherson et al.; and that said conversation on the part of the said Carlos S. Hardy, was intended by him, the said Carlos S. Hardy, to suppress, modify, or render useless, the testimony of the said Wallace Moore as a witness in said case of People of the State of California vs. Aimee Semple McPherson et al., all of which was misconduct and misdemeanor committed in office by the said Carlos S. Hardy, a judge of the superior court of the State of California in and for the county of Los Angeles.

ARTICLE V.

That during the month of January, 1928, the case of the People of the State of California vs. Edward Hickman had been set for trial in the department of the superior court of the State of California, in and for the county of Los Angeles, presided over by the said Carlos S. Hardy, and while he was a judge of the said court, he, the said Carlos S. Hardy, caused the seats provided for spectators in his court room in the hall of justice in the city of Los Angeles, county of Los Angeles, State of California, to be numbered and caused tickets to be printed and numbers endorsed thereon, said numbers corresponding to the numbers on the said seats, and which said tickets were dated for the various days during which it was contemplated that the case of People of the State of California vs. Edward Hickman would be on trial, and caused and permitted said tickets to be distributed to the friends of the said Carlos S. Hardy and of his wife, to the end that no persons except those provided with said tickets would be admitted to the court room during the trial of the case of the People of the State of California vs. Edward Hickman, contrary to a provision in the constitution of the United States of America, and of the State of California, guaranteeing to all defendants the right of a public trial; all of which said acts on the part of the said Carlos S. Hardy were, and are, misconduct and misdemeanors committed in office by the said Carlos S. Hardy, and brought disrepute, obloquy and dishonor to the superior court of the State of California.

WHEREFORE, The said Assembly of the State of California, saving to themselves by protestation the liberty of exhibiting any other Articles of Impeachment against the said Carlos S. Hardy, as aforesaid, and also of the reply to the answers which he may make to the impeachment aforesaid, and of offering proof of the said matters

Honorable H. C. Nelson, Building.

DEAR SENATOR NELSON: I was astounded to read yesterday, in the columns of an afternoon paper, what purports to include the recommendations of the Tax Commission. Neither I nor any one in my office had ever before seen or heard of these recommendations, and I did not even know they were in existence.

This morning I talked with the chairman of the commission, and was informed that these recommendations had been worked out within the past week; that type-written copies had been prepared for the various members of the commission for correction and criticism before printing or submission to myself; and that some extra copy must have been obtained by the paper in question in some unknown and unauthorized manner. I am also told that this copy was evidently one in which changes and corrections made by members of the commission do not appear. Finally, I am told that the only copy of these recommendations ever delivered to the printer was first delivered at five o'clock last evening and not finally drafted until that time.

I am greatly displeased by this situation, partly because I have always endeavored to maintain absolute good faith as to various press correspondents, giving no story to one which is not given to all; partly because it is obviously due to members of the Legislature that any report should be placed in their hands before being given to the public; partly because I think it is due to myself that I should not first see in press columns that which has not as yet been submitted to me. The statement that the final report of the commission "is now in the hands of Governor C. C. Young" is absolutely without foundation.

I would reiterate that I had neither seen these recommendations, nor did I know that they were in existence. In fact, I had not expected to see them until they had been finally worked out, agreed upon by the commission, and submitted to me in type. I simply want you and the other members of the Senate to know the facts in this case; for any conception that either I or anyone in my office knew of this matter, or had anything to do with this premature publication, would involve a suggestion of absolutely inexcusable bad faith.

Yours very sincerely,

C. C. YOUNG, Governor.

SENATE CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT No. 8.

Relative to the framing and ratifying of municipal charters and amendments thereto.

Resolved by the Senate, the Assembly concurring, That the Legislature of the State of California at its forty-eighth regular session beginning on the seventh day of January, 1929, two-thirds of all the members elected to each of the houses voting in favor thereof, proposed to the people of the State that section 8 of article XI of the constitution of the State be amended to read as follows:

Sec. 8. Any city or city and county containing a population of more than 3500 inhabitants, as ascertained by the last preceding census taken under the authority of the Congress of the United States or the Legislature of California, may frame a charter for its own government consistent with and subject to this constitution; and any city, or city and county having adopted a charter may adopt a new one. Any such charter shall be framed by a board of 15 freeholders chosen by the electors of such city at any general or special election, but no person shall be eligible as a candidate for such board unless he shall have been, for the five years next preceding, an elector of said city. An election for choosing freeholders may be called by a two-thirds vote of the legislative body of such city, and, on presentation of a petition signed by not less than 15 per cent of the registered electors of such city, the legislative body shall call such election at any time not less than 30 or more than 60 days from date of the filing of the petition. Any such petition shall be verified by the authority having charge of the registration records of such city or city and county, and the expenses of such verification shall be provided by the legislative body thereof. Candidates for the office of freeholders shall be nominated either in such manner as may be provided for the nomination of officers of the municipal government or by petition, substantially in the same manner as may be provided by general laws for the nomination by petition of electors of candidates for public offices to be voted for at general elections. The board of freeholders shall, within 120 days after the result of the election is declared, prepare and propose a charter for the government of such city; but the said period of 120 days may, with the consent of the legislative body of such city be extended by such board not exceeding a total of 60 days. The charter so prepared shall be signed by a majority of the board of freeholders and filed in the office of the clerk of the legislative body of said city. The legislative body of said city shall, within 15 days after such filing, cause such charter to be published once in the official paper of said city; (or in case there be no such paper, in a paper of general circulation); and shall cause copies of such charter to be printed in convenient pamphlet form, and shall, until the date fixed for the election upon such charter, advertise in one or more papers of general circulation published in said city a notice that such copies may be had upon application therefor. Such charter shall be submitted to the electors of said city at a date to be fixed by the board of freeholders, before such filing and designated on such charter, either at a special election held not less than 60 days from the completion of the publication of such charter as above provided, or at the general election next following the expiration of said 60 days. If a majority of the qualified voters voting thereon at such general or special election shall vote in favor of such proposed charter, it shall be deemed to be ratified, and shall be submitted to the Legislature, if then in session, or at the next regular or special session of the Legislature. The Legislature shall by a concurrent resolution approve or reject such charter as a whole, without power of alteration or amendment; and if approved by a majority of the members elected to each house it shall become the organic law of such city or city and county, and supersede any existing charter and all laws inconsistent therewith. One copy of the charter so ratified and approved shall be filed with the Secretary of State, one with the recorder of the county in which such city is located, and one in the archives of the city; and thereafter the courts shall take judicial notice of the provisions of such charter. The charter of any city or city and county may be amended by proposals therefor submitted by the legislative body of the city on its own motion or on petition signed by 15 per cent of the registered electors, or both. Such proposals shall be submitted to the electors at either a special election called for that purpose or at any general or special election. Petitions for the submission of any amendment shall be filed with the legislative body of the city or city and county not less than 60 days prior to the election. The signatures on such petition shall be verified by the authority having charge of the registration records of such city or city and county, and the expenses of such verification shall be provided by the legislative body thereof. If such petitions have a sufficient number of signatures the legislative body of the city or city and county shall so submit the amendment or amendments so proposed to the electors. #### INAUGURAL ADDRESS.

Senator Sharkey asked unanimous consent to have the inaugural address of President Herbert Hoover printed in the Journal of this day.

Unanimous consent granted.

The following is the inaugural address as delivered by President Herbert Hoover:

MY COUNTRYMEN: This occasion is not alone the inauguration of the great chief of state under which can be assumed by an American citizen. It is a dedication and consecration to God to the highest office of our people. I assume this trust in the humility of knowledge that only through the guidance of Almighty Providence can I hope to discharge its great, demanding business.

It is in keeping with tradition to declare that I should express simply and directly the opinions which I hold concerning some of the matters of public importance.

If we survey the situation of our nation both at home and abroad, we find many satisfactions, we find some causes for concern. We have emerged from the flames of the great war and the reconstruction following it with increased unity and strength.

From this strength we have contributed to the security and progress of the world. What America has done has given the world hope and courage in all their basic faith in government by the people. In the large view, we have provided a larger degree of comfort and security than ever existed before in the history of the world.

Through liberation from widespread poverty we have reached a higher degree of individual freedom than ever before. Our devotion to and concern for our institutions are deep and sincere. We are steadily turning a new page in our civilization great in its own attainments.

The influence and high purposes of our nation are respected among the peoples of the world. We aspire to distinction in the world, but to a distinction based upon confidence in our sense of justice as well as our great estimate within our own borders and in our own lives. For wise guidance in this great period of recovery the nation is deeply indebted to Calvin Coolidge.

But all this majestic advance should not obscure the constant dangers from which self-government must be safeguarded. The strong man must at all times be alert to the attack of insidious disease.

The most malign of all these dangers today is disregard and disobedience of law. Crime is increasing. Confidence in rigid and speedy justice is diminishing. I am not prepared to believe that this indicates any decay in the moral fiber of the American people. I am not prepared to believe that it indicates an impotence of the federal government to enforce its laws.

It is only in part due to the additional burdens imposed upon our judicial system by the eighteenth amendment. The problem is much worse than that. Many influences had increasingly complicated and weakened our law enforcement organization long before the adoption of the eighteenth amendment.

To re-establish the vigor and effectiveness of law enforcement we must critically consider the entire federal machinery of justice, the subordination of its functions, the simplification of its procedure, the provision of additional judicial tribunals, the better selection of jurors, and the more effective organization of our agencies of investigation and prosecution that justice may be sure and that it may be swift. While the authority of the federal government extends to but part of our vast system of national, state and local justice, yet the standards which the federal government establishes have the most profound influence upon the whole structure.

We are fortunate in the ability and integrity of our federal judges and attorneys. But the system which these officers are called upon to administer is in many respects ill-adapted to present day conditions. Its intricate and involved rules of procedure have become the refuge of both big and little criminals. There is a belief abroad that by invoking technicalities, subtleties and delay the ends of justice may be thwarted by those who can pay the cost.

Reform, reorganization and strengthening of our whole judicial and enforcement system both in civil and criminal sides have been advocated for years by statesmen, judges and bar associations. First steps toward that end should not longer be delayed. Rigid and expeditious justice is the first safeguard of freedom, the basis of all ordered liberty, the vital force of progress.

It must not come to be in our republic that it can be defeated by the indifference of the citizen, by exploitation of the delays and entanglements of the law, or by combinations of criminals. Justice must not fail because the agencies of enforcement are either delinquent or inefficiently organized. To consider these evils, to find their remedy, is the most sore necessity of our times.

Of the undoubted abuses which have grown up under the eighteenth amendment, part are due to the causes I have just mentioned, but part are due to the failure of some states to accept their share of responsibility for concurrent enforcement and to the failure of many states and local officials to accept the obligation under their oath of office zealously to enforce the laws. With the failures from these many causes, has come a dangerous expansion in the criminal elements who have found enlarged opportunities in leading in illegal liquor.

But a large responsibility rests directly upon our citizens. There would be little traffic in illegal liquor if only criminals patronized it. We must awake to the fact that this patronage from large numbers of law-abiding citizens is supplying the rewards and stimulating crime.

I have been selected by you to execute and enforce the laws of the country. I propose to do so to the extent of my own abilities, but the measure of success that the government shall attain will depend upon the moral support which you, as citizens extend. The duty of citizens to support the laws of the land is co-equal with the duty of their government to enforce the laws which exist.

No greater national service can be given by men and women of good will—who, I know, are not unmindful of the responsibilities of citizenship—than that they should, by their example, assist in stamping out crime and outlawry by refusing participation in and condemning all transactions with illegal liquor.

Our whole system of self government will crumble either if officials elect what laws they will enforce or citizens elect what laws they will support. The worst evil of disregard for some law is that it deserves respect for all law. For our citizens to patronize the violation of a particular law on the ground that they are opposed to it is destructive of the very basis of all that protection of life, of homes and property which they rightly claim under other laws. If citizens do not like a law, their duty as honest men and women is to discourage its violation; their right is openly to work for its repeal.

To those of criminal mind there can be no appeal but vigorous enforcement of the law. Fortunately they are but a small percentage of our people. Their activities must be stopped.

I propose to appoint a national commission for a searching investigation of the whole structure of our federal system of jurisprudence to include the method of enforcement of the eighteenth amendment and the causes of abuse under it. Its purpose will be to make such recommendations for reorganization of the administration of federal laws and court procedure as may be found desirable. In the meantime it is essential that a large part of the enforcement activities be transferred from the treasury department to the department of justice as a beginning of more effective organization.

The election has again confirmed the determination of the American people that regulation of private enterprise and not government ownership or operation is the course rightly to be pursued in our relation to business. In recent years we have established a differentiation in the whole method of business regulation between the industries which produce and distribute commodities on the one hand, and public utilities on the other.

In the former, our laws insist upon effective competition; in the latter, because we substantially confer a monopoly by limiting competition, we must regulate their services and rates.

The rigid enforcement of the laws applicable to both groups is the very base of equal opportunity and freedom from domination for all our people and it is just as essential for the stability and prosperity of business itself as for the protection of the public at large.

Such regulation should be extended by the federal government within the limitations of the constitution and only when the individual states are without power to protect their citizens through their own authority. On the other hand, we should be fearless when the authority rests only in the federal government.

The larger purpose of our economic policy should be to establish more firmly stability and security of business and employment, and thereby remove poverty still further from our borders. Our people have in recent years developed a new found capacity for cooperation among the peoples to carry out high purposes in public welfare. It is an incentive toward the highest social progress in world civilization.

Self-government does not mean isolation and makes the use of national resources alone. Progress is based on cooperation in the economic and social life of the world. The government should assist and encourage these enterprises of nations to help by itself cooperating with them. It should use its influence to help the people progress in the advancement of science, art, literature, industry, and security of employment and in the creation of its own progress. Such progress, however, can be made only so long as business maintains its respect for law.

There is an equally important field of cooperation by the United States government with the multitude of agricultural, State, municipal and foreign or non-economic development of these processes which naturally should produce better, more rapid, abundant, and the home. We have used further to protect the business world government can be adapted to human service.

Although education is possible a responsibility of the state and local communities, and rightly so, for the nation as a whole. It is already concerned in development even where the highest standards and the highest standards. Such government can succeed only through an extended education. Our country is not simply to overcome adversity. The nation must be able to defend itself. The more complex the problems of the nation become, the greater the need for more and more advanced institutions. Moreover, as the nation's resources and its life expands with science and invention, we must discover more and more means for every walk of life.

We can not hope to succeed in directing this increasing complex civilization unless we can draw all the forces of civilization from the same people. Our civilization after another has been won upon the attempt to control civilization by force from a single group or class. If we would prevent growth of these institutions and would constantly defend our liberty, we will be unable to do so. We must show consistently from the government. The first responsibility of the state is to rise through the selective processes of civilization and to rise to this leadership.

In public health the department of health has been created in this leadership of our country and many groups of our nation have shared a new one. Many millions of which are more nations, are now working and working together. Public health services should be as free as possible and the different departments of the governmental system should be a public institution. The nation is a thousand and a economic benefits, and infinitely more in reduction of suffering and promotion of human happiness.

The United States fully realizes the profound truth that our own progress, prosperity and peace are inseparable with the progress, prosperity and peace of all humanity. The world is a single peace. Our thought is a recognition of this peace today are largely the best and wisest, while still there is a world. No suspicion of fear can be rightly conceived toward any nation.

Those who have a true understanding of America know that we have no room for territorial expansion, for we are not a nation of other peoples. Such purposes are irrelevant to our values of human freedom.

Our form of government is all adjusted to the progress of a nation, recently follow permanent limitation of the interference of other peoples. Something observes seem to find no lasting for our country's progress in civilization. It is not power except that it is a power. The fact is that the American people are engrossed in the building for themselves of a new economic system, a new social system, a new political system, all of which are characterized by aspirations of freedom of opportunity and thereby by the liberation of individualism.

They fail to realize that because of our changing conditions our people are progressing more and more into our institutions of learning, that our people are seeking a larger vision through art, literature, science and travel; that they are moving toward stronger moral and spiritual ideas; that from these things our expectations are broadening beyond the bounds of our nation and now toward their true expansion in a real brotherhood of man.

They fail to see that the idealism of America will lead it to no narrow or selfish channel, but inspire it to do its full share as a nation toward the advancement of civilization.

It will do that not by mere declaration but by taking a neutral part in settling all useful international understandings. We not only desire peace with the world but to see peace maintained throughout the world. We wish to advance the reign of justice and reason toward the extinction of force.

The recent treaty for the renunciation of war as an instrument of national policy sets an advanced standard in our conception of the relations of nations. Its acceptance should pave the way to greater limitation of armament, the offer of which we sincerely extend to the world.

But its full realization also implies a greater and greater perfection in the instrumentalities for pacific settlement of controversies between nations. In the creation and use of these instrumentalities we should support every sound method of conciliation, arbitration and individual settlement.

American statesmen were among the first to propose and they have constantly urged upon the world the establishment of a tribunal for the settlement of controversies of a justiciable character. The permanent court of international justice in its major purpose is thus peculiarly identified with American ideals and with American statesmanship. No more potent instrumentality for this purpose has ever been conceived and no other is practicable of establishment. The reservations placed upon our adherence should not be misinterpreted.

The United States seeks by these reservations no special privilege or advantage but only to clarify our relation to advisory opinions and other matters which are subsidiary to the major purpose of the court. The way should, and I believe will, be found by which we may take our proper place in a movement so fundamental to the progress of peace.

Our people have determined that we should make no political engagements such as membership in the League of Nations, which may commit us in advance as a nation to become involved in the settlements of controversies between other countries. They adhere to the belief that the independence of America from such obligations, increases its ability and availability for service in all fields of human progress.

I have lately returned from a journey among our sister republics of the western hemisphere. I have received unbounded hospitality and courtesy as their expression of friendliness to our country. We are held by particular bonds of sympathy and common interest with them.

They are each of them building a racial character and a culture which is an impressive contribution to human progress. We wish only for the maintenance of their independence, the growth of their stability and their prosperity. While we have had wars in the western hemisphere yet on the whole the record is in encouraging contrast with that of other parts of the world. Fortunately the new world is largely free from the inheritances of fear and distrust which have so troubled the old world. We should keep it so.

It is impossible, my countrymen, to speak of peace without profound emotion. In thousands of homes in America, in millions of homes around the world, there are vacant chairs. It would be a shameful confession of our unworthiness if it should develop that we have abandoned the hope for which all these men died.

Surely civilization is old enough, surely mankind is mature enough so that we ought in our own lifetime to find a way to permanent peace. Abroad, to west and east, are nations whose sons mingled their blood with the blood of our sons on the battlefields. Most of these nations have contributed to our race, to our culture, our knowledge and our progress. From one of them we derive our very language and from many of them much of the genius of our institutions. Their desire for peace is as deep and sincere as our own.

Peace can be contributed to by respect for our ability in defense. Peace can be promoted by the limitation of arms and by the creation of the instrumentalities for peaceful settlement of controversies. But it will become a reality only through self-restraint and active effort in friendliness and helpfulness. I covet for this administration a record of having further contributed to advance the cause of peace.

In our form of democracy the expression of the popular will can be effected only through the instrumentality of political parties. We maintain party government not to promote intolerant partisanship but because opportunity must be given for expression of the popular will, and organization provided for the execution of its mandates and for accountability of government to the people.

It follows that the government both in the executive and legislative branches must carry out in good faith the platforms upon which the party was entrusted with power. But the government is that of the whole people; the party is the instrument through which policies are determined and men chosen to bring them into being. The animosities of elections should have no place in our government for government must concern itself alone with the common weal.

Action upon some of the proposals upon which the Republican party was returned to power, particularly further agricultural relief and limited changes in the tariff, can not in justice to our farmers, our labor and our manufacturers be postponed. I shall therefore request a special session of Congress for the consideration of these two questions. I shall deal with each of them upon the assembly of the Congress.

It appears to me that the more important further mandates from the recent election were the maintenance of the integrity of the constitution; the vigorous enforcement of the laws; the continuance of economy in public expenditures; the continued regulation of business to prevent domination in the community; the denial of ownership of operation of business by the government in competition with its citizens; the avoidance of policies which would involve us in the controversies of foreign nations; the more effective reorganization of the departments of the federal government; the expansion of the public works; and the promotion of welfare activities affecting education and the home.

These were the more tangible determinations of the election, but beyond them was the confidence and belief of the people that we would not neglect the support of the embedded ideals and aspirations of America.

These ideals and aspirations are the touch-stones upon which the day to day administration and legislative acts of government must be tested. More than this, the government must, so far as lies within its proper powers, give leadership to the realization of these ideals and to the fruition of these aspirations. No one can adequately reduce these things to the spirit, to phrases or to a catalogue of definitions. We do know what the attainments of these people desire to be: The preservation of self-government and its full functioning in each government; the perfection of justice wherever it is wanted; in its widest fields, the maintenance of ordered liberty; the demand of democracy for new ground in peace, the breaking up and preservation of wealth of concentration; the securing of family and individuality; absolute integrity in public affairs; the maintenance of ability for office; the direction of economic progress without pauperism and the further lessening of poverty; the triumph of public spirit; the increasing of education and of the advancement of knowledge; the growth of religion and the realization of all faiths; the strengthening of the home; the attainment of peace.

There is no short road to the realization of these aspirations. There is a progressive people, but with a determination that progress must be based upon the foundation of experience. He considered possible for you future being only possible after them. But if we have the truth of the fact, in our progress, you will realize these ideals, we shall have more brightness and illumination for our children.

This is not the time and place for extensive promises. But we must believe our country are problems of progress to higher standards. There are the problems of degeneration. They demand thought and they are to overcome the temptation and enlist our sense of responsibility for their attainment. And that responsibility rests upon you, my countrymen, as much as upon those of us who have been selected for office.

Ours is a land rich in resources, attracting to its glorious beauty, fifty million millions of happy homes, blessed with wealth and opportunity. In the nation are the institutions of progress made possible. In no nation are the friends of government more secure. In no nation is the government more worthy of respect. No country is more loved by its people. I have an abiding faith in their industry, integrity and high purpose. I have no hope for the future of our country. It is bright with hope.

In the presence of my countrymen, witness of the progress of this nation, knowing what the task means and the responsibility which it brings, I ask your tolerance, your aid and your cooperation. I call the help of Almighty God in this service to my country to which you have called me.

MESSAGE FROM THE GOVERNOR.

The following message from the Governor was received, and ordered printed in the Journal:

To the Members of the Senate and Assembly.

In accordance with the provisions of section 34, article IV, of the State constitution, I propose at this time certain amendments to the budget and the budget bill as originally presented to you on January 8, 1929. The changes are few in number and except for two or three items are chiefly of a minor nature.

The items providing for the larger increases deserve some comment. In presenting the budget to the Legislature no provision was made for permanent improvements at the California School for the Deaf at Berkeley. This was purposely omitted until the legislative committee appointed to report upon the needs of future development of the school had made its report. The report then calls for a careful study of the problems and a conference with the Department of Finance regarding the funding needs of this institution from the estimated tax sum of $300,000 in the next biennium for beginning the reconstruction program. Therefore, an item of $200,000 has been recommended for permanent improvement for this school.

The University of California has presented to us the situation existing for an increase in the budget appropriations for the support of the University because of unusual expenses which will have to be met during the next biennium in connection with the removal of the university to Los Angeles by the end of the next session. For this reason an increase of $100,000 has been recommended for the support of the university.

Upon the recommendation of the Department of Public Works the special levy for acquiring and construction of additional lands for irrigation, water, flood control, irrigation, reclamation, and power is presented to the Senate and the San Francisco and Feather rivers has been reduced by $200,000 and the special levy for drainage, reclamation, operation and emergency protection of the Sacramento flood control project has been increased $50,000. This does not result in any increase in the budget.

At the House for the Adult Blind Commission action is taken on the basis of the shop of that institution is situated in an old building frame building in which the blind are working on the second floor. There is much of danger of fire which might result in a serious loss of life if the condition is not immediately remedied. An item of $10,000 for the construction of a frame of building with workshop on the ground floor is recommended.

A deduction of $11,800 is recommended from the support appropriation for the State Board of Equalization. A letter has been received from the Board of Equalization stating that this amount can be saved from their direct expenses in making the general franchise tax assessments under the new law and would be deducted from their budget.

In the original budget request of the Board of Equalization approximately $100,000 additional was requested to provide for the additional work required for the contemplated new form of taxation. This amount added to the sum of $11,800, which the Board of Equalization stated would be saved, would have amounted to $120,000. It is believed, with the contribution made by the Board of Equalization and the Controller that expenses in connection with the new form of tax can be kept within $100,000 and an item of $100,000 is recommended for the support of the Tax Commissioner's office.

An opportunity has been presented by the county of Sacramento whereby the State may acquire approximately 6000 acres of land adjoining the State Fair grounds in Sacramento. This land has been appraised by valuers at approximately $1500 per acre, but through an agreement with the Sacramento County Board of Supervisors the land is offered to the State at the price of $1000 per acre. We believe that this land should be acquired and have recommended an increase of $14,250 for this purpose.

At the request of the Department of Institutions the entire appropriation item for the Norwalk State Hospital have been decreased $15,000 and the same amount item for Patton State Hospital increased $15,000. Since the budget was completed it has been found that funds are available to the present biennium for completion of certain work at the Norwalk State Hospital which had been contemplated for the ensuing biennium. At the request of the Department of Institutions these changes in the budget items have been made. The changes do not result in any increase in the total budget.

An increase of $14,000 is recommended for the support of The Adjutant General and the National Guard to provide for two new National Guard units. The Adjutant General of the State has presented a statement of the need of such units and we believe the increased amount should be provided to take advantage of corresponding provision made by the United States government.

The Department of Natural Resources has presented to us the fact that by the acquisition of park sites under the recent bond issue, the cost of investigation and survey of available sites is provided for only in case that the State requires title to contemplated sites. If the sites are rejected, no provision is made to pay the cost of investigation. An item of $40,000 has therefore been recommended to provide for the expenses in connection with the investigation of those sites.

An opportunity presents itself to the State to acquire at a very reasonable price three parcels of land needed to provide additional area for the San Quentin Prison. The acreage now owned by the State has long been recognized as inadequate but heretofore there has been no additional land available at a satisfactory price. We believe that advantage should be taken of the present opportunity and have recommended an item of $54,000 for the purchase of the land.

I submit herewith a detailed list of the amendments at this time recommended to you. Amendments which modify the language of the budget bill without changing the amounts appropriated have not been included in this tabulation. The proposed amendments to the budget bill are presented in a special document herewith.

URGENCY SECTION.

This act is hereby declared to be an urgency act necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health or safety within the meaning of section 1 of article IV of the constitution of the State of California, and shall take effect immediately. The following is a statement of the facts constituting such urgency:

It is necessary to the public health and safety that sewers and sewerage systems be immediately constructed in many localities in the State of California, which sewers and sewerage systems under the circumstances prevailing in such localities can only be constructed by legally existing sanitary districts. Unless sewers and sewerage systems are promptly constructed in such localities, the public health and safety will be endangered and serious illness may result from unsanitary conditions therein. In the proceedings for the formation and organization of sanitary districts in some of said localities minor irregularities and defects, not violative of any right guaranteed under the constitution of the United States or of the State of California, have occurred and by reason thereof such districts are unable to raise the funds necessary to construct sewers and sewerage systems therein and therefor and otherwise carry out the objects for which such districts were formed and organized. By the validation of proceedings for the formation and organization of such districts, as herein provided, they will be able to raise funds for the construction of sewers and sewerage systems, and otherwise carry out the objects for which they were formed and organized.
